Roosevelt Signs 3 Billion Lending-Spending Bill

BRIGHT BUSINESS PICTURE PAINTED BY THE PRESIDENT

It Is Not, and Has Not Been as Bad as a Lot of People Believe, He Says, Citing New Report

NATIONAL INCOME ESTIMATES RAISED

Will Top $60,000,000,000, Commerce Department Experts Say After Study

HYDE PARK, N. Y., June 21—(AP)—President Roosevelt signed the $3,750,000,000 lending and spending bill today and asserted that business is not and has not been as bad as a lot of people believed it to be.

The President, at a press conference packed with news developments, gave as backing for his statement on business a Department of Commerce estimate that the national income for this year would be slightly above $60,000,000,000. Earlier government estimates were $55,000,000,000.

The President, wearing a white shirt, collar open and no tie, uncreased summer trousers and lounging in a chair behind his flat top, mahogany desk, was waiting for the newsmen when they came in.

He had a sheaf of papers in his hand.

Three Announcements.

With those papers as notes, he announced:

(1) That dirt would begin to fly on $350,000,000 of Public Works Administration projects within 60 days, now that the big $3,750,000,000 bill has been signed.

(2) That the prospect for business during 1938, based on national income figures for the first three months of the year, was definitely improved.

The President added that his assertion that business is not as bad as some people believed applied both to industry and agriculture.

(3) That he had signed 45 bills and vetoed seven since coming to his Hyde Park home and would act on ten more before he went to bed tonight, but still would have 337 to pass upon after that.

Mr. Roosevelt also took occasion to say that references to the

FIRESIDE CHAT PLANNED FRIDAY

HYDE PARK, N. Y., June 21. (AP)—President Roosevelt announced today that he would deliver a fireside radio chat to the nation from Washington at 9:30 p. m. (Atlanta time) Friday, June 24.

He told his press conference the talk would be general. He said it would be broadcast over all the major radio networks.

Informed persons expected him to discuss, among other things, the $3,750,000,000 lending and spending bill and probably other phases of his program that were enacted by congress.

GEORGE VICTORY PREDICTED IN POLL OF COUNTY CHIEFS

12 of 13 Chairmen Say Incumbent Will Win; One Says Camp Has a Fair Chance, Writer Reports.

By ALBERT L. WARNER.
Special to The Constitution.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—Democratic county chairmen in Georgia, South Carolina and Maryland, according to their answers to a poll today, speak out in overwhelming proportions for the renomination of the three sitting conservative, anti-court bill Democrats who are the top of the left-wing New Deal "purge list."

Twelve out of 13 chairmen of these small units in the Georgia party organization predict that Senator Walter F. George will be renominated in the primary September 6 and announced support for him. Although a New Deal candidate, United States District Attorney Lawrence A. Camp, is in the race, reputedly at the personal request of President Roosevelt, only one of the county chairmen participating in the prophecies holds that Camp has "a fair chance" of being nominated.

"Cotton Ed" Backed.

Senator Ellison D. Smith, of South Carolina, veteran "Cotton Ed," who bluntly criticizes the New Deal and wants no "piece of coat-tails," gets the support and the victory predictions of seven out of the ten county chairmen in his state replying to the poll. Of the other three, one makes no

LIQUOR REVENUE PLACES $785,738 IN STATE COFFERS

First Three Months of Local Option Expected To Raise $1,000,000, Grady Head Reveals.

SALES HIT SLUMP IN WARM MONTHS

Cities, Counties Benefit From Repeal; Atlanta Puts $82,000 in Till.

Revenue from legal liquor in Georgia has netted the state $785,738.94 in little more than two and one-half months' operations, T. Grady Head, state revenue commissioner, said yesterday.

With the total expected to reach approximately $1,000,000 for the first three months, unofficial estimates were that Georgia will receive considerably more than $3,000,000 from taxation of liquor for a year's period.

The figures released yesterday were for a period in which consumption of liquor started a normal decline.

The state's first taxation of whisky, at the rate of $1 a gallon, began on March 30, which date is near the beginning of the annual summer decline in liquor consumption.

Sales normally are lower in hot months than in the fall and winter, it was learned. They reach a peak around Christmastime and fall off sharply for a short period immediately after the Christmas and New Year's holidays.

Also, the recession in business during spring has had a depressing effect on liquor sales, it was said.

Revenue officials expect the tax receipts from sale of liquor to rise in September, when the normal increase of consumption takes place, and when economists predict a definite upturn in business activity.

Little Pup Saves Youth By Taking Poison Load

AUGUSTA, Ga., June 21.—(AP) Howard Medlin, 17-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Medlin, of Blythe, owes his life to his little pup, "Rover," physicians at University hospital said today.

The youth went to the spring this afternoon for a bucket of water, and, as he approached, a water moccasin suddenly charged, striking the little dog first and Walter next.

"Most of the poison was discharged in the dog," said an attending physician. "That is why Howard's conditon is not serious."

U. S. To Buy Georgia Watermelons From State Growers To Peg Price

One hundred and ten thousand watermelons will be purchased in Georgia by the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation, State Welfare Director Lamar Murdaugh announced last night.

The buying program was authorized yesterday in an effort to maintain watermelon prices at a level profitable to growers, it was said.

One hundred carloads or more may be bought, Murdaugh said.

Decision to buy watermelons placed support of the corporation under three major agricultural markets in the state.

The corporation has bought 50 or more carloads of tomatoes and more than 25 carloads of peaches.

Most of the watermelons purchased will be sent to other states for distribution to persons on the relief rolls, it was said. Some, however, will be distributed in this state.

A fund of $25,000 was set up yesterday with which to pay for the Georgia melons and for the expense of shipping them.

Priceson melons have slumped on many markets, Murdaugh said, in announcing purchase.

Only melons of U. S. Grade No. 1 or better will be bought, he said.

The corporation intends to remain active in maintaining profitable prices in the tomato and peach markets until the major portion of both crops are moved, Murdaugh announced.

LEHMAN WILLING TO SEEK SENATE

Governor Announces He Will Run for Copeland Seat If Party Desires.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 21.—(AP)—New York's Democratic Governor Herbert H. Lehman announced tonight he would accept the nomination to succeed the late United States Senator Royal S. Copeland "if my party desires me to be a candidate."

The Governor's announcement came unexpectedly within a few hours after funeral services for New York's late senior senator who died Friday night in Washington.

In Washington, the action of Governor Lehman in stepping into the senatorial picture caused something of a sensation among those few members of congress who still remain in the capital. The question immediately asked by all students of politics was: What attitude will President Roosevelt take toward the senatorial aspirations of the man universally credited with dealing one of the strongest blows at the Roosevelt court reorganization bill?

25-Word Announcement.

Lehman's announcement came at a time when Democratic senators who, like Lehman, fought the court bill were charging that the administration is trying to purge them out of public life.

Lehman's announcement contained 25 words:

"If my party desires me to be a candidate for the office of United States senator to succeed Senator Copeland, I will accept the nomination."

In New York Attorney General John J. Bennett Jr. tonight announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Governor of New York after Governor

UNEQUAL RAIL RATE TERMED A 'TARIFF'

By L. A. FARRELL,

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., June 21. The present railroad rate differentials which the south hopes to eliminate are in effect a tariff barrier which as such would be void under the federal constitution, Governor Rivers declared here tonight.

"The federal constitution will not permit the raising of tariff barriers between the several states, yet we have been unable to break down this high freight rate wall which encircles our section," the Governor said.

Georgia's chief executive was Britain Calls for Armistice As Powers Agree on Spain

Deadlock Ended as Nations Decide To Withdraw "Volunteers"; London Seeks Offices of Rome and Paris To Bring Cessation of Hostilities.

LONDON, June 21.—(AP)—The prospect of curbing or even ending Spain's destructive civil war became more promising tonight than at any time since the first shot was fired, July 18, 1936.

Nine major European powers, ending a long deadlock, agreed at a nonintervention subcommittee meeting on steps to remove foreign fighters from the conflict.

The nine powers are Britain, France, Italy, Germany, Russia, Portugal, Sweden, Belgium and Czechoslovakia.

Friday the subcommittee will meet again to discuss the cost of the nonintervention plan and a full session of the 27-nation group is to be held shortly to approve the complete scheme.

Britain sought the aid of France and Italy, whose sympathies are with opposite sides in the conflict, to obtain a lull in hostilities while evacuation commissions could operate.

In the house of commons, British Prime Minister Chamberlain indicated an armistice was the only practical way to end international difficulties which had arisen from the war.

He declared Britain would try "from time to time" to see whether there were favorable prospects of success and "when the time comes we shall be only too glad to offer our services, either alone or in conjunction with others, in bringing this lamentable conflict to an end."

Chamberlain's policy was sustained by a huge conservative majority when commons voted, 278 to 148, against a labor motion to reduce the foreign office appropriation—a move which would have been in effect an act of censure.

Closing debate, Parliamentary Undersecretary Richard Austen Butler said "today's agreement means we have got a long way nearer putting non-intervention into practice."

Chamberlain compared the task of mediating in the civil war to settlement of an industrial dispute by a third party.

"It would be difficult to find a

U. S. Will Speed Spy Investigation; 'Let Chips Fall Where They May'

NEW YORK, June 21.—(AP)—Federal prosecutors today declared there would be no turning back from the maze of international intrigue which they uncovered with the indictment of 18 German spy suspects.

While frankly asserting they did not know where their quest would take them, they said their investigation of an alleged Nazi plot to steal American defense secrets would be continued after a "breathing spell."

"We are going to continue the investigation, but I don't know what will develop as a result," said United States Attorney Lamar Hardy.

With two women witnesses held in protective custody in the tower of the federal building, Hardy said he would make every effort to expedite the arraignment of the four defendants who are the only ones under arrest.

The other defendants, including two officers of the German war ministry, were in Germany, outside of American jurisdiction.

Beyond saying they were "heavily guarded," Prosecutor Hardy declined to discuss the status of the two women witnesses who spent many hours before the special grand jury.

They were Mrs. Kate Moog Busch, described as a confidante of Dr. Fritz Griebl, the former leader of American Nazis who

BRUISES ON BODIES INDICATE ASSAULT

Young Farmer Discovers Couple by Wrecked Car Near Austell in Cobb.

By LAMAR Q. BALL.

A bride and groom of three months, their bodies mysteriously broken and battered, were found beside their shattered automobile yesterday as dawn streaked the rain-soaked bottom of Mehaffey's Cut, a deep railroad ravine three miles northeast of Austell in Cobb county.

A slipknot noose drawn tightly around the neck of the bride was the first warning of murder.

Kerosene-soaked clothing indicated that plans had been made to destroy the bodies by fire after the crime had been committed.

The woman's body, her skull crushed by a blow, one eye bruised as by a beating, her finger ring broken and swollen, lay beside the crumpled car, while 12 feet away, his skull fractured by several blows, his chest crushed and his right hand bruised as though he had fought desperately, was her husband—J. Ed Peek, of 1680 South Gordon road, Atlanta.

Cars Draw Attention.

A young farmer's story of the unusual movements of automobiles in the road before and near his home at 1 o'clock yesterday morning when he returned from a day and night of work at the Farmers' Market in Atlanta was the nearest to a witness' story police could uncover.

The crime occurred on the road connecting Austell with Marietta, at the point where the Seaboard Air Line tracks pass under the highway. A wooden bridge crosses the tracks over the cut and 400 yards away is the home of Hugh Arthur Brewer, 21-year-old farmer, who discovered the bodies.

An automobile parked near the bridge, its lights blinking occasionally, attracted Brewer's attention as he entered his home in the early morning. A few moments later, after he had entered his home, an automobile came along the highway, stopped before the house, turned around, and moved slowly off. A loud crash of steel and breaking glass startled him as he settled down in his bed after eating a light supper. A few moments later he heard another

$778,000 SOUGHT FOR AUDITORIUM AND NEW ARMORY

$500,000 Set for Guard Quarters, $278,000 for Remodeling Work.

A $778,000 program to remove the Atlanta National Guard unit from the municipal auditorium, where it is housed and to remodel the front part of the auditorium was under way yesterday.

Adjutant General John Stoddard announced he will seek $500,000 in federal money to build new quarters for the guard here, as a part of a $2,500,000 state armory building plan, while Councilman John A. White announced formal application for a $278,000 auditorium remodeling project has been filed with the PWA.

General Stoddard said part of the Atlanta funds in the armory program would be used to build a $40,000 indoor riding area.

Toccoa Park Project.

Half a million dollars will be sought also to develop a park project near Toccoa for the national guard, Stoddard asserted.

Councilman White, who as chairman of the building committee of council, has insisted that the national guard unit be placed in other quarters, said yesterday plans for remodeling the front of the city auditorium have been completed and filed with Miss Gay B. Shepperson, state WPA administrator.

He is confident the application will be favored by Washington officials.

"The city is taking the lead in trying to eliminate firetraps," White asserted. "The front section of the auditorium has been declared unsafe and we are going to remedy that as soon as possible."

Under General Stoddard's plan, Atlanta and Toccoa will receive the largest sums in the armory building program—each getting $500,000.

Savannah would receive $300,000, $250,000 of which would be for field artillery and $50,000 for machine gun units, and Macon's share was listed as $200,000.

General Stoddard said Georgia would ask for $40,000 each for 18 towns in the state which have single guard units. These are Toccoa, Marietta, Cedartown, Calhoun, Washington, Waynesboro, Forsyth, Griffin, Barnesville, Jackson, Hinesville, Waycross, Valdosta, Albany, Monroe, Thomasville, Hawkinsville and Springfield.

A total of $60,000 each will be asked to build armories for three towns having two guard units each. These are Elberton, Brunswick and Statesboro.

General Stoddard said the second item for Toccoa, $40,000, was for the medical unit there and the $500,000 would be used solely for the park development in that section.

MRS. RIVERS DIED OF SHOT—CORONER

Husband Being Held on Suspicion of Murder.

A coroner's inquest found yesterday that Mrs. Nola Rivers, of 547 Simpson street, N. W., died Monday of a gunshot wound inflicted by her husband, Jesse H. Rivers, 60, a retired watchmaker.

Mrs. Rivers was found critically wounded early Monday afternoon after officers had broken down the door of the room and disarmed Rivers. She died shortly after being taken to Grady hospital.

Rivers still is being held at headquarters on a charge of suspicion of murder. A formal murder charge will not be filed until an investigation has been completed by Detectives M. B. Johnson and D. L. Taylor.

Funeral services for Mrs. Rivers will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the Riverdale Baptist church with the Rev. C. D. Regan and the Rev. J. P. Widner officiating. Burial will be in the Riverdale cemetery.

CAPTAIN P. M. FELTHAM WILL ARRIVE SATURDAY

Captain P. M. Feltham, supervising superintendent of construction, United States Veterans' Administration, is expected to return to Atlanta Saturday to complete his annual survey of utilities and grounds at Veterans' Hospital No. 48.

THREE NEW STAMPS TO GO ON SALE HERE

Constitution Commemorated; James Madison Honored by One Issue.

Issuance of a series of three new stamps was announced yesterday by Lon F. Livingston, postmaster. They will be available in limited numbers until the old stock has been cleared.

The first of the series is a special 3-cent stamp commemorating the ratification of the constitution, which will be placed on sale at the postoffice today. The central motif of the design is a reproduction of a colonial courthouse with two horsemen, one about to mount and the other riding away, in the foreground.

Next Monday a special 3-cent stamp celebrating the tercentenary of the landing of Swedes and Finns in America will be placed on sale at Wilmington, Del., near the site of the actual landing in 1638. They will be available here shortly thereafter, the postmaster said. The stamp design features the reproduction of a painting of the landing of the Swedes and Finns by Stanley M. Arthurs.

The third of the special series is a 4-cent stamp honoring James Madison, fourth president of the United States. It will be placed on sale at Washington July 1 and will be available here July 2. Anticipating a demand from Atlanta philatelists, the local postoffice has requisitioned 200,000 of the new issue. A limited number of cancellations will be available to collectors upon application to the Washington postoffice, it was announced.

moment when both sides are willing to listen to reason from someone else," he said, "particularly if either side thought they were within sight of victory and, therefore, are unwilling to listen to any idea of compromise."

Chamberlain disclosed that Britain had sent a new protest to Franco over "deliberate" bombings of British ships.

With the greater part of Spain under his control, it is considered unlikely that Insurgent General Franco will agree to any cessation of hostilities except on his own terms.

Thus much depends upon his heaviest backer, Premier Mussolini, of Italy, and how far Il Duce would be willing to go to obtain a durable friendship with Britain.

Agreement on the British proposal to send evacuation commissions to Spain in an effort to remove foreign troops came when Soviet Russia, which heretofore had opposed the plan, bowed to the will of the other powers.

SPANIARDS BATTLE TO A DEADLOCK

HENDAYE, France (At the Spanish Frontier), June 21.—(AP)—Spanish Insurgent and government troops fought to a deadlock today in hand-to-hand battling under a broiling sun in the vital Castellon sector of eastern Spain.

Twelve hours of heavy fighting found still unsettled the fate of low hills holding up the Insurgent advance on Valencia.

It was the same story in Teruel province, to the west. In the Puebla de Valverde sector southeast of Teruel Insurgents attempted to continue the attacks which won them scattered hills in the Sierra Camarena yesterday, but government troops stopped them in their tracks.

SEMI-NUDE TOILERS HEW ROCK DEFENSES

ON THE EASTERN FRONT WITH GOVERNMENT TROOPS NEAR NULES, Spain, June 21.—(AP)—Thousands of workers hewed formidable fortifications out of solid rock north of Valencia today while government troops fighting stripped to the waist under a boiling sun held off the Insurgents in heavy fighting around Villarreal and Burriana, 35 miles up the Mediterranean coast above Valencia.

The sun-tanned toilers, also stripped almost nude in the semi-tropic heat, rushed completion of rock fortifications stretching between Sagunto and Almenara some 14 miles north of Valencia where the greatest battle probably will be fought in defense of the vital government seaport.

LLOYD GEORGE HITS POLICY ON SPAIN

Likens Government To Bevy of Maiden Aunts.

LONDON, June 21.—(AP)—Fiery David Lloyd George today likened the British government in its dealings with Insurgent Spain to "a bevy of maiden aunts fallen among buccaneers."

The aging war-time prime minister rose in the house of commons to launch a blistering attack on the Spanish policy pursued by Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's government.

He declared if he were at the helm of British affairs he would have ordered a British air raid on Italian air bases in the Balearic islands to destroy them in retaliation for the sinking of British ships in Spanish government ports.

Party Leaders Qualify Millican, Voiding Ruling

State Senator G. Everett Millican was qualified as a candidate for renomination in the fall Democratic primary yesterday by the Fulton Democratic executive committee.

His name will appear on the ballots with that of Alderman Robert Carpenter, whom the Democratic executive committee previously had ruled the only qualified candidate.

Millican paid his entrance fee to the 52d senatorial district committee, of which Major Clark Howell, editor and publisher of The Constitution, is chairman.

The executive committee had held he could qualify only with the executive committee. Yesterday, it reversed its ruling and announced it will place Millican's name on the Democratic primary ballot. Carpenter had qualified with both committees.

commitment, but points out that Senator Smith always has carried his county. Another thinks it is an even race between Senator Smith and Governor Olin D. Johnston, 100 per cent New Dealer, who announced his candidacy from the White House steps after a satisfactory talk with the President. The third predicts that State Senator Edgar A. Brown, also a New Dealer, will win the nomination. This prophet is Brown himself, chairman of Barnwell county.

Of five county leaders setting forth their views in Maryland, all say Senator Millard E. Tydings will win against Representative David J. Lewis, a New Dealer. Four say they are personally for him, while the fifth refrains from voicing a personal preference.

The poll, taken by Joseph Leib, Washington writer, would seem to indicate that a popular New Deal revolutionary movement against the sitting senators on the black list must sweep aside even the county chairmen. The possibility may exist, however, that county chairmen who did not answer and therefore expressed no views may for some reason be more receptive to the New Deal candidates or be more amenable to administration pressure than those who committed themselves.

Georgians Listed.

Predicting victory for Senator George or personally backing him in Georgia were Chairmen H. J. Rowe, Clarke county; E. P. Johnston, Bibb county; W. E. Sirmon, Ware county; David S. Atkinson, Chatham county; James A. Fort, Sumter county; Drew W. Paulk, Ben Hill county; Frank S. Burney, Burke county; L. S. Parrish, Berrien county; Quimby Melton, Spalding county; H. M. Oakley, Barrow county; H. Price Jr., Wilkinson county, and R. E. Dismukes, Muscogee county. F. S. Harrell, Lowndes county, was the one who thought Camp had a fair chance of beating Senator George.

How some of these county leaders reacted follows:

H. J. Rowe: "The people of this state are loyal to the fundamental principles of democracy and the alleged New Deal issue will not elect Mr. Camp. Our people admire the courage and backbone Senator George has shown by not following the administration on its 'isms' which, to my mind, are calculated to wreck the Democratic party."

"Resented by People."

W. E. Sirmon: "The people of Georgia resent the fact that Washington is trying to name a rubber stamp from this state and will show their resentment at the polls. The truth is we are fast being 'fed up' on the New Deal."

David S. Atkinson: "A good senator should not be defeated for reelection because he has been honest and conscientious."

James A. Fort: "Personally, I am an admirer of the President and I like what he is doing. However, it does not follow that I like all his acts. I say again, if anybody asks you about this election, just tell them that Senator George will be re-elected regardless of who butts in."

RAIL INTEREST CUT IS URGED BY BORAH

Idahoan Suggests That Bondholders Take Less To Aid Carriers in Crisis.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—(AP)—A proposal that railroad bondholders take a drastic cut in interest rates in order to help the carriers through their present financial difficulties came today from Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho.

The veteran Republican suggested the government could encourage this procedure by agreeing to make Reconstruction Finance Corporation loans to carriers whose bondholders accepted such reductions.

"The bondholders would rather have an assured 3 per cent than a 6 per cent return that they may not get," commented Borah.

The railroad problem increasingly has concerned those legislators still in Washington, though most of them have received coldly the unofficial talk of a special session this fall to do something about it.

In this connection, they said a special session could do little or nothing until after committees had studied the question exhaustively.

Such studies might take several weeks or months.

One highly-placed congressman, unwilling to be quoted by name, said he thought it would be advisable, however, to have committees begin studies early this fall.

Ordinarily, the Interstate Commerce Commission makes a report to congress on the general railroad situation when the session opens.

This congressional leader said that if the report was made in the early fall, committees coud hold hearings and have some definite proposals ready early in the next session.

Meanwhile, the carriers' joint conference committee, composed of 15 railroad officers from all parts of the country, asked representatives of 19 national railroad labor organizations to a meeting in Chicago on June 28 to discuss a proposed 15 per cent wage reduction.

The joint conference committee has been authorized to carry to a conclusion nationally the negotiations now under way locally between railroads and their employes.

THIRD MORE INCOME THAN IN 1933 SEEN

Commerce Bureau Estimates Decline in Wages.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—(AP)—The Commerce Department, which supplied President Roosevelt with an estimate that the national income this year would exceed $60,000,000,000, said today that the year would be at least a third more prosperous than the depression low in 1933.

The highest national income was $78,556,000,000 in 1929. Last year, the total was $69,330,000,000, while in 1933 the total of wages, interests, dividends, rent and other income was only $45,317,000,000.

No breakdown of the 1938 estimate was available, but officials indicated that the decline in wages, which totaled $46,728,000,000 last year, would be from 10 to 14 per cent.

SWEDISH HOUSING EXPERT ARRIVES

Direct Subsidies To Renters Urged by Myrdal.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—(AP)—Senator Gunnar Myrdal, Swedish housing expert, told United States housing officials today the government should make direct subsidies to heads of low-income families to help pay rentals.

Sweden has found, the visitor said, that helping large families obtain better homes is a national investment in future citizens. The government there, he added, pays 30 per cent of the rent for poor families with three children, 40 per cent where there are four children and a maximum of 50 per cent.

HELP STOMACH DIGEST FOOD

Without Laxatives—and You'll Eat Everything from Soup to Nuts

The stomach should digest two pounds of food daily. When you eat heavy, greasy, coarse or rich foods or when you are nervous, hurried or chew poorly—your stomach pours out too much fluid. Your food doesn't digest and you keep eat. Heartburn, nausea, pain or sour stomach. You feel sour, sick and upset all over.

Doctors say never take a laxative for stomach pain. It is dangerous and foolish. It takes those little black tablets called Bell-ans for indigestion to make the excess stomach acids harmless, relieve distress in 5 minutes and get you back on your feet. Relief is so quick it is amazing and one 25c package proves it. Ask for Bell-ans the Indigestion

By Jack Spalding III

SAM PIRIE.

"Out in Chicago, businessmen wondered about the excellent trade reports coming from Atlanta, said Pirie, young and handsome grandson of one of the founders of his company.

"How is it Atlanta's business was good, when most reports from other parts of the country told opposite stories? I decided to find out, and so I came here to make a study of store operation and merchandising.

"I was able to spend only two days here," Pirie continued, "but in that brief period I learned a lot. There's no mystery now about those good reports on retail business and like reports from the Federal Reserve Bank district here.

"Atlanta merchants know their business. They know how to merchandise.

"I was also very much impressed with the city itself, and the people. They struck me as being remarkably progressive. In the stores, for instance, customers seemed to have a lot of zip, as though they were coming to buy and knew what they wanted."

Pirie, who is in the merchandising offices of Carson, Pirie, Scott & Company, a firm founded in 1854, also spoke a good word for the city's residential sections. "Charming," was his comment. "More impressive than my own city's famous lake front."

"GONE WITH WIND" AGENT IN TOWN

If "Gone With the Wind" is ever translated into Chinese or South Sea dialects, Miss Marion Saunders probably will direct the work. She arrived in Atlanta yesterday morning to meet Margaret Mitchell, the author, whom she represents as foreign agent.

From her talk, you gather the novel, like the Bible, will eventually cover the world. Scarlett and Rhett and the burning of Atlanta have been the constant topics of conversation in England, Italy, Scandinavia, and central Europe. And like Naziism, the pair is threatening the Balkans, as Miss Saunders prepares for a Rumanian translation.

On her first trip south, she looked curiously through the window of her hotel room towards Peachtree, where the hero and heroine, whom she has seen through so many difficult metamorphoses, were accustomed to enjoy the evening air. But more than anything else, she seemed interested in blue laws south of the Potomac. "So like Scotland," she murmured.

Miss Saunders' father was a foreign correspondent of the London Times. She was born in Berlin, and lived there until she was 13. After a few years in a Paris school, she moved to London. Among other jobs, she tutored the Duke of Kent in German during the World War.

She came to New York as secretary in an English banking house, but found she didn't like the work.

"So," she said, "I learned books, and in 1930 started a literary agency without knowing a single publisher."

Her wide foreign connections proved helpful, and in a short time she built up a business that from all outward signs is prosperous. A little over half of it is handling the foreign rights for authors, she said.

GERMAN HAS RECESSION SUSPICIONS

F. Von Beckher, of Brooklyn, is the American representative of his family's German cutlery firm. He travels constantly, and is in Atlanta for a few days on a swing through the South. "Business," he says, "is punk, as everybody knows it. What made it so? Everybody tells stories, and nobody knows." Von Beckher has his suspicions about recession. It seems to him to be the result of a concentrated effort on the part of someone. He doesn't know who. He was silent on Hitler.

ORGANIST PLEASED WITH CLIMATE

Jesse Crawford, the organist, was pleasantly surprised yesterday morning at our summer climate.

"All my friends in New York pitied me when I left," he remarked. "They all warned me of the southern summer, but it's pretty nice."

Crawford, who was born in California and reared in Washington and Oregon, says he has to have hills near him to be happy. He lives in Washington Heights, the highest point on Manhattan, "a synthetic replacement of my western homeland."

Definitely a family man, Crawford was glad to say he had just signed a new NBC contract. He found he didn't like the road when he and his wife organized an orchestra and took it on tour. "Handling those men was like handling a lot of temperamental children. And finishing a day's work at 2 or 3 o'clock in the morning is unnatural. We're family folks, my wife and daughter and I. We don't live like professionals."

BUILDING ACTIVITY SHOWS SHARP RISE

Southeastern States Report Increase of More Than Million in Valuation.

Home building activities in the southeastern states during May showed a substantial increase over April, the F. W. Dodge Corporation reported yesterday in its monthly summary of contract awards for Florida, Georgia, Alabama, eastern Tennessee and North and South Carolina.

There were 908 projects in the one-family house, owner-to-occupy classification, the survey said. These included contract valuations of $5,609,000, compared with 715 projects of $4,492,000 valuation in April.

"The May volume in owner-to-occupy residences is the highest in that classification to this point in the year," said R. M. Hairston, southeastern manager of the Dodge corporation.

"In addition to passing the April record with a 25 per cent margin, the May contracts were above the level of the prosperous month of May in 1937."

For the first five months of 1938, the report said, a total of $20,262,000 has been allocated to the construction of one-family houses in six southeastern states. In the corresponding period of 1937 the volume reached $22,647,000.

A small gain in May over April also was registered in building of residences for sale or rent.

GOEBBELS WHIPS 120,000 IN BERLIN TO NEW JEW HATE

Hysterical Throng Applauds Nazi Who Proposes Complete Ouster of Race.

BERLIN, June 21.—(AP)—Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels tonight put the stamp of official approval on the new wave of Nazi anti-Semitism and roused a crowd of 120,000 Berliners to hysterical cries of "Out with the Jews—out with the Jews."

Speaking at the annual summer solstice exercises at Olympic stadium, Goebbels demanded, however, that the state party rather than "the street"—meaning mobs—attend to solution of the Jewish problem.

"But it is a good thing we now know what concerns are Jewish," declared the small propaganda minister in referring to the recent smearing of store-fronts with "Jew" in red paint.

"We will see to it that legal measures are taken so that soon Jews will have gone altogether.

"If the foreign press invokes our human feelings, why we will be glad to present the Jews to them.

"If people say 'Why, the Jews aren't doing anything,' I say they provoke us by their very presence.

"What do we care about foreign countries anyway? The world should leave us alone; we are not harming anybody."

At this point in Goebbels' speech a bellowing voice from the audience introduced the word "Sudeten," referring to the Germanic minority within Czechoslovakia.

Goebbels took up the word.

"We won't tolerate any longer that 3,500,000 Germans (in Czechoslovakia) are being tormented. Austria has shown what could happen. . . ."

The government minister's virulent attack came as the open campaign to drive some 500,000 Jews from Germany had shown signs of abating.

But postoffice officials announced a new anti-Jewish measure. They stated Jewish business houses no longer could avail themselves of the convenience of bringing mail such as advertising circulars to post offices for mass stamping and cancellation except in cases where the addresses were Jewish.

1937 Declines From $17,047,000,000 in 1936.

NEW YORK, June 21.—(AP)—The National-Industrial Conference Board today made public results of a study estimating total 1937 expenses for all divisions of government at $16,900,000,000, including social security expenditures, or $16,500,000,000, without that classification.

This represents a reduction under the board's revised estimate for the fiscal year 1936, which was $17,047,000,000, an increase of $2,116,000,000 compared with 1935. The total 1936 total, however, includes federal expenditures relating to the soldiers' bonus amounting to $1,673,000,000 and social security expenditures totaling $29,000,000.

Stray Protection! Youngsters Fingerprinted as Precautionary Measure

Kindergarten Group Fingerprinted By Atlantans To Aid Little Strays

Clubwomen Sponsor Plan To Have All Children Registered in Civil Identification Bureau; Adults May Also Avail Themselves of Special Service.

By ELLEN ST. JOHN BARNWELL.

Kindargarten citizens are fingerprinted in Atlanta. As a "vaccination" against lost identity, a group of pre-school age children were fingerprinted yesterday by Mrs. T. W. Butler, fingerprint chairman for the Fifth District of the Federated Clubs of Georgia.

"As important as fingerprinting is for adults," explained Mrs. William Collins Matthews, pre-school chairman of the fifth district, "it is even more important for children. In case a child is lost, strayed, stolen or hurt in an accident the child can be quickly and definitely identified if fingerprints are on file not only in the civil identification department at the Fulton county courthouse but in the national files at Washington as these will be."

Tied-Tongue, Active Feet.

Many still natives of babyland, speak the few English words they know with a thick accent. Although their intelligence isn't developed enough to say the right words in the right place, their active feet can cause them to lose themselves quickly.

Here is a serious interview held with one pretty miss who has just turned three years old. She was waiting in line to be fingerprinted.

"What is your name?" She replied "Sis'er."

"No, what else are you called?" She smiled, "Baby!"

"Where do you live?" "Home." And where is 'home'?" She waved her dimpled hand toward the window, "Way, way out dere!"

Were this child lost anyone earnestly trying to take her home would be grateful for a fingerprint file!

The fingerprinting process was accompanied by thrilled squeals and delighted laughter. No, he did not want his fingers put on the ink pad.

After it was all over he wanted to do it again and said it was fun, "'Muver won't let me do it on the walls!'

Hospital Foot Prints.

"Hospitals advise fingerprinting. We feel it would be a great safeguard to children if every child were fingerprinted," said Mrs. John D. Evans, president of the Fifth District Federated Clubs, who is advancing the importance of fingerprinting as a club project. She continued, "because the little fingers are clenched too tightly when babies are born it is impossible to get fingerprints, but footprints are taken."

Four years ago Emory University hospital began the custom of footprinting infants. According to authorities at the hospital, each baby at birth has the imprints of both feet with the thumb prints of the mother put on the back of the birth certificate.

So that mothers will not have to take their pre-school children to the city jail or the county courthouse to be fingerprinted, the fifth district clubwomen, under Mrs. E. Stewart, chairman of public welfare, have provided a room on the fourth floor of 91 Whitehall street, where the service is given free.

Th opportunity will be open for one week ending June 29 from 9 o'clock to 5 o'clock each week day. During the summer, the first Wednesday of each month the fingerprinting will be sponsored by these clubwomen and will be started again in the fall.

Adults may be fingerprinted there without charge, but preschool fingerprinting is stressed. J. C. Smith and Harvey Arnold are the two young men who will officially conduct the work.

Smith, who has fingerprinted hundreds of people for civil identification files, expressed his opinion, "General fingerprinting is not only invaluable for identification but from the psychological point of view it will check many potential criminals."

BERMUDA MEASURE PROTESTED BY U. S.

Britain Advised Bill Unfair to American Ships.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—(AP)—The State Department directed Great Britain's attention today to a pending bill in the Bermuda parliament which it said would discriminate against American ships.

The department instructed the American embassy in London to say this government hoped the bill would not be enacted.

The bill would prevent some passenger ships from keeping their passengers on board during their stay there at Bermuda.

The governor general of Bermuda, in a message to the Bermuda parliament specifically mentioned the Eastern Steamship Line, of American registry, as being embraced by the bill.

TOWNSEND CLUBS IN FLORIDA LAUDED

Political Power Held Up to Cheering Convention.

LOS ANGELES, June 21.—(AP)—Political success of the Townsend old age pension movement in Florida was cited to the third national Townsend convention today as a model example of what "hard work" will do toward gaining adoption of the general welfare act, which embodies the Townsend plan.

F. Manley Goldsberry told the several thousand applauding delegates that Florida Townsend clubs in May "elected United States senators and congressmen from every congressional district in that state who will be loyal supporters of the Townsend plan in congress."

"In other words," Goldsberry said, "Florida is represented 100 per cent in the nation's capitol by men who will support our measure, the general welfare act."

The Colonel Holds Straw to Wind In Torrid Campaigns for Oompah

BLAST LAUNCHES STRAW BALLOT

BULLETIN:

Crying "Let the people rule—they are entitled to be heard," Colonel Whoopen Blast last night, in a surprise move, announced a straw ballot in the warmly contested race for Oompah of Constitution comic characters. "It is too long to wait until Election Day, July 4, to learn how things are going," the Colonel explained. "There have been so many claims, counter-claims and assertions that it is time we learned something of what is in the public mind. Let us hear from the men, women and children now. That is the only fair method."

By COLONEL WHOOPEN BLAST, Political Commentator Extraordinaire.

We're off, friends. Now wait a minute. Let me explain. I mean we're off on the first straw ballot of the political season. This contest for the chieftainship of all comic characters in The Constitution is too serious, too fraught with grave issues, too full of meaning, for this suspense to go on indefinitely.

It's time we set a few straws loose in the wind of public opinion. Let's see how she's a-blowing. Is it true that Dick Tracy is far out in front, the way he claims? Is Orphan Annie really the favorite? Has Andy Gump got the jump, with his ten-cent nickel, or Moon Mullins, or Jane Arden, or Aunt Het? What of Jasper's standing? And Tarzan's? Just where is Smitty at this time? In fact, how is the public pulse beating toward Don Dixon, the Three Bares, Ben Webster, Streaky, Peter Rabbit and all of those other engaging characters?

Unofficial preliminary expressions of the public which have come to your correspondent so far indicate a mighty tight race. No doubt each candidate's supporters are loyal, but there is a wide diversity of view. Just to show you, let me recite that there have been some pretty strong expressions in favor of Kayo Mullins' Wog. And nobody knows where the Wog is—or Kayo either. That alone shows you how things are.

Straw ballots are the recognized way, these days, for finding out the trends and drifts, the currents and tendencies. It's got to where a political campaign ain't worth its salt any more without at least one organized expression beforehand of how people are going to vote in the real balloting. And this campaign for Oompah means to do the right thing.

One of the more compelling reasons for hearing from the various candidates' backers now is the way things are developing in this campaign. You know about the three duels already pending. You've heard about Kayo Mullins' shifting his support from Moon to Jane Arden to Dotty Plushbottom. You've seen how Herby, in his ardent support of his brother Smitty, offered to take on Jasper for a round or two.

Ah, but friends, there were some other happenings we didn't really want to go into.

For example, Andy Gump, it has been learned on good authority, was so long getting back from New York (where he went to get the Hudson Dusters to come to his aid on Election Day) because, as a matter of fact, he was kidnaped by Moon Mullins on the way back and hidden out.

Dick Tracy heard of it and enlisted Jane Arden, Tarzan and Orphan Annie in what turned out to be a successful effort to release Andy. They tried to get Napoleon, the dog without a purpose, to help, all in the interest of preventing scandal, but Napoleon was deaf to their pleas of good cifizenship; and it turned out that Napoleon knew all along where Andy was hidden—he'd been digging up bones in the same neighborhood.

And then there was Kayo Mullins. This was most discouraging to your correspondent who, as you all know so well, has been bending every effort to run this campaign along the most ethical lines. Kayo, I regret to say, was found trying to make a deal direct with those Smithsonian Institution people who'd offered to divide $100,000 equally among all candidates if the Wog were produced, or even a photograph.

Kayo said he'd save 'em money by settling for a fifth, paid to him personally, thus leaving all of the other candidates high and dry. Such conduct hurts, especially as I am now one of the candidates myself.

I could go on, but you get the idea.

A lot of this shoving around for position will stop once it's clear, in some measure, how the public feels. And so the straw ballot is launched.

Candidates, get ready for a glimpse of where you stand with the voters!

GEORGIA WILL ACT ON FISHING PROTEST

Steps Will Be Taken Today in Face of Threats by Florida.

The state will take steps today toward settlement of difficulties arising over enforcement of Georgia and Florida taxes on out-of-state fish dealers, Chief Food Inspector T. F. Purvis said yesterday.

Purvis, who administers the Georgia law; Agriculture Commissioner Columbus Roberts and Downing Musgrove, executive secretary representing Governor E. D. Rivers, have been conferring the past two days on the matter.

The conferences followed receipt by Rivers and Roberts of telegrams from R. L. Dowling, Florida conservation commissioner, urging renewal of a reciprocal pact under which each state assessed $25 licenses against dealers from the other state.

The Georgia law now levies a license of $500 and Florida one of $2,000, officials said. Musgrove declared this state's law was adopted primarily to assure refrigeration and sanitation.

The reciprocal agreement was reached at a Valdosta, Ga., conference between Georgia and Florida legislators, and Governor Rivers in the spring of 1937.

The year-old discussion was renewed last week when Georgia officials sought to collect licenses from 150 or more Florida shrimp boats unloading at Savannah. Some of them were tied up.

In his telegraphed protests against collection of the tax in Georgia, the Florida commissioner said a similar law in his state had not been enforced, but would be in the future unless a reciprocal agreement could be reached "for the benefit of our joint interests."

TURKEY SEVERS LINK TO LEAGUE COMMITTEE

GENEVA, June 21.—(AP)—Turkey broke off relations today with the League of Nations' committee controlling elections in the Syrian district of Alexandretta, which lies along the Turkish frontier.

In a note to the League secretariat, Turkey charged the committee had failed to maintain "impartiality" in the registration of voters for an election at an undetermined date this summer to decide whether Alexandretta would be controlled by Turks or Arabs.

MRS. W. A. GOSSETT DIES IN 74TH YEAR

Body Taken to Bowling Green, Ky., for Funeral and Burial.

Mrs. Mattie McNeal Gossett, 73, resident of Atlanta for many years and widow of W. A. Gossett, former sales representative for a liquid carbonic company here, died unexpectedly yesterday morning in her apartment at 1407 West Peachtree street, N. E.

A native of Bowling Green, Ky., Mrs. Gossett came here more than 25 years ago. She made her home in Florida intermittently, but came back to Atlanta several years ago and had resided here since.

She was a member of the Jackson Hills Baptist church.

Surviving are one son, John I. Gossett; two sisters, Mrs. G. C. Soughwick, of Louisville, Ky., and Mrs. William Natcher, of Evanston, Ill., and one brother, Irving McNeal, of Bowling Green.

The body was taken to Bowling Green last night by H. M. Patterson & Son for last rites and burial.

ESCAPED CONVICT CAUGHT ON STREETS

A convict who escaped Monday from the River prison camp was recaptured on a downtown street yesterday by Detective J. J. Chester, who recognized him as a man he had arrested last January.

The escape, W. D. Turner, was serving a three-to-four-year term for burglary and possession of burglary tools. He fled the camp infirmary by ripping a hole in the roof. He was lodged in a cell at police headquarters.

ATLANTA, GA., JUNE 22, 1938.

A CRUCIAL ISSUE

The long-drawn fight of the southeast for fair treatment in the matter of railroad freight rates is rapidly drawing toward the crucial stage. Opening hearings on the issue have already been held by the Interstate Commerce Commission. The case for the southeast, under the leadership of the Southeastern Governors' Conference, was ably presented at a hearing in Birmingham.

On July 12, at Buffalo, N. Y., northern shipping interests will present rebuttal testimony, in an effort to defeat this attempt by the southeast to secure equal treatment in transportation costs.

The southeast must push the fight to a successful conclusion. To do this requires funds. Legal costs must be met and there are other unavoidable expenses.

Birmingham business and industry has already subscribed $10,000 for this purpose. A similar sum is asked of Atlanta. A committee composed of Lane Young, Eugene Harrington and Arthur Harris has been named to raise this amount here. That they will be successful almost goes without saying.

For the better part of a century southeastern industry has been handicapped, when competing with New England and northern rivals, by the unjust differentials in freight rates levied against this territory. In innumerable instances it costs the southeastern manufacturer more to ship his products to market than it does his northern competitor, despite the fact that the haul from this section is the shorter of the two.

Judge Edgar Watkins, counsel for the southern petitioners, states that the rate differential against Georgia on all commodity and class traffic averages 25 per cent. Under such a handicap it is nothing short of miraculous that many industries can continue to operate. Some have found they cannot and have closed down, or moved.

The southeast does not ask any advantages for itself, all it wants is equal treatment. Freight rates should be based upon a nation-wide system, cost depending upon length of haul. The present system of differentials according to territory of origin is fundamentally unfair.

Enactment of the wages and hours bill has placed the item of labor costs upon an industrial instead of a geographic basis. While the differentials in wages between north and south have never been as great as some have claimed, that difference will ultimately be entirely wiped out.

It is only simple justice that if such costs of manufacturing are to be regulated upon a national basis, other costs such as freight rates should also be fixed on nation-wide scale. There should be no advantage of this type for one manufacturer over another simply by reason of location.

Atlanta will undoubtedly quickly fill its quota of the fund required to continue this fight for fair play. The southeast has never had an opportunity such as the present one to remedy this condition. It will not be the fault of the southeast if the injustice is not quickly removed.

THE WAR ON MALARIA

Authorization of an additional $1,165,596 in WPA funds for a new state-wide malaria control program in Georgia gives fresh impetus to the fight against this disease. Already, more than three million linear feet of ditches have been constructed, draining more than 215,000 acres, and the malaria control work has been carried on extensively in the state since the start of the federal relief program.

The new funds will provide employment over a period of a year for at least 3,300 persons, under a new plan which involves transferring to the state program all local drainage projects which meet present requirements.

Human lives cannot be reckoned in dollars and cents, and this effort to lay low a disease which has taken its toll in death and suffering cannot be called wasteful by even the most severe critics of New Deal spending.

The beavers, put to work at building Idaho dams, will not of course enjoy a WPA status. Any lying down on the job and they will be made up into fur coats.

Specialists say the sufferer from D. T.'s doesn't necessarily see snakes. In the milder form, he may have his pockets filled with the Seven Dwarfs.

While a torch singer smouldered in a New York night spot, the ceiling fell. It's tough to bring down the house and be under it.

TO BURN OR NOT TO BURN

The fact that more forest resources are destroyed by fire each year in the south than are actually consumed industrially and in domestic usage, has firmly established the majority opinion that co-operative fire control is essential in timber and pulpwood development. Yet another school of thought is firm in its contention that an annual burning-over during January or February, to prevent the accumulation of brush, leaves and grass, is invaluable in reducing loss to mature growth when and if accidental fire strikes.

The inevitable result of accidental fire, according to the latter view, is that one third to one-half of the mature timber is destroyed, because of accumulated waste around the trees. Fires burn longer and naturally kill the trees. But if the land is burned over annually, leaves and grass do not accumulate. Fires sweep over the land more quickly and without serious damage.

"But," rejoins a spokesman for the United States Forest Service, "annual burnings result in understocked stands and lower yields per acre. Fully stocked stands cannot be had with annual burnings, because even light fires destroy the seedlings and young saplings. Such seedlings which survive and become mature trees owe their existence to fortuitous circumstances.

"The splendidly stocked young stands such as are now to be found in southeast Georgia are due to rigid exclusion of fire. Four million acres of privately-owned timber land in this section of the state is under co-operative forest fire protection, the cost of which is being met with federal, state, county and private funds. These owners, who are putting their own money into control work, believe it is a good investment."

After weighing one opinion against the other, it is obvious that co-operative fire control and conservation are essential if the south is to produce the required volume of forest products and, at the same time, maintain and preserve the source of supply. Annual burnings might protect the mature trees in case of accidental fire, but they do incalculably greater damage to the industry as a whole by destroying the mature trees of the future.

Latest reports indicate that the expanding paper pulp industry in the south will soon double the demand for rough wood. Mills in operation and under construction will require 5,000,000 standard cords annually in the production of wrapping paper, box boards, liner, wall board and other products. As inexhaustible supply of the essential raw material, pine wood, can be assured only through co-operative effort.

TOURIST PARADISE

Governor Rivers' vision of Georgia as a tourist paradise, expressed in a speech at Helen, Ga., Saturday, when he dedicated a bridge in the heart of the mountainous region, again calls the attention of the people of the state to the great value of park development.

The scenery of the northern state mountains is equalled in only a few sections of the country. It is one of the last playground frontiers of the nation. But it must remain a frontier until necessary development has been accomplished and the tourist provided with the comforts the modern-day traveler requires. Today, these mountains and forests are a woodsman's paradise—parts of them will always be that—but for the attraction of tourists the present system of parks must be expanded to provide the luxuries of "camping out" for the city-bred pleasure seeker. The state has constructed the model for the future in Vogel State park, but the co-operation of the state, each county and individual must be given wholeheartedly if Georgia is to realize the vision of the Governor.

It was in the Helen section that the first gold in Georgia was discovered and some mines there still yield this precious metal. But this gold will seem only small change if the tourist business can be properly developed. First, however, there must be provided the accommodations. Then must come advertising, to sell to the people of all the country the beauties of nature in the hills of the north Georgia area. Once seen by the vanguard of the tourist stream, there can be little doubt that others will follow in ever-increasing numbers.

The Governor has provided the vision. It is up to the people to complete the reality.

It must be momentum that keeps the Caissons rolling along in Spain, as the war has already been lost by all hands.

THE DOCTORS' BURDEN

(From the Chattanooga Times.)

Despite the warning made by an assistant surgeon general of the United States that the public would act to supply the masses of indigents with adequate medical care unless the medical profession itself acted quickly to solve the problem, members of the American Medical Association, meeting this week, probably found a more forceful argument for group action in the enormous relief load borne by doctors, the ever-increasing burden of free treatment and the inability of private medicine to serve the masses without aid.

Addressing the convention in San Francisco Monday, Dr. J. H. J. Upham, retiring president, and Dr. Irvin Abell, incoming president of the A. M. A., asserted that the demands of indigent and low-income groups for free treatment have become too great for the profession to bear alone. Dr. Abell estimated that the country's 130,000 physicians are donating $1,000,000 worth of services daily to underprivileged patients and said their contribution was "not equaled or exceeded by any agency other than the federal government." Without using the term "socialized medicine," both speakers acknowledged that the problem had "forced collective thinking" and had given rise to proposals that the need be met by federal funds.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

LION AND LAMB WASHINGTON, June 21.—The millennium, when the lion and the lamb shall lie down together, is very far from being at hand. But, although business and government have never been more unfriendly, the time is not yet past when Edward R. Stettinius Jr., chairman of the board of the United States Steel Corporation, and Thurman W. Arnold, official trust-buster of the New Deal, can take a cocktail off the same tray.

The meeting was a significant one—less because the New Dealers present assured the businessmen that the on-coming anti-monopoly inquiry would be fair and reasonable, than because it was part of a new and more promising effort to bring government and business together.

The get-together was arranged by Prentiss Coonley, a tall, sandy-haired, pleasant-mannered partner of Paul Shields, the powerful broker who is Wall Street's chief contact with the White House. At the suggestion of W. Averill Harriman, chairman of the board of the Union Pacific railroad and another White House friend, Coonley moved to Washington a month or so ago to promote better business-government relations.

With a desk in the Business Advisory Council offices at the Commerce Department and a handsome house in Georgetown, Coonley has been hard at work. Last Thursday evening, when Stettinius and Arnold dined with him, was a sample effort.

EVENING PARTY The other men present were SEC Commissioner Jerome N. Frank; Leon Henderson, the WPA economist; Thomas G. Corcoran; Clarence Francis, president of General Foods; George Sloan, of the Cotton Textile Institute, and Blackwell Smith, a Washington lawyer.

The party was not only distinguished, it was agreeable. Before and during dinner, shop talk was outlawed. And then, after coffee and cigars, there was a round table. Since the New Dealers were all men deeply interested in the anti-monopoly inquiry, while the businessmen were all potential victims, it was rather naturally the principal subject.

The voluble and entertaining Arnold assured the businessmen that the chief object of the inquiry would be to obtain facts. Yet with his delight in upsetting others, he could not refrain from predicting, from time to time, that the inquiry would not lack for exciting moments. Frank went further, stating that he thought it most important that "witch-hunting" be avoided, that the inquiry be modeled on a British royal commission. And Henderson supported Frank, pointing out that if businessmen could defend "restrictive" price policies, the inquiry would give them a forum.

The gathering was friendly. And while the differences in the New Deal and the business definitions of "witch-hunting" probably prevented any important results, at least the party broke up with each side better able to understand the other.

STILL BUGABOOS Since he first came to Washington, Coonley has held a series of similar meetings. His effort was suggested by Averill Harriman after the President's now long-forgotten fireside chat offering the olive branch to business. And although the olive branch seemed to be promptly withdrawn, Coonley has gone hopefully on, mixing bank presidents and left-wing economists, large industrialists and White House advisers.

It might be added that the real significance of the Coonley effort is to be found in its failure to produce real results. In the period since his meetings began, the relations between business and government have steadily worsened. The pump-priming bill, which would once have produced temporary business confidence, has only aroused more fear. The White House purge of the Democratic party is looked upon with excitable suspicion. And the anti-monopoly inquiry, in spite of all the assurances, remains a terrifying bugaboo, even for the men who dined with Coonley.

And all this is so although Coonley and many other influential men have tried in different ways to cure the situation. The answer would appear to be that the interests of the New Deal and of business are too contradictory to permit peace between them.

Indeed, the chances now are that the warfare between business and the New Deal will grow steadily more violent. The President is seeking a political realignment in which all conservatives will be herded into one camp and all liberals and radicals into another. If he is to win elections as the chieftain of the left-wing-liberal forces, he must make aggressive war on his enemies. Realignment is not the mother of compromise.

Riding
The Mudments.

There is an ancient negro man who is performing a highly creditable job on a Georgia farm. It is off the paved highway, on one of those pleasant, winding roads that meander through the less traveled, the more peaceful areas of the rural state.

Visitors in the neighborhood had found the road, however, impassable for their automobile following a series of heavy rains. Complaining that they were unable to get and return to the city, the old negro explained the difference between town and country.

"You all has pavemint," he said. "We has dirtmint in dry times and mudmints in rainy weathers."

Rain
In the Hills.

The Gordons and the Joneses went a-riding for the day. Headed toward the hills of north Georgia. First destination was a camp in the vicinity of Clarkesville.

The trip up was uneventful. Except for some extremely pleasant sociability within the car and a few distressing-looking wrecked cars in the ditch along the way. Saw five or six during the day, between Decatur and Cornelia. Wet pavement, faulty tires or too much speed probably among the causes.

But it rained. Nearly all day.

We arrived at Clarkesville and headed off the paved road for Skylake, our objective. Some 15 miles.

It wasn't so bad getting there. Oh, it had rained and the road had been pretty well churned up. But passable.

Delightful lunch and renewed acquaintance of old friends. Gem-like beauty of the setting—the lake and the hills and the white clouds draping their high places.

Nice, Cool,
Mud For Toes.

For a few miles it was touchous going. At last the car wheels barely gripped. And the rear end began to skid and to swing perilously near a 20-foot drop at the left. So the women folks got out and waded, barefoot, along the road. Said the cool mud felt delicious squishing between the toes.

A couple of tall and hefty boys of the neighborhood came along. So three of us put shoulders to the car while the fourth chauffeured. With the aid of pine seedlings and a good rock we got her out and back to safety. Gave the boys a two-mile lift to the old mill they were headed for.

And spent more pleasant hours —although it rained—riding north once more to Lakemont and back home again.

But once again the pleasant, friendly assistance of those two boys emphasized a truth about Georgians that has been shown myriads of times before.

Georgians are the friendliest, kindliest and most accommodating folks on earth. Meet them out in the country and you'll find this out. These fine people of the rural regions may act as though they are a bit shy, a little bashful, when you first meet them. But get to know them and they are the most hospitable, generous souls you can meet. They'll do anything for you, with a smile. And no trouble is too great to render a service to a stranger in distress.

There's grand old blood flowing through the veins of these real Georgians and, as always, blood tells. But you'll find them at their finest in the back farming areas, off the beaten trail. Get to know some of them, someday. It'll be an adventure of the spirit that will do you lots of good.

Twenty-Five Years Ago Today.

From The Constitution of Sunday, June 22, 1913:

"Providence, R. I.—A plea to the American people to 'frown down this attempt which is growing in the land' to attack the principles of the government, was made by Chief Justice Edward Douglas White, of the United States supreme court, in an address at Brown University, where he was awarded an honorary degree of doctor of laws at the annual commencement exercises."

And Fifty Years Ago.

From The Constitution of Friday, June 22, 1888:

"There was a large quantity of weather in the city yesterday and all of it was warm. Even the little rain that fell had a tepid flash about it—or there was a simoonic breath in the very breezes."

New York's Start.

In 1610 what is now the largest and greatest city in America was founded by accident. The vessel commanded by Adriaen Block, who had come over in the wake of the exploration expedition of Henrik Hudson to trade with Amerindians for furs, was wrecked on Manhattan Island and a fort was constructed to house and protect the crew while another ship was being built to take them home. That was the beginning of New York city.

One Word More

By RALPH McGILL.

The Czechs And Pittsburgh They make steel in Pittsburgh. Not many people remember they once made a nation there—tough, capable, well-armed little Czechoslovakia. "Made in Pittsburgh."

Today Czechoslovakia is very much in the news. The little nation which still is an enthusiastic republic is all but surrounded by the hostile forces of Europe.

I remember very well the cartoon that appeared in an English newspaper the day the German troops took over Austria. The map of that section of Europe was drawn to represent a wolf's head. In the open jaws was Czechoslovakia. The map doesn't look unlike it, in rough outline.

The Czechs will fight. They have the best little army in Europe. It is well armed, patriotic and will start shooting when ordered, no matter what the odds. Which explains, perhaps, why there hasn't as yet been any shooting.

Thomas Masaryk, who died in 1937, founded his country in Pittsburgh where he negotiated the Czech-Slovak treaty. Founded in Pittsburgh, the independence of the Czech-Slovak nation was proclaimed in Washington, D. C. Actually, the nation might be stamped, "Made in America," if one wished to be technical.

That the Czechs later repudiated some of the provisions of the treaty with the Slovaks is one of the slightly humorous features of its "made in America" character. On the basis that the treaty was signed on Sunday and that contracts signed in America on Sunday were illegal, the Czechs evaded a part of the treaty.

Originally it was Czecho-Slovakia. Today it is written Czechoslovakia. It has become one word now. The Slovaks, originally disgruntled, have about been won over. But for a while they didn't care so much for American contracts, especially those signed on Sunday.

Imagine It In Georgia— Thomas Masaryk was a great patriot. It was he who carried on the organization and the propaganda. It was he who formed the Czecho-Slovak national council and worked for it in all the nations making up the allied powers. And it was he who at last negotiated the treaty, called "The Pittsburgh Treaty" and who was elected president of a country he hadn't seen in four years, and at a time when he was more than 4,000 miles away. It was he who, when he had his republic going, resigned and turned things over to the younger Eduard Benes, the president who today worries along with his treaties and his minorities.

Imagine if in Georgia the Governor had to deal with four nationalities. At least three of which were hostile. The Polish minority, the Hungarian minority definitely are hostile. The three and a half million Germans in the nation, called the Sudeten Germans, are not merely hostile. They are openly and aggressively opposed. They call them Sudeten Germans only because they dwell by the Sudeten mountains. The name has no special significance.

Benes rules a nation which is made up, approximately, of 10,000,000 Czechs and Slovaks; 3,200,000 Germans, 700,000 Hungarians, some 550,000 Russians and about 20,000 Poles. The Czechs, who actually are the largest bloc, make up only about 40 per cent of the population. It is this mass of nationalities which Benes rules and which he has managed to keep in line despite the constant attrition of enemy propaganda and the almost constant hostile demonstrations on his borders.

In normal years the nation can feed itself. It has about 11,200 factories. It manufactures textiles, paper, furniture, machines and chemicals. She has plenty of coal and sells it. She has silver, copper and lead. Unfortunately, from the point of view of war, the iron ore is of low grade and needs some of the superior metal of Sweden, which metal the Czechs would not get in the event of war. Her beer is famous. So is her agriculture.

It is this trade which is, or can be placed, at the mercy of Germany. If Hungary can be brought into the German orbit the wolf's jaws would, as far as trade is concerned, be closed. Hamburg and the Danube outlets would then be closed and Czechoslovakia would then be left to die until she turned to Germany for help.

Hate Across Three Centuries In any state south of the Mason Dixon line it still is possible to find some hatred for the late William Tecumseh Sherman. In Ireland I was asking a man to explain the hatred which the Irish have for the English.

"Do you realize," he said, "that three hundred years ago—"

But I was gone. A man who couldn't forget something which had happened 300 years before was no proper person with whom to argue.

The Czechs and Slovaks remember back 300 years ago to the beginning of the Thirty Years' war. Their people are an older cultural unit than the Hapsburgs or Hohenzollerns.

The little republic faces a future that is as dark as any it has faced in its short history. It will fight. Don't ever forget that. Adolf Hitler will choose fighting. He will carry on propaganda, ferment internal trouble and seek to bring Hungary, Yugoslavia and Rumania into the fold. Czechoslovakia will fall without the firing of a gun if he is permitted to move on from Berlin to Bagdad.

That is something, at least, of Czechoslovakia, "Made in Pittsburgh."

Westbrook Pegler's column, "Fair Enough," which appears regularly on this page, will be missed for the next month. Mr. Pegler is taking a vacation.

The Kids Don't Attend Prayer Meeting While Dad and Ma Are Out Truckin'

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

Several popular magazines have made recent studies of American youth. The studies differ widely, except in giving the impression that youth, like sex, is a modern invention.

The only satisfactory way to judge the young of any generation is by comparison. When scientists make a fact-finding experiment, they need a control—some standard to go by. In this case the obvious standard is the older generation—the parents of the youngsters—and comparison shows that youth has changed only as the times and conditions have changed—only as all people have changed.

Magazine studies indicate that young people between 16 and 20—the last year in high school and the first three years in college—find their chief pleasures in the "funnies," the movies, music, dancing, and in meeting at the drug store or some such place for a soft drink. Their chief desires are education and a job. They go riding in cars. The majority smoke and drink—a little. They know more about sex and are less chaste than the previous generation.

If this is a true picture, it indicates only that youth is a product of the times—the environment created by public taste and indifference.

Do you remember what youngsters were like 30 years ago when you were one of them?

They were offered fewer entertainments, so they entertained themselves.

Most of them had work to do when they weren't in school, for there were fewer ready-made goods, fewer machines and fewer household tools.

Their chief concern was an education or a job. They had ambition and hope.

They had little money, but they didn't feel abused or resentful, for their wants were few.

They gave less thought to sex—chiefly because it wasn't brought to their attention and made exciting by movies, stories and illustrations in the public prints.

Few of the boys and none of the girls smoked. That change was effected by shrewd advertising and the "new freedom" that followed the War.

No decent young people drank. Drinking by the young began with prohibition, which made it "smart" to defy the law.

It is misleading to say that youth has changed, for every point of difference resulted from some change in our national customs which affected adults as much as youngsters.

The old-fashioned boy went to church, but Dad wasn't out playing golf. The old-fashioned girl didn't smoke or drink, but neither did her mother. Young people have changed because the tail goes along with the dog.

WORLD'S WINDOW

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

China's Tragedy.

NEW YORK.—Added to the frightfulness of a war that is being waged with the utmost ruthlessness by the Japanese, has been another major disaster: Floods. The dykes along the Upper Yangtze river have been broken and thousands of prosperous agricultural communities set under water. It is said that no less than 150,000 persons have perished by the action of the water so far.

In some places the water stands 30 feet high, which means of course, that an impassable barrier has been created against further Japanese advance. The expanse of water is so great that it is even too extensive for airplanes to fly across, and the Chinese aviation experiences difficulty in going over the floods for the defense of Hankow.

In the meantime, the Japanese high command has decided to intensify the war. Japan's resources are being strained to the utmost and it has become necessary to make a speedy end to the campaign. Hence the order has been given to the armies in the field to smash their way to victory and not to be squeamish, burn the villages, exterminate the inhabitants and lay the land waste. Break the Chinese morale. Paralyze the population with fear. Those are the slogans.

These orders are being strictly obeyed. I have a letter from a missionary, named Father Frericks, with whom I went to school. He writes me that "nothing in the history of wars in Europe compares in ferocity and cruelty with what is going on here" (in China). He tells the story of the occupation of a village in the Yangtze Valley, a village that was part of his district. There was a population of about 20,000 in the village and the immediate surroundings, small peasants, 700 of whom were Christians.

Pain, Despair And Anguish.

Except that a band of guerrilists fought a rear-guard action before the village, there was no resistance at all on the part of the peasants themselves. The band of guerrilists were strangers in the neighborhood. Then the Japanese marched in. Half an hour after their arrival the looting commenced. They entered the homes and cottages and began to violate the women and children. They slaughtered every man and boy they met. From every doorway came cries of pain and despair and anguish. Men, women and children running into the streets were knocked down and had their throats cut, or in the case of women, their abdomens slashed open by the razor-sharp swords of the Japanese soldatesque.

A mass of people, nevertheless, managed to flee. This crowd, which the missionary estimated at half the population, fled inland, into the opposite direction from where the Japanese had come. But they had counted without the foe. The Japanese had taken their precautions. A column of infantry had marched around the village to intercept possible fugitives. The Japanese infantry waited till the panic-stricken mob of villagers was well outside when they set upon them from two sides. First the girls were separated from the rest and taken into the neighboring woods, and then all those women and children and men were bunched in a heap and machine-gunned till not one remained alive. Afterwards, Japanese soldiers waded in the blood of the crowd of slain humans to see if any had survived. If they found anyone still breathing, they kicked his brains out with their boots.

And so, writes Father Frericks, it goes everywhere. No prisoners are taken. . . . Every house is burned. . . . Everything portable is carried off. . . . Every inhabitant murdered. . . .

And yet, this is not war yet. This is merely "the incidents in China," according to the Japanese official spokesmen. Cities are being annihilated, populations exterminated, and no war yet. What will it be like if war were really declared?

Talmudic Tales

By DAVID MORANTZ

(Based upon the ancient legends and philosophy found in the Talmud and folklore of the Jewish people. From time to time David Morantz will also answer in this column questions he has been asked on the religion, customs, ceremonies, institutions, etcetera of the Jews.)

THE IMPORTANCE OF EDUCATION.

A rabbi once met a friend rushing down the street, leading his small son by the hand.

The man appeared to have dressed in great haste and the rabbi could not understand his unkempt appearance, so he asked:

"Why the great hurry? And why do you appear on the street dressed in this way?"

"My son is nearly late for school," he replied, "and nothing must stand in the way of enabling the child to get to school."

The Talmud stresses in many places the importance of education.

No sacrifice was considered too great for a father to suffer in order to give his son an education.

"A community," says the Talmud, "that neglects its schools is sure to perish."

"The world depends upon its school children."

Searchers Take to Boats in Hunt For Bodies in Montana Train Wreck

Searchlight Mounted on Bridge 50 Miles Away, Where One Body Has Been Discovered; Toll Mounts to 42 Dead and Missing.

MILES CITY, Mont., June 21.—(AP)—Searchers went out in boats late today and floodlights were mounted on a bridge in a widening hunt for additional bodies from Sunday's flood-wreck of the Milwaukee railroad "Olympian," in which 42 persons were counted dead or missing.

Thirty-one bodies have been recovered and officials announced they had identified 25 of these. In addition, 17 persons were reported missing. Officials expressed belief some of these were among the unidentified dead.

More than 100 men dug in the debris at the wreck scene on Custer creek, 26 miles east of Miles City, struggling through the muddy "sleeper B" in the creek bed.

Meanwhile, local authorities opened an inquest investigation of the crack train's plunge through the bridge.

The boat search was ordered by Sheriff R. P. Lane, of Terry, on the theory some bodies were carried downstream.

The bridge watch was at Glendive, Mont., 50 miles away on the Yellowstone river, where one body was discovered Sunday night.

The task of identifying the dead progressed slowly.

Physicians said all of the remaining injured probably would live. Of 26 persons in hospitals today, they said only six would require more than another day or two of treatment.

BARBARA HUTTON'S SON THREATENED

London Paper Reports 'Precautions' Against Kidnaping

LONDON, June 21.—(AP)—Wealthy Countess Barbara Hutton Haugwitz-Reventlow was reported tonight by the Daily Mail to have "taken precautions" against a threat to kidnap her two-year-old son, Lance.

The report said Scotland Yard had ordered police to keep a special watch at all ports and airports for the arrival of "a suspected person" and had sent out photographs and a full description of the suspect.

The person presumably was coming from abroad to attempt to carry out the kidnap threat.

GEORGIA TO SHARE NEW POWER FUNDS

$275,000 Received by Federal Commission; State May Get One-Fifth.

Georgia is expected to share generously in the additional appropriation of $275,000 made available recently to the Federal Power Commission, Percy H. Thomas, regional director, announced yesterday.

Under the provisions of the bill providing the allocation, it is stipulated that all but $20,000 must be spent outside of Washington. Commissioner Thomas said that it is probable Georgia will receive about one-fifth of the amount.

No specific use for the appropriation is contemplated here, the money being used for the advancement and improvement of the FPC program in general. However, with the signing recently of the Lea bill, placing supervision of the natural gas industry in the jurisdiction of the commission, it is probable that part of the funds will be used to set up necessary departments to handle added duties.

While the bill does not give the FPC power to increase rates, unless a new schedule agreeable to natural gas utilities is promulgated, the commission will supervise operations of the various companies and will act as arbiter in cases where disputes arise over the question of rate increases.

Director Thomas also announced the reappointment, effective today, of Basil Manly as a member of the commission at Washington.

DIVIDEND IS SET BY DECATUR FIRM

Building, Loan Group to Pay $35,000 to 2,600.

A 5 per cent dividend per annum on savings was declared yesterday by directors of the Decatur Building and Loan Association. More than $35,000 will be distributed to 2,600 shareholders for the current six-month period.

Wheat Williams, executive manager, said several thousand dollars will be added to the association reserves after the dividend and operating expenses are paid. A financial statement shows that on June 1 the association had in excess of $1,500,000 invested in DeKalb county mortgages. Its assets have increased more than $250,000 since January 1, and now total more than $1,600,000, the statement revealed.

DE OVIES WARNS OF DICTATORSHIP

Declares Individual Personality Vital to Democracy.

A warning against dictatorship was sounded yesterday by Dean Raimundo de Ovies, of the Cathedral of St. Philip, in an address before the Civitan Club.

"Unless we adhere to constitutional guarantees, to a clear separation, yet harmonious collaboration between the executive, the judicial and the legislative branches of the American government, dictatorship can happen here," he said.

Explaining that he saw no probability of dictatorship in America yet, he warned "that danger is upon us when we begin to accept in any form, any of those social creeds that dim the importance of individual development and freedom of action for individual personality."

GOOD MORNING

By LOUIE D. NEWTON

THIS SUMMER.

Georgia has every reason to expect a summer of plenty of activity and much pleasure. With an abundance of office-seekers explaining why they will succeed and why the others will fail or have already failed, we will not be short on political activity. The newspapers, the radios, the billboards and other media of publicity will keep us well informed and entertained on what is happening and will happen on September 14.

And the young people have a very full and fine summer before them with many camps, assemblies, house parties and outdoor games without number. One wonders if there was ever a day when young people had so much provided for their entertainment. And a fine set they are. Just about the time you begin to fear lest it will spoil them, you come upon a group of them and all your fears are dismissed by their genuineness.

For the entertainment of hoi polloi we have the national pastime—baseball—in every community are going good in Georgia, and are going good in the league clubs in the state. The league clubs with night games available almost anyone can enjoy baseball. It adds no little zest to one's spirit to know that after a hard day's work he can go out and enjoy a game of baseball in the cool of the evening. I am happy to learn that local baseball teams in the smaller communities are now playing night games, thus bringing delightful entertainment to the friends who are not in reach of the league games.

And, of course, there is always that wonderful summer joy of digging a can of bait and sitting by some shady nook for a bream or bass. Men may come and men may go, but the love of fishing remains as one of the grandest gifts to the human race.

The churches are not overlooking the summer as one of the greatest seasons of the year for effective ministry. Protracted meetings, camp meetings, vacation Bible schools, institutes and conferences will enrich the experience of countless persons who come under the preaching of the gospel.

And best of all, most of us will be working from dawn till dusk, happy in the fellowship of those who try to share in the world's work, playing as much as we can and rejoicing with all that rejoice and seeking to make a little brighter the path of those who may walk in the valley of sorrow.

OUSTED FIREMAN RECEIVER NAMED

Wife Goes to Court in Anticipation McAfee Will Get $2,450.

The legal difficulties of C. A. McAfee, discharged city fireman, developed another angle yesterday in Fulton superior court.

Judge John D. Humphries appointed Byron Hilley, a lawyer, as McAfee's receiver on petition of Mrs. Margaret McAfee, his divorced wife, who claims he owes her $850 in back alimony.

Mrs. McAfee's action was brought after the supreme court reversed a decision upholding McAfee's discharge by the board of firemasters April 27, 1937. McAfee has brought mandamus proceedings against the city to force payment of salary since then, amounting to $2,450.

Attorney B. L. Milling is contending for the fireman that the supreme court's ruling makes the city owe him that much, but City Attorney Jack C. Savage holds that the high court ruling merely means the matter must be tried on its merit by a jury in superior court.

However, in anticipation of McAfee being paid the $2,450, Mrs. McAfee asked the court to name the receiver and to restrain the city from paying any money to McAfee. Judge Humphries issued a temporary restraining order and cited McAfee to show cause Friday morning why the order should not be made permanent.

Convinced that almost anything can be made into a woman's hat, Miss Jane Grant, of 688 Moreland avenue, N. E., tried a phonograph record—and with great success. It turned out ot be the broken record, however, for Miss Grant dropped her hat, and it cracked right in the middle. The break only made it more becoming, however, as she reveals while listening to the radio. If a phonograph needle should be applied to the hat, Miss Grant would hear, "I'll Always Be in Love With You," and in swing time too.

Tech R.O.T.C. Students Get Leave--A Thoroughly Wet One---at Boston

By WILLIAM G. HASTINGS,
Special Constitution Writer.

BOSTON, Mass., June 19.—(By Mail.)—Georgia Tech Naval R. O. T. C. students landed here today after a fog-bound voyage from New York and a four-mile trip in an open boat from anchorage to landing pier in which they were overtaken by a torrential rain.

The appearance the boys made in their wet and bedraggled clothes was not one that would please Tech officials. But it did not stop these "salts" from enjoying their shore leave.

The Northwestern unit was taken aboard Saturday in New York and the Harvard crew is due aboard Monday. A fine spirit has developed between the Tech and the Northwestern students. Southern and western boys seem to have more in common than those from other parts of the country, or perhaps they are less reserved.

Vaccination for All.

To the dismay of newcomers, naval students and civilians alike, the ship's doctor has insisted upon vaccination for all. As the cruise shortly heads for Cuba, he deems smallpox immunity essential. Those who are unable to exhibit recent scars have to be vaccinated. Even the most logical arguments were of no avail.

This correspondent hadn't been vaccinated since he was five years old, but that one, to him, seemed sufficient for life. So he exhibited his scar, which is about the size of a silver dollar, and put up his most persuasive sob talk. The doctor nodded courteously, smiled most engagingly, called the pharmacist's mate and in a second your correspondent had lost the battle of the vaccination.

While waiting for the launch to return to the ship this evening, one of the Tech students sneezed. Another quickly admonished him to muffle it, saying, "Don't let the ship's doctor hear you—all that he knows is castor oil and vaccination!"

Distaste for Therapy.

Not an accurate appraisal of the eminent doctor's knowledge, maybe, but a fair estimate of the boys' opinion of, or distaste for, certain methods of therapy practiced by him.

Berthing today in Boston harbor, the ships on the cruise were the unwitting cause of ruining a sail boat race that was just getting under way. More than a nundred small sail boots were crossing the starting line as the 500-foot Arkansas dropped anchor right in the middle of their course. Not only did the ship block the course, but its huge bulk deflected the wind. One sailor, not to be cheated of his precious breeze, continued directly across the course of the Arkansas, forcing the ship to full speed astern to avoid ramming the small craft, which sailed triumphantly across the bow of the battleship, probably with a figurative thumbing of the nose.

Others in less advantageous positions had to content themselves with various imprecations, some audible on the deck of the Arkansas and others expressed in sign language. It's amazing how profane sign language can seem to those with guilty consciences, for, after all, the naval vessels completely ruined the sail boat race!

Pig Iron Chicken Coop.

As one tiny craft limped past, shorn of its breeze by the huge bulk of the Arkansas, a member of the crew yelled, "Get that pig-iron chicken coop out of my way."

The training cruise continues this week with Yale students embarking at New Haven. From there the detachment will proceed to Havana, Cuba, being due there Sunday.

MRS. M. C. TOMPKINS' FINAL RITES TODAY

Funeral services for Mrs. Caroline Augusta Tompkins, 93, of 1034 Cleburne avenue, N. E., who died Monday at her home after a lengthy illness, will be held at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon in Spring Hill, conducted by the Rev. James Kennedy. Burial will be in West View cemetery.

The widow of M. C. Tompkins, one of the first men to establish a printing shop in Atlanta following the War Between the States, Mrs. Tompkins was a native of Mystic, Conn., coming here more than 75 years ago. She was a member of the Church of the Epiphany.

GROUP HOSPITAL PLAN DESCRIBED

Kiwanians Told Service Is Best for Persons of Modest Means.

Group hospitalization provides the best means of giving medical attention to people of modest means, Dr. L. C. Fischer, president of the United Hospitals' Service Association of Atlanta, told members of the Atlanta Kiwanis Club yesterday.

Reporting on the progress of the Atlanta association, Dr. Fischer said it is a non-profit organization "to help that great group of people who can't help themselves."

21 Days of Care.

The plan, which has the approval of the Medical Society and American Hospital Association, allows families to pay a certain amount each year, in return for which they may receive 21 days of hospital care during the year in one or more admissions to any one of the participating hospitals.

Participating hospitals in Atlanta are the Crawford W. Long Memorial Hospital, Emory University Hospital, Georgia Baptist Hospital, St. Joseph's Infirmary and Piedmont Hospital.

Dr. Fischer explained that prior to 1937 the association was considered as an insurance company, but added that now it is a purely civic organization that operates without profit.

He said the plan originated eight years ago when a committee was appointed by various foundations to investigate the possibility of better hospital care for less price to those who cannot hospitalize themselves.

Medical Care Lost.

The committee, he continued, found that the cost of medical care to be $3,500,000,000 a year, the same amount spent by women on cosmetics and chewing gum.

Following Dr. Fischer's address, Mark B. Wooding, memory expert, gave several demonstrations on remembering names and numbers.

He said any person may cultivate a good memory by cultivating the laws of attention, observation, association of ideas and repetition. He advised the Kiwanians they should not be afraid of crowding out anything in their memories, since the average person has a capacity for remembering 30,000 things each day for 50 years.

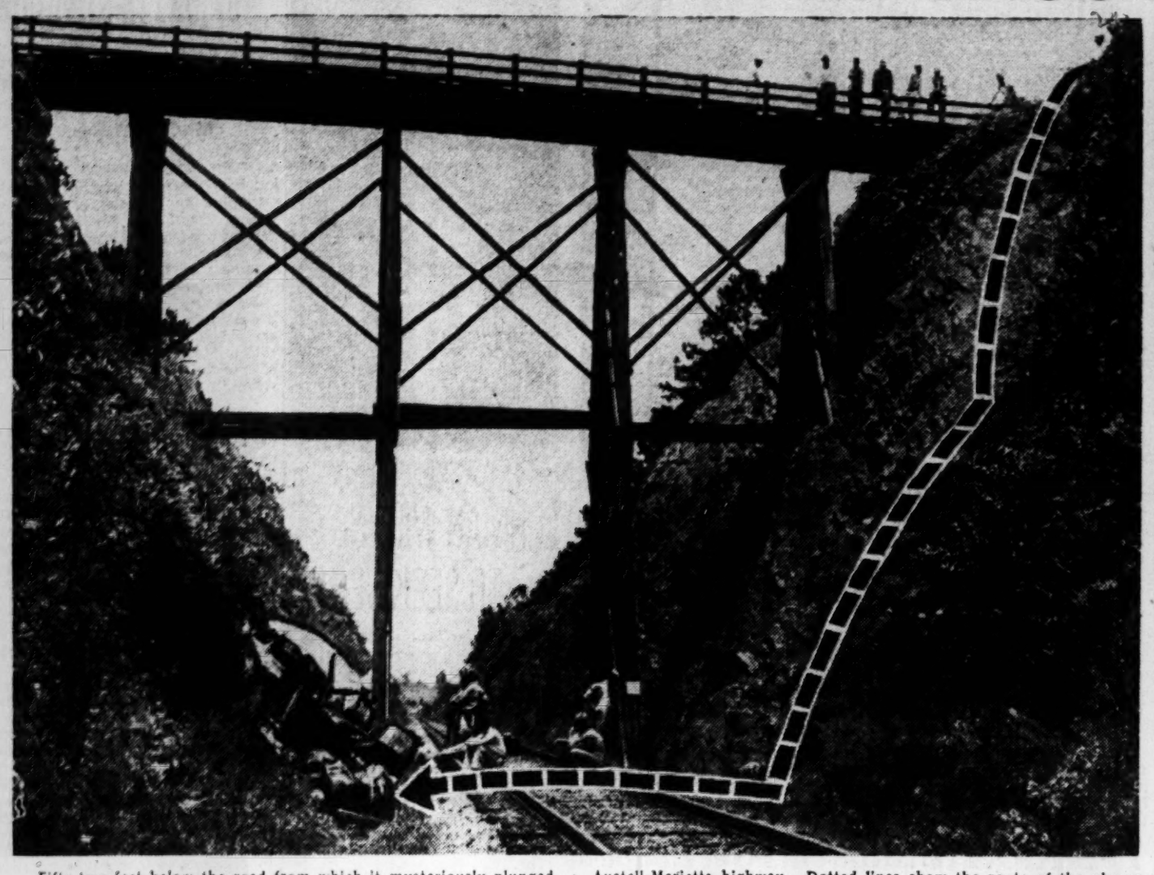

The memory expert advocated the practice of reviewing things to be retained before going to sleep each night.

ELEVEN MAJOR CLUES UNCOVERED IN AUTO DEATH PROBE

Fifty-two feet below the road from which it mysteriously plunged, the automobile of J. Ed Peek, of Atlanta, was found at daybreak yesterday in this cut where the Seaboard railroad underpasses the Austell-Marietta highway. Dotted lines show the route of the plunge as it was reconstructed yesterday by police. Peek's body was found 12 feet away from the car, his wife's two feet away.

Here is the wrecked car as it was found yesterday morning. Special investigators are shown examining the blood marks and searching for fingerprints. The automobile was bought recently by Peek, who used it in his trips about the state as he sold supplies to county governments. The plunging car had hurtled across the railroad tracks, Peek and his wife having been thrown clear of the wreckage.

At the crossmark on the map, J. E. Peek and his bride of three months were found dead early yesterday after a trip to Carrollton. The cross shows the spot where their automobile left the road on the Marietta-Austell highway at a narrow, wooden overpass spanning the Seaboard Air Line railroad tracks. Mr. Peek left his daughter in Marietta Monday, went to Carrollton where he was last seen about 4 o'clock Monday afternoon. County police are seeking to pick up a trace of him somewhere in the Carrollton vicinity between that time and the time of his death, estimated at about 1 o'clock yesterday morning.

J. ED PEEK.

Kerosene-drench clothing of J. Ed Peek and his wife were examined by the coroner's jury at Marietta. J. S. Frey, left, and J. P. Cheney, right, foreman of the jury, are shown examining Peek's coat, reeking from the fumes of kerosene. No trace of kerosene was found in the death car.

Here is a view of the noose that was knotted tightly about the neck of Mrs. Peek when her body was found. It is being shown to a coroner's jury by Mayes Ward, Marietta undertaker.

Three Law Enforcement Agencies Assemble Facts Indicating Murder

Scene of Crash Yields Startling Hints as Methodical Investigation by Officers Reveals "Accident" Is Apparently Attempt To Cover Crime.

Eleven major clues confronted Cobb county police, deputy sheriffs and state troopers last night in their investigation of the mystery deaths of J. Ed Peek and his wife early yesterday morning that led them to believe the couple had met with foul play.

Facts developed during the day's investigation brought out that—

1. An automobile was heard speeding away from the scene of the accident shortly after the Peek car crashed into the 52-foot railroad cut. Hugh Arthur Brewer, 21, who heard the crash and the speeding car, also said he saw automobile lights at the bridge about 12:50 o'clock yesterday morning, shortly before he heard the crash.

Kerosene on Clothes.

2. Clothing on both bodies had been soaked in kerosene, although no kerosene was found in the automobile. Mr. Peek's coat, which was saturated, lay between his body and that of his wife.

3. A trail of blood led up the asphalt road toward Marietta a quarter mile to Liberty Hill church. In front of the church, on the road, was a large bloodstain. A similar stain was on the pavement at the bridge, leading police to surmise the car had stopped and that blood had run from the back seat under the door and over the running board to the road.

4. Mrs. Peek's right shoe was on the floor of the rear seat. Her left shoe has not been found.

5. Strangulation apparently caused Mrs. Peek's death, statements from the Cobb county physician, Dr. W. H. Perkerson, and a Marietta mortician indicated. A six-foot rope was knotted tightly around her neck when she was found, while another similarly knotted length lay two feet from her body under the running board of the demolished auto.

Oats in Hair.

5. Mrs. Peek's kerosene-soaked hat was full of oats, which also were matted in her hair, as if she had been dragged through a field.

6. The number of wounds in the back of Mr. Peek's head hardly could have been inflicted in the fall of the automobile down the sheer precipice, according to Dr. Perkerson.

7. Large pool of blood was found on the floor rug of the rear seat, while only a small splash of blood was found on the front seat, which appeared to have been unoccupied. The steering wheel, which possibly might have been damaged if a body had been thrown about in the front seat, was not damaged.

8. Statements that the death car had rolled "very slowly" over the narrow space between the guard rail of the overpass and a ditch about 12 feet from the edge of the precipice were supported by tracing tire prints over a small rise at the edge of the gorge. The tire print showed up on the other side of the rise. If the car had gained any momentum the wheel would not have touched the other side before going over the edge, police said.

Daughter's Statement.

9. Mr. Peek's 18-year-old daughter, Helen, said he "might know something on someone who might want him out of the way." She later said she had "changed my mind" and was sure he "couldn't have known anything that serious."

10. A second statement from Helen that he had been despondent over his financial condition, which she amended later to say that he had "had very high ideas lately about getting a new start." She said he had been "quite optimistic" and had picked out a new home on Cascade road, intending to buy it.

11. There was no evidence of robbery or note to indicate a suicide pact. In Mr. Peek's pocket was found $5, while Mrs. Peek's wedding rings were on her finger, which was broken.

ATLANTAN, BRIDE KILLED IN MYSTERY

automobile drive past his home, quickly gathering speed, heading toward Austell.

The crash worried Brewer and with the first light of dawn he walked over to the railroad pass to investigate. There he saw the wrecked automobile and the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Peek.

Brewer hurried to a telephone and summoned Cobb county police, who sped to the scene in their cars.

The belief that an automobile had skidded out of control on the highway and crashed over the steep embankment to death and destruction was dispelled when police, stooping over the woman's body, found the blood-stained noose, fashioned from half-inch new rope, tightened about her neck. Deputy sheriffs of Cobb county and state police were summoned by the county police.

Methodical Investigation.

A methodical investigation of the entire scene then developed more startling evidence.

Another section of the rope from which the noose apparently had been cut was found on the running board.

Blood stains were found on the highway leading toward Marietta, indicating that dead bodies had been hauled along the pavement in the automobile. Police trailed these blood spots, spaced about 75 feet apart, to the Liberty Hill church, about a quarter of a mile away, where a small blotch of blood indicated that the automobile, with the bleeding bodies, had been parked.

Retracing the path of the blood spots back to the bridge, the police found another small pool of blood, indicating that the car with its gruesome burden had paused there temporarily.

The car, police reasoned, had then turned to the left off the highway and pushed along a narrow path between a guard rail at the edge of the 52-foot embankment and a ditch, turned again to the right and then pushed over the embankment. The ignition lock of the car was turned on but police say the engine was dead when the car plunged.

No Sign of Skid.

Had the car skidded off the highway accidentally, police pointed out, the driver would have thrown on the brakes and the earth and grass would have been torn and scraped by skidding wheels. Not a blade of grass was disturbed along this narrow path. There was no sign of scraping wheels. The force of a skidding car, police say, would have wrecked the guard rail.

Identified by Daughter.

Convinced that a crime, and not an accident, had caused the death of the Peeks, police moved the bodies to Ward Mayes' funeral parlor in Marietta, where the bodies were identified by Helen Peek, 18-year-old daughter of Peek by a former marriage. The girl was working as cashier in a bowling alley in Marietta and hurried to the funeral parlor when the news of the tragedy sped by word-of-mouth through Marietta. Peek had been partially identified by letters found in his pocket and in his wife's pocketbook.

At an inquest yesterday afternoon, the girl said that she had visited her father and stepmother at their home in Atlanta over the week end and that they had returned to Marietta with her Monday. Her father, she said, had planned to go to Carrollton, where he was to try to collect a $300 bill owed him for road scrapers that he had sold to Carroll county.

Sold Counties Equipment.

Her father, the girl said, sold equipment of all types to county governments, his work carrying him over the northern part of the state. Mrs. Peek, her stepmother, the girl said, traveled with her father, relieving him at the wheel of the automobile when he tired.

Hamp Chappell, commissioner of Carroll county, last night verified that Peek and his wife had been in Carrollton Monday afternoon, but said that the $300 owed by the county was discussed only casually.

"In my estimation, Peek seemed to be tight when he was in my office," Chappell told police.

Late last night, police had uncovered no one who saw the Peeks after they left Carrollton.

At the inquest, Dr. W. H. Perkerson, county physician of Cobb county, said:

"In my opinion, Mrs. Peek was strangled. The rope had been drawn taut about her neck. There was a welt where it had rubbed the skin. The blood vessels in her face were bursted, indicating that she had been strangled."

No one, according to Dr. Perkerson, could determine how the bruises on the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Peek had been inflicted.

"I believe that they were caused by some instrument, but what type of instrument I could not say," he said.

The coroner's jury was shown the crumpled hat and coat of Peek soaked heavily with kerosene.

"I do not know of anyone in our family ever having used kerosene for any purpose, whatsoever," Helen Peek told the coroner's jury.

Clothing Saturated.

Mayes Ward, who had supervised the embalming, said that the clothing of both Peek and his wife had been saturated heavily with kerosene. No odor or trace of kerosene could be found inside the car, police said.

Police told the coroner's jury a pool of blood had been found on the rug in the back of the car; that matted hair and blood had been found on the left rear door of the automobile as though a head had struck the door as the car catapulted down the embankment to its destruction; that matted hair and blood had been found on a railroad track, indicating that the bodies were still in the car when it struck the bottom of the cut and that indications were that the bodies had been hurled out of the automobile as the impact jarred the doors open.

Chest Crushed.

Indications were, according to the police, that both bodies had been in the rear of the car. Although Peek's chest had been crushed by some terrific impact, the steering wheel was not damaged, discounting earlier theories that this chest injury had been caused as he was hurled against the steering wheel.

In Mrs. Peek's pocketbook were found a nickel and four pennies.

In Peek's pockets were found some small change and a five-dollar bill.

Stories of unrestrained beer drinking by Peek Monday morning were unfolded to the coroner's jury.

"He had four or five bottles while he was with me and before I started him along the road to Carrollton," the girl said.

Her employer in the bowling alley is Bill Chappell, son of the Carroll county commissioner. The girl and Bill Chappell both told the jury that they had known each other for about a year and that she had been offered the job when she had told Chappell she needed work. The girl is a student at Girls' High school in Atlanta and started work in the bowling alley about a week ago when the summer vacation started.

"Bill Chappell told me later on Monday afternoon that he had met my father on the highway between Douglasville and Villa Rica, and that they had a bottle of beer together," the girl said.

Chappell verified this to the jury.

"Mr. and Mrs. Peek drank two bottles of beer, while I drank one," Chappell said. "It appeared to me that they had been drinking quite a bit."

At several points in evidence and testimony laid before the jury, it was freely discussed that Peek's children by his former marriage had objected to his marriage to the second Mrs. Peek, who before had been Miss Mattie Lou Coursey. The first Mrs. Peek had been dead about eight months when Peek married again.

"My father was very happy with our stepmother," the girl told the jury. "However, he had threatened to commit suicide, once or twice. He had told me that if it were not for us three children, he would end his own life as he had very little to live for."

Letters Indicate Debt.

Letters found in Mrs. Peek's pocketbook and in Peek's pocket showed him to be heavily in debt.

One, from United States Senator Richard B. Russell, showed that efforts had been unavailing to save Peek's home at 601 Hope street, in Atlanta, from seizure by the Home Owners' Loan Corporation when he had become delinquent in his payments.

A report by an agent of the HOLC attached to Senator Russell's letter said that Peek had made no effort at all to meet any payment on the home for which he had obligated himself.

A letter from a neighborhood druggist informed Peek that his credit had been stopped. Other letters were from individuals demanding payment of outstanding bills.

Funeral services for Mr. and Mrs. Peek will be delayed, pending investigation into the cause of their deaths, it was said. Arrangements probably will be completed tomorrow, funeral directors said.

Mr. Peek is survived by his son, John, 21; two daughters, Helen, 18, and Katherine, 10; two sisters, Mrs. M. E. Grant, of 1386 Athens avenue, and Mrs. H. R. Wilson, of 601 Hope street; and two brothers, W. A. Peek, of 865 Highland avenue, and H. L. Peek, of Memphis, Tenn.

THREAT OF SUICIDE TOLD BY DAUGHTER

A suicide threat once voiced by J. Ed Peek was taken as a jest by his daughter, Helen, she told the coroner's jury yesterday. She said he had been despondent over finances and told her that if she could support "the baby," her 10-year-old sister, Katherine, he would kill himself.

The threat was made after he married his second wife, the former Mattie Lou Coursey, of 44 South Evelyn place, Helen said. She said her father had been "in the best of spirits" recently, however.

PEEK TOOK STAND AGAINST J. D. LEE

J. Ed Peek once befriended J. D. Lee, now serving a life term for the slaying of Benny Lichtenstein in 1931. Helen Peek, 18-year-old daughter of Mr. Peek, said Lee used to live at their house and was well thought of by the family.

She told the coroner's jury Lee's guns were found at their house. "We were all very shocked when we heard of the shooting," she said.

Mr. Peek was a star witness for the state in the Fulton superior court trial of Lee.

Death Strikes Family Four Times In Four Months---Mrs. Peek Latest

Mrs. J. E. Coursey Loses Her Daughter in Mystery Tragedy; Mother, Brother and Sister Had Gone Before.

Death has struck four times in four months in the family of Mrs. J. E. Coursey, 58-year-old housewife, whose daughter, Mrs. J. Ed Peek, was found dead with her husband yesterday near Austell.

Deprived of her mother, a sister and a brother, all of whom have died recently, the elderly, graying woman "turned to the Lord" for spiritual and mental help last night, her husband said. She remained in her room in a small bungalow at the end of quiet South Evelyn place, N. W.

Coursey told of the death of Mrs. Coursey's mother March 1 at Bolton. The mother was Mrs. J. C. Irelan.

A few days later, Mrs. Coursey's brother, Eugene Irelan, who had driven to Atlanta from his home in Jacksonville, Fla., to attend the funeral, was killed en route to his home, as was his sister, Mrs. Clara Brown, of Atlanta. Mrs. J. L. Robertson, another sister, who also had accompanied him on the return trip, was injured seriously.

"The death of a mother is enough to prostrate any woman," Coursey said. "And the deaths of a brother and sister and a mother in one week is enough to ruin anyone's life.

"Yet, my wife trusted in the Lord . . . and has held up remarkably well under the strain. Then, this morning, a neighbor came over and told her about our daughter's death."

A member of the Fortified Baptist church, Mrs. Coursey has seven children besides the daughter. They are J. H. and J. C. Coursey, both of Atlanta, and R. R. Coursey, of Palatka, Fla., and Argie, Edna and Madge Coursey, who live at home, and Mrs. N. K. Chamberlain, of Los Angeles, Cal.

The daughter who died was Mattie Lou, known as Lou by her friends and members of the family. She had lived with her parents before marrying Mr. Peek.

PEEK LOST HOME IN FORECLOSURE

Letters found on the person of J. Ed Peek and in Mrs. Peek's purse indicated that he was deeply in debt and had lost his home at 601 Hope street in a foreclosure on a loan by the Home Owners' Loan Corporation.

A letter from a HOLC official said Mr. Peek had "made no effort at any time to meet any of his obligations," and that he had married a second time "against the protests of his children." His first wife died in February, 1937. He was married again March 18, 1938, in Jonesboro.

WATCH THE COLOR OF YOUR SKIN

A Yellow Tint may Mean You are Bilious and Need Calotabs.

The trained eye of your physician can tell at a glance that you are bilious or, as we Southerners say, you have so-called "Torpid Liver." To make sure of his diagnosis he looks for a coated tongue, poor appetite and digestion. In the absence of more serious symptoms he tells you that you are bilious and need a little calomel.

When you see the symptoms of billiousness why wait until you are really ill? Take Calotabs, the improved calomel compound tablets that make calomel-taking a pleasure. Calotabs act like calomel and salts combined helping Nature to expel the sour stagnant Bile and washing it out of your system.

One or two Calotabs at bedtime with a glass of water,—that's all. Next morning your system feels clean and refreshed, your head is clear, your spirits bright, and you are feeling fine with a hearty appetite for breakfast. Eat what you wish and go about your work or pleasure.

Genuine Calotabs are sold only in checker-board (black and white) packages bearing the trade mark "Calotabs." Avoid imitations. Family package only twenty-five cents; trial package ten cents at your dealer's. Adv.

LEGION IN GEORGIA REPORTED AT PEAK OF 11,600 MEMBERS

Americanism Committee Calls for Establishment of New 350-Bed Hospital.

WAYCROSS, Ga., June 21.—(AP) Eternal vigilance "to preserve for posterity the principles of justice, freedom and democracy" was urged upon American Legionnaires at their state convention today by the Legion Americanism committee.

Other recommendations included:

1. Establishment of another veterans' hospital in Georgia to "contain at least 350 beds."

2. Award of scholarships as prizes in a state-wide essay contest, and closer co-operation between Legion posts and schools, "particularly in connection with patriotic occasions."

Meanwhile, three candidates were being mentioned prominently for state commander. The election is scheduled Wednesday morning. The three were Logan Kelley, of Buford; R. P. Kennard, of Rome, and Hoyt Brown, of Baxley.

Atlanta has entered a strong bid for next year's convention.

State Commander J. P. Kelly reported the Legion membership at its highest point, with 11,600 members and 142 posts in Georgia.

"The work of the department on Americanism and for child welfare has been outstanding," he said. "The Legion's stand on Americanism has been a strong barricade against further advance of Fascism or Communism. The work for the children has been of inestimable value.

"The Legion is standing for and is setting a fine example of the principle that American citizens should be American. We need no hyphenated loyalties in our nation. Legionnaires are manifesting an undivided loyalty to this great country."

Bill Comer, Florida department commander, brought greetings from that state and emphasized "individual responsibility for carrying out the Legion program."

James Daniel, national vice commander, paid tribute to the national program of the American Legion and "the fidelity with which departments and posts are carrying out the program."

Melton Speaks.

Quimby Melton, a past commander of the Georgia department, proposed suppression of "all subversive groups" and deportation of agitators and criminal aliens. He also praised the Legion's Americanism program.

Meanwhile, Mrs. A. H. Lawo, of Raleigh, Tenn., southern vice chairman for the auxiliary, discussed the need for child welfare in an address to the Georgia department holding its eighteenth annual convention in conjunction with the men.

"We must have juvenile education as well as adult education to instill right ideas in young people," she said. "Be sure where your child is."

Another speaker was Clifford Sego, of Augusta, who spoke in the interest of the Legion loan fund.

Reports were also submitted by John M. Slaton on hospital No. 48 at Atlanta and by Mrs. T. B. Murphy, of Augusta, on hospital No. 62.

Mrs. Thad Lee, of Waycross, welcomed the meeting and Mrs. C. S. Pittman, of Tifton, responded.

A resolutions committee composed of Mrs. H. M. Dixon, of Richland, as chairman, and Mrs. A. C. Mitchell, of Savannah, and Mrs. C. R. McQuown, of Atlanta, was appointed.

Feast at Barbecue.

Following the business session, the auxiliary joined the Legionnaires in a barbecue, and during the afternoon the women took a sight-seeing tour of the city and attended teas.

The Legion auxiliary elected the following as its nominating committee to report at tomorrow's session:

Mrs. Gladstone Pitt, of Atlanta, chairman; Mrs. J. B. Petty, of Dawson; Mrs. McQuown, of Atlanta; Mrs. Dan Davis, of Macon, and Mrs. W. B. O'Quinn, of Jesup.

Major General Frank Parker, of Illinois, proposed last night that the Legion become a "consultant body for the American government on national issues." Speaking at the opening convention session, Parker, a national executive committeeman, said the American Legion was now at its peak and added:

"It can because of its judgment and experience make itself a consultant body, passing on national issues, making recommendations, keeping itself free from politics, keeping itself clear of partisanship.

"Such a consultant body would be of outstanding value. It would be heeded by those we elected to represent us. It would be heeded by all citizens."

A Legionnaire's Notebook

WAYCROSS, Ga., June 21.—(AP) William T. (Bill) Comer Jr., of Orlando, Fla., accompanied by Department Adjutant Howard Rowton, of Palatka, Fla., brought greetings to the Georgia convention from the Florida department, and their trip to Waycross, by air, was not without difficulty.

In a plane piloted by Pete Sones, aviation chairman for Florida, they were en route to Waycross when they encountered a storm near Folkston. They went off their course in a northeasterly direction, and landed temporarily at Brunswick, waiting for the storm to break. They were delayed for several hours.

The Florida department commander flew from Waycross to Jacksonville Monday to attend a meeting of the American Legion Luncheon Club, and followed the airlanes back here today for the remainder of the Georgia convention.

Waycross presents all the color, glamor and excitement that has been characteristic of Legion conventions in the 20-year history of the service organization in Georgia. Street corner quartets, impromptu watermelon cuttings on the marble steps of the federal building, pranks and jests from sun-up to sun-up, have added spice to the more formal program.

It has been 16 years since Waycross entertained a state Legion convention. It was in 1922, when the Legion was comparatively a baby organization, and when its influence and permanency were doubtful, that Waycross was host. It is estimated that attendance at the current convention is double that of the 1922 meeting.

One of the most impressive scenes of the convention was the presentation of a cross of poppies, made by Georgia's beloved poppy lady, Miss Moina Michael, of Athens.

Detonations that have been heard throughout Waycross each night for the past week served their purpose. "What's that terrific fuss?" Fire Chief H. C. Thackston was asked by visitors. "To make people do just what you have done," the fire chief replied. "When folks ask questions about something they're interested. That fuss is the forerunner of the biggest fireworks display Waycross has seen in many a year." The fireworks exhibit was presented tonight in connection with the annual drum and bugle corps state competition, at Ralph Newton field.

Hotels are overflowing, rooming houses are taxed to capacity, cots have been placed in auditoriums and other centers, and while accommodations are at a premium, every possible means is being employed to guarantee every visitor a comfortable place to stay. The Waycross fire department has joined in the "host" brigade. Legionnaire firefighters from Atlanta, LaGrange, Savannah, Adel and Newnan are "bunking" at Waycross fire department headquarters, the Waycross firemen having moved out of their dormitory. Incidentally six Waycross firemen served in the World War: Percy Walker in the aviation corps, Ike Register in the engineers; Sharp Wright and Bright Aldridge in the artillery, "Speedy" Kohn in the motor transport corps, and Frank Douglas in the infantry.

Former Atlanta Woman Describes For Book How Poe Sold 'Raven'

Dr. Mary Brent Whiteside, Once Associated With Oglethorpe University Press, Reconstructs Sale Scene for 'Muse,' Monumental Work of 5 Books in One Volume.

An article by a former Atlanta woman, describing how Edgar Allan Poe sold "The Raven" is included in "Muse," an anthology to be released today which contains the first reproduction of the original manuscript of the famous poem.

The author is Dr. Mary Brent Whiteside, a granddaughter of the late Senator Hoke Smith and nationally known as an editor, lecturer, writer and poetess.

A native of Shelbyville, Tenn., Dr. Whiteside moved to Atlanta about seven years ago and for two years was connected with Oglethorpe University as editor of the Westminster-Bozart Magazine, a literary publication issued by the University Press.

Lives in California.

Leaving Atlanta she moved to California, where she also has been engaged in literary activities of various kinds. Acquaintances who knew her during her Atlanta residence describe her as one of the outstanding writers in recent southern history.

On a bleak winter day in Philadelphia nearly 100 years ago, Dr. Whiteside's story relates, Poe, a morose young poet, entered the offices of Graham's Magazine with a manuscript of the long, macabre composition.

With his hair unclipped and his suit sleazy, Poe was destitute. His frail wife was ill, near death. He needed money desperately.

Graham rejected "The Raven" but submitted it to his staff. In a sombre, sonorous voice, Poe himself read the dolorous, hypnotic lines to that odd audience of shirt-sleeved clerks and ink-smudged printers.

They, too, rejected it but, out of pity for Poe, one of them took up a collection of $15 for the poet. He was Alexander McKelly, press foreman for Graham, and it was through his admiration for Poe that one holograph of "The Raven" was preserved for the future. A year later, Dr. Whiteside said, "Uncle Alex" McKelly had become foreman of the American (Whig) Review in New York when, through the offices of James Russell Lowell, that magazine bought "The Raven" for its second issue.

The Review paid $10 for the poem—about the same amount that Milton received for "Paradise Lost"—but it first appeared in the New York Evening Mirror of January 28, 1845, with this note:

"We are permitted to copy (in advance of publication) from the second number of the American Review the following remarkable poem by Edgar Poe."

Version Revised.

The copy from which the Mirror's version of the poem—later revised somewhat for its appearance in the review—was set in type might have been pitched into the wastebasket, as usual, except for "Uncle Alex."

He presumably rescued it for, in 1936, after being hidden for nearly a century, the copy in Poe's neat script turned up in the possession of Robert Bruce McKelly, in Sidney, Australia.

Not until 1927 was any complete holograph copy of "The Raven" known to exist, Dr. Whiteside said in her history of the manuscript. In that year, the family of Mrs. Edith D. Whitaker in Philadelphia sold a copy for a fantastic figure.

"The insurance carried by its owner on one of these is $200,000"—20,000 times what Poe received for it—"while its market value is estimated at more than twice this amount," said Dr. Whiteside.

Carlisle Straub, of New York, publisher of "Muse," estimated that collectors have spent $25,000,000 on Poe since the poet's death. Owen D. Young's collection alone, Straub said, may be worth millions.

Straub himself exudes facts about Poe. He has been immersed in the lore of the man for 15 years off and on, ever since he conceived the idea for the "Muse" anthology, a monumental work of five books in one cover.

Drove With Kilmer.

Into the World War at 16, driving an ambulance with the late Joyce Kilmer, the author of "Trees," Straub was out again at 20, having flown with the late Vernon Castle, the dancer, in the Royal Air Force.

At 21, he was playing around Greece with the new King, Alexander, whom he and his devil-may-care pals had met by the simple trick of going to the palace and asking to see his majesty.

Back home in New York, he became a silk salesman—a very bad one, he admits—and subsequently wrote verse and advertising and designed books.

About three years ago, he and his wife, Devora Lovell, acting as editor, went to work on "Muse." They opened an office in Chicago two years ago and came on to New York to finish the job.

They scanned 55,000 manuscripts, Straub said, and selected 787 for publication. Finally "Muse" appeared with appreciations of Poe, his works and an anthology of verse which Straub believes is the most complete representation of contemporary professional American and English poets ever published.

Manuscripts of "Muse" material will be presented tomorrow to the New York public library.

HOUSING PROJECT SOUGHT BY MACON

$1,000,000 Project Planned; Real Estate Men Fight Work.

MACON, Ga., June 21.—(AP)—City council decided tonight a slum-clearance project is needed here, and Mayor Charles L. Bowden appointed a Macon Housing Authority immediately.

Action of council, taken unanimously, was the first step toward obtaining a low-cost housing project on which approximately $1,000,000 is expected to be spent.

Bowden appointed J. Clay Murphey as chairman of the housing authority for a five-year term. Others named were W. T. Anderson, four years; George R. Williams, three years; Wallis Cobb, two years, and Ernest D. Black, one year.

Several Macon real estate men have opposed the project, and the Macon Real Estate Board has previously taken action opposing slum clearance here.

WOMAN IS JAILED IN WRECK DEATH

Buford Victim's Son-in-Law Charges Murder.

BUFORD, Ga., June 21.—Mrs. Helen Peters, 22, formerly of Canton, was in the Gwinnett county jail in Lawrenceville tonight, awaiting a preliminary hearing on a murder charge in connection with the automobile accident Sunday when Elbert Whiting, 43, was killed.

Mrs. Peters, a resident of Buford only six months and employed in a local cafe, was named in a warrant sworn out by Jesse Garrett, son-in-law of Whiting. She was arrested late today in Hall county, near Gainesville, by Police Chief C. D. Merriman, of Buford, and state patrolmen.

A preliminary hearing will be held at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon before Justice of the Peace V. M. Beard. Frank Simpson, solicitor of the Piedmont circuit, will represent the state.

Mrs. Peters denied she was driving the Whiting car, Chief Merriman said.

MILLS AT LINDALE TO CLOSE FOR WEEK

ROME, Ga., June 21.—Agent R. D. Harvey, of the Lindale division of Pepperell Manufacturing Company, announced today the Lindale mills will be closed from June 24 to July 4. It has been the custom of the mills to shut down for a week at this time each year to make repairs on machinery and give employes a vacation.

The mills will reopen on the same five-day-per-wek basis which went into effect a few weeks ago after the mills had operated several months on a two-day-per-week schedule.

COMPROMISE ENDS MELLON TAX CASE

Board Rules Any One May Arrange Affairs To Ease Levy Burden.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—(AP)—The government's $3,000,000 income tax case against the estate of Andrew W. Mellon simmered down to a $668,000 settlement today.

The agreement brought to an end four years of litigation. The case, too, saw the former secretary of the treasury accused and cleared of charges that he attempted to defraud the government in drawing up his income tax returns for 1931 at a time when, as head of the Treasury Department, he was the nation's chief tax collector.

Although finding the fraud accusations groundless, the Board of Tax Appeals did come to the conclusion that Mellon underpaid the government by $485,809 in making his return for 1931, and to this amount added $182,000 interest. Today's settlement was in the nature of an agreement that this finding be accepted as final and not be appealed by either side.

The fraud charge was based upon a Mellon statement that in 1931 he sold certain stocks at a loss for the purpose of reducing his taxes. The Board of Tax Appeals held this procedure perfectly proper, asserting:

"Anyone may so arrange his affairs that his taxes shall be as low as possible."

ROOSEVELT TO RUN IN 1940--HAMILTON

And He'll Be Beaten, Republican Chief Declares in Alabama.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., June 21.—(AP)—John D. M. Hamilton, chairman of the Republican national committee, forecast today "President Roosevelt will be a candidate for re-election in 1940 and will be defeated."

In an interview on the eve of the Alabama Republican convention, Hamilton said Roosevelt "will be an easy man to beat, because his program can't possibly work out."

"If business gets better, it will be despite Mr. Roosevelt and the New Deal," he said. "It's a certainty that some of the men around the President don't want recovery because they see in the failure of the capitalistic system an opportunity to change our form of government."

The Republican chairman forecast a gain of 35 to 40 house seats and six or eight senators for his party in the November elections.

"We hope to get enough Republicans here after the last two years of Mr Roosevelt's term to have a strong party in this state" he said.

Landslides at Ellijay Balk Road Construction

ELLIJAY, Ga., June 21.—Due to excessive rains and a peculiar rock formation, contractors are battling continuous landslides on the highway about a mile east from here.

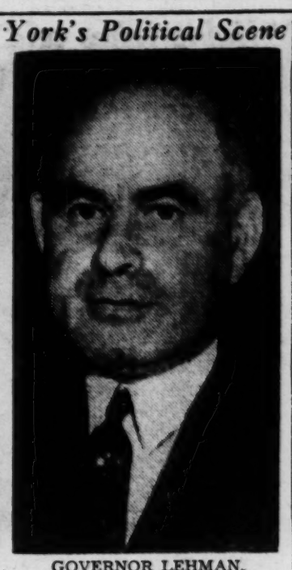

The grade around a mountain above the Cartecay river near East Ellijay has been the scene of repeated slides, which require much time and expense to remove.

The road is a part of the west-east route from Chattanooga to Augusta via Gainesville and Athens, and the contractor is using state prison labor in its construction.

Key Figures on New York's Political Scene

JOHN J. BENNETT JR.

GOVERNOR LEHMAN.

Elbert Woman To Mark 98th Birthday Today

ELBERTON, Ga., June 21.—(AP) Mrs. Rossie A. Craft will observe her 98th birthday here tomorrow, not at all sentimental about the problems of this generation.

Life's too easy for people, she said, and she wonders if a little "more work wouldn't be good for them."

Mrs. Craft continues actively interested in modern affairs, and is alert even to the small details of the operations on the farm.

It was her hope to celebrate tomorrow by having her children, grandchildren, great-grandchildren and great-great-grandchildren assemble in a family reunion, but her doctor objected. The big crowd might be too exciting, he explained. Mrs. Craft was unable to recall at the moment the exact number of her family.

She has lived in Elbert county all her life. She has held membership in Rock Branch Baptist church 82 years, and still carries a Bible her late husband picked up on the battlefield at Malvern Hill.

Mrs. Craft talks of the old days when she had to spin yarn and weave her own cloth, and she chuckles when she recalls celebrating Christmas with firecrackers made of goose quills packed with gunpowder, but sh is keenly interested in modern affairs.

Automobiles, she says, are fine, and leave her a bit breathless, but she feels certain a spirited saddle horse is more fun.

FLORIDAN SHOT DEAD SITTING ON PORCH

Shotgun Blast Strikes Former Member of Legislature in Head.

MARIANNA, Fla., June 21.—(AP) Sheriff W. L. Watford said William W. Wester, 59-year-old naval stores operator and former member of the state legislature, was shot and killed tonight as he sat on the porch of his home at Inwood, 10 miles east of here.

The sheriff said Wester was felled by a shotgun blast fired from an automobile. No one saw the shooting, the officer said.

Watford said Mrs. Wester and several small children were in the house at the time, but could not describe the car or say how many persons were in the machine.

The shot struck Wester in the head.

Lehman made known his availability for the senatorial post.

The attorney general said: "Governor Lehman has made a great Governor. He'll make a great senator, too. The Democratic party will honor itself when it nominates him for the United States senate. I am for him 100 per cent.

Lehman's third term as Governor of New York will expire next December 31.

Cool Toward President.

The stocky chief executive referred to by President Roosevelt as "my good right arm" when they both were in the state service, has shown a coolness toward the President in recent months. This first became apparent when he opposed Roosevelt's supreme court reorganization bill.

Lehman came to the governorship in 1933 as successor to the newly elected President Roosevelt, and accepted nomination for his third term two years ago on the President's insistence, and as a result of a draft movement by national party leaders.

Lehman is now regarded as one of the conservatives in the state Democratic organization, as was the late Senator Copeland. Copeland's term will expire in 1941.

His death made necessary the election next November of two senators from the state for the first time, inasmuch as the term of Junior Senator Robert F. Wagner expires next December 31. Whether Wagner will run for re-election is a matter of conjecture.

Whether the move today by the New York Governor, who has been a powerful vote-getter, could be regarded as a challenge to the national administration remained for subsequent developments to determine.

If the administration is to regard the court bill fight as the sole test of loyalty to the White House, there is no doubt that Lehman would be classed outside the ranks of unwavering New Dealers. His letter to Senator Wagner, Democrat, New York, at the climax of the court bill fight opposed that measure in no uncertain terms.

However, there was no word tonight as to the White House attitude toward Lehman's candidacy, and it was recalled the New Yorker has been a firm supporter of many Roosevelt policies.

BIRTHDAY DANCES HIT BY CHURCHMEN

Cumberland Presbyterians Also Sternly Criticize Roosevelt Champagne.

RUSSELLVILLE, Ark., June 21.—(AP)—Birthday dances and champagne receptions with which were linked the name of President Roosevelt today drew stern criticism from the general assembly of the Cumberland Presbyterian church at its closing session here today.

"Because of the exemplary nature of every act of the chief executive of the land, we feel that this assembly would be untrue to its trust if it did not voice its uncompromising disapproval of both dance and of social drinking," said a report of the assembly's committee on prohibition and law enforcement.

The commissioners adopted the report unanimously.

The committee reviewed in the report a newspaper account of the serving of champagne at a reception which followed the wedding of the President's son, John, to Anne Lindsay Clark, at Nahant, Mass., last Saturday. It also concurred in a strongly worded memorial from the Lebanon (Tenn.) Presbytery asking an expression against the use of the President's name in connection with the birthday dances.

Of these annual events, the committee said attention should be directed "to the fact that much of the income credited to these dances seems to have been received from donations obtained from businessmen and others through sale of tickets. We are reliably informed that probably not more than 50 per cent of those purchasing tickets attend the dances. Thus the dance receives credit for the full returns, a considerable part of which is the charitable gift of Christian people."

POLICE AID IS ASKED IN SEARCH FOR GIRL

CHIPLEY, Ga., June 21.—J. L. Garrett, of Route 3, has enlisted the aid of police authorities in the state in search for his daughter, Doris, 15, whom he said, had been missing since last Wednesday.

The girl was described as follows: Five feet five inches tall; weight, about 120 pounds; dark blond hair; gray eyes; wearing a white dress with black figures, and white tennis shoes.

SENATOR COPELAND'S FINAL RITES HELD

SUFFERN, N. Y., June 21.—(AP) In a brief, solemn funeral service in Senator Royal S. Copeland's old green-shuttered colonial home near here, his friends—silk-hatted politicians and grave-faced neighbors—said farewell to him today.

The funeral cars drove then about five miles to Mahwah, N. J., where the body was buried in the Copeland family plot in a 200-year-old cemetery in the sight of the Ramapo mountains.

For some 45 minutes before the funeral, the mourners passed one by one through the small parlor in which the senator's body lay beside great banks of red carnations—the flower he had worn every day as long as his friends could remember.

The Rev. Charles P. Bispham, an Episcopal rector, said a prayer and delivered a eulogy.

"We should weep not so much for the senator's family as for our country in its loss of such a man," he said. "To him his country was greater than politics; his duty transcended self-interest."

Another Bad Break For R. L. Crittenden

Life has been a series of bad breaks for Robert L. Crittenden, Jonesboro accountant, and he had another one yesterday to add to his collection.

Ickes and Bride Return to U. S. In Happy Mood

NEW YORK, June 21.—(AP)—Secretary of the Interior Ickes arrived on the Ile de France tonight with his red-haired bride, the former Jane Dahlman, 25, and said, "I've never before come back from Europe in such a happy state of mind."

The cabinet officer, looking much younger than his 64 years, affably paced the deck with his bride while newsreel cameras ground, but had little to say about state affairs.

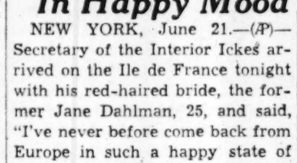

Eager to get back to Washington, he said he had "studiously avoided reading the newspapers since their surprise marriage May 24 in Dublin, Ireland. After a day or two in New York, he said, they would go to his country place, Headwater Farm, at Olney, Md.

Mrs. Ickes, a tall, blue-eyed Milwaukee girl who worked in the Department of the Interior for eight months after her graduation from Smith College, said she had known the secretary "since I was very young."

They chose a ceremony abroad, she said, because "we wanted it quiet."

State Highway Units Stage 'Homecoming'

Divisions of the State Highway Department are staging a "home-coming" this week, W. L. Miller, chairman of the state board, said yesterday.

With the completion of two new floors to the highway building on Capital square, all divisions will be brought to headquarters, Miller said. The rural post roads division, which had been at East Point, already has moved its books and records to the remodeled highway building, and the planning division, housed in the Bona Allen building, will move this week end.

BLOODWORTH ENTERS LEGISLATIVE RACE

MACON, Ga., June 21.—(AP)—Luther U. Bloodworth, local attorney, entered the race for state legislator from Bibb county today.

Bloodworth previously served in the legislature in 1935-36. He is active in civic and church affairs in Macon, and was elected president of the Exchange Clubs of Georgia at the recent convention in Griffin.

Others in the race in Bibb are Mrs. A. F. McGhee, Benning Grice and B. F. Merritt.

Accuser Is Ordered To Pay Court Costs

THOMASVILLE, Ga., June 21. City court is no place for the settlement of petty spites, Judge B. B. Earle said yesterday. He coupled his statement with a warning that persons in future who file actions against others, and later change their minds, must pay the court costs.

A negro faced trial in Judge Earle's court yesterday, accused of stealing wine. The complaining merchant sought to withdraw the charges after a jury was drawn. Judge Earle refused to allow the case to be nol possed unless the merchant paid the costs.

The jury returned a verdict of not guilty, with a recommendation that the merchant pay the costs.

HIGH COURT HEARS 'OUSTER ACT' PLEA

Appeal Briefs Filed by State in Action Involving Regents.

The Supreme Court of Georgia was asked yesterday to rule on validity of the "ouster act" of the 1937-38 special session of the legislature under power of which appointees of ex-Governor Talmadge were replaced.

The court received the case on an appeal from the ruling of Judge James B. Park, of the Ocmulgee superior court circuit. Judge Park allowed a quo warranto action brought by Miller S. Bell, of Milledgeville against his fellow townsman, Jere N. Moore.

Governor Rivers had named Moore to succeed Bell as a member of the state board of regents.

Regent Bell was serving a term to expire in 1941 when Moore was appointed.

In his quo warranto petition, Bell assailed constiutionality of the so-called ouster act, contending it was a special measure and therefore could not repeal the general statute providing for appointment of members of the board of regents.

In his decision overruling Moore's demurrer to Bell's petition, Judge Park held the proclamation by which Governor Rivers called the legislature into special session did not authorize the legislature to pass any law to removing any public officer.

COAL OPERATORS DENY TERRORISM

Two Declare No Funds Used To Fight Miners.

LONDON, Ky., June 21.—(AP)—Two coal operators dismissed as defendants by the government took the stand as defense witnesses in the Harlan labor conspiracy trial today and testified the membership of the Harlan County Coal Operators' Association never had authorized use of its funds to fight the United Mine Workers of America.

Charges against the operators and their companies—Elmer D. Hall, of the Three Point Coal Corporation, and C. B. Burchfield, of the Black Star Coal Company—were dismissed yesterday.

Both Hall and Burchfield said they did not know what, if any, were the duties of Ben Unthank, called the association's "chief field agent" by the government. The conspiracy indictment charges Unthank directed company deputies in terrorism campaigns against union men.

Conflicting Pictures Are Drawn Of Prison Farm Conditions Here

"Any Man Who Has Morals Is Corrupt When He Comes Out," Committee Probers Told; "No Complaint" Is Terse Testimony of Another.

Conflicting reports on conditions at the city prison farm were heard yesterday by a special committee of city council appointed to investigate Mayor Hartsfield's recent charges that the stockade is an "ungodly mess."

J. W. Prichard, of 1882 Peachtree road, who said he spent three days at the prison after being sentenced for speeding, told the committee that "any man who has morals when he goes in there is corrupt when he comes out." Walter Andrews, a former foreman at the farm, likewise criticized certain phases of the prison.

J. C. Ellis, superintendent, declared that "the habitual customers make their own hell, if there is any," although he described the prison as "overcrowded" and recommended enlargement of the main building and separate hospital wards for diseased prisoners.

Robert Atkinson, of 559 Plum street, who said he was intentionally sentenced to the stockade on two occasions to make investigations for an insurance company, declared he recalled "few so-called innocents who were not just as hard as the rest." J. W. Ellington, of 481 Payne avenue, and a cook at the prison, defended the food, but pleaded for larger accommodations and a better hospital ward.

The special committee was an outgrowth of Mayor Hartsfield's request that he be allowed to appoint a non-political supervisor of prisons for the purpose of rehabilitating inmates of the farm.

Members of the special committee, which was appointed by Mayor Pro Tem Robert Carpenter, are Alderman Ed Gilliam, chairman, and Councilmen J. Allen Couch and C. L. Chosewood.

Prichard charged that during the three days he was in the prison he "learned many crooked ways of making money which I might have tried if I had been susceptible."

He said there was "plenty of gambling going on" and added that young prisoners might be led astray.

With reference to sanitary conditions, he declared that "cigarets were passed from lip to lip and picked up out of the dirt because the prisoners had no other way of getting them. He also criticized the food, asserting that "a silver dollar would cover each particle of food given the prisoners."

Prichard explained that he went to the farm on Thursday, June 2, and remained there until Sunday because he was not allowed to contact his family by telephone.

Superintendent Ellis told the committee that approximately 75 per cent of the inmates at the farm are "regulars" and that only about 1 per cent of the remaining 25 per cent were youngsters who might be corrupted by their association with the more hardened prisoners.

Aid Young Offenders.

"I figure that most of the 25 per cent who are sent to the stockade occasionally know about as much as those who are there constantly and that they would not be contaminated by their contact with the habituals," he asserted.

He said every attempt was made to aid the young offenders who were there for the first time.

One of Mayor Hartsfield's main contentions was that the first offenders should be separated from the hardened criminals.

Superintendent Ellis explained that there are considerably more prisoners now than in 1934, since the number of women inmates have practically doubled. He said 102 more prisoners, including those at the station house, are being fed each day than in 1934.

He said the "regular customers" include about 60 per cent of the white women, 80 per cent of the negro women, 75 per cent of the white men and 50 per cent of the negro men. Most of these, he declared, are Atlana citizens, although he said a few were hoboes and transients.

"Tried To Please."

Asked if he would recommend a personnel manager or superintendent of prisons to keep the first offenders from being corrupted by the more hardened, Superintendent Ellis said he would "answer that question later." Committeemen had explained that he could withhold his answer if he desired.

In reply to a question as to whether he was dictated to by members of the public works committee, the superintendent said he "always tried to please them all if possible when they asked me to do certain things."

Ellis said he knew of no way of eliminating the regular inmates unless the judges began a practice of binding them over to the county courts so that they could be sent to the public works camps.

In his recommendations for improvement of the farm, he said the main building should be widened by 20 feet, costing approximately $2,500, and that a hospital should be provided to keep the diseased prisoners in separate wards.

Superintendent Ellis also was questioned concerning other phases of prison administration. He outlined the type of food served the prisoners each day and the cost of operation. He said the dairy was abandoned by 1930 "because politics got it."

"Less Sorghum" Urged.

Alderman Gilliam expressed the opinion that vegetables could be grown on the farm for Grady hospital and Battle Hill to save the cost of buying them.

Andrews, who said he was "fired" from the stockade, advocated "more vegetables and less sorghum" on the prison menu. He likewise criticized the methods of mixing bread and other phases of the cooking set-up.

He also declared the men at the camp are not paid sufficiently and charged that the guards had to eat the same type of food as the prisoners. He said he had never been allowed to explain to a committee why he was "fired."

Atkinson asserted the prison was "clean and inspected daily." He said it was the young men who made most of the noise and used the worst language.

He revealed that he served 15 days on one sentence and seven days on another, both of which were "purely intentional" for the purpose of making the investigation. He said no one at the camp knew his real motive for being there.

Atkinson described the treatment as "very humane" and added that card-playing largely was for pastime and that there was no real gambling.

MONTICELLO, Ga., June 21.—(AP)—William H. Key, veteran legislator, is opposed for re-election to the state house of representatives from Jasper county by Sam P. Farrar, a farmer.

Walter Estes, of Rex, and S. E. Davidson, of Mountain View, also are candidates for this office.

It was explained today that Wells was omitted inadvertently from an unofficial roster of candidates published last Sunday.

ROME BUS FARES CUT TO FIVE CENTS

Reduction From Eight Cents Will Become Effective July 1.

ROME, Ga., June 21.—Bus fare in Rome will be reduced from eight to five cents July 1, city commission decided last night as it adopted a proposal of the Georgia Power Company, which had been initiated by the Rome Central Labor body.

Under the plan, a five-cent bus fare will be in effect, with a curtailment of the schedule during early morning and afternoon hours, subject to a 90-day trial, during which either the city or the power company may return to the regular contract.

Opposition to the proposed ordinance to create a city abattoir was voiced by a delegation appearing before the commission, with John Maddox, former city attorney, as spokesman. He presented two petitions, one signed by 84 farmers and the other signed by 45 city meat dealers and butchers, opposing the abattoir proposal.

The commission took no action on the protest. First Commissioner H. H. Keel announced Dr. W. H. Sutton, state veterinarian, is expected to speak here soon on the proposad abattoir.

An ordinance prohibiting sale or explosion of fireworks of any kind within the corporate limits of the city was adopted.

Air Mail Cachet at Milledgeville Declared Best Designed in Nation

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., June 21. The Milledgeville air mail cachet has been selected as the best designed in the nation during observance of National Air Mail Week.

Dr. E. A. Tigner, local postmaster, was notified by letter that the local cachet had placed first in the national vote contest sponsored by John J. Haag, cachet editor of Stamps.

"Your cachet is the winner by a large margin," said the letter. This is the second national honor won by the cachet. It was selected as the outstanding air event cover for May by the Cover Club board of review several weeks ago.

Civic clubs, organizations and individual citizens took an active part in the vote-raising campaign.

The cachet, a beautiful and distinctive piece of art, was designed by Dr. Tigner and drawn by Vernon Layton, Sandersville artist.

The design included the official seal of Milledgeville, pictures of the old state capitol, now Georgia Military College; pictures of John Milledge and Abraham Baldwin, for whom the town and county were named, and unfurled flags of the nation, state and city.

During Air Mail Week, Dr. Tigner had several thousands of air mail envelopes printed with the cachet engraved in natural colors. Many citizens wrote President and Mrs. Roosevelt and invited them to visit the city in the future.

COURT SILENCES EFFORTS OF HAGUE TO ATTACK ERNST

CIO Counsel Smiles as Jersey Mayor Protests to Judge in Vain.

NEWARK, N. J., June 21.—(AP) Presentation of charges that Mayor Frank Hague abrogated free speech and assemblage in Jersey City ended in federal court today with the mayor seeking in vain to make another attack on CIO Counsel Morris L. Ernst.

On his feet in the jury box, the tall and lean vice chairman of the national Democratic committee was silenced by Judge William Clark.

"Judge, I would like to be permitted to make a public statement involving Mr. Ernst," said Hague, pointing at Ernst among the CIO and American Civil Liberties Union lawyers pressing an injunction suit against Hague and fellow officials to restrain them from interfering with those organizations' activities in Jersey City.

Ernst, accused by Hague of instigating a CIO-Communist plot to seize control of the United States, smiled at Hague's protest.

"Not from the witness stand," Judge Clark cautioned Hague.

"It involves the court," Hague went on. "I have proofs, I have records, I submit myself to be examined by everyone and I feel very much disappointed if I am not permitted. It involves this gentleman (Ernst) and it involves the integrity of this court."

"No," said Clark, "you will have to offer it through your counsel in evidence. You must confer with your counsel first."

An authoritative source said that Hague sought to discuss a conference between opposing counsel at the start of the trial, at which efforts were made to agree to a proposed injunction restraining the alleged acts complained of by the plaintiffs.

UNEQUAL RAIL RATE TERMED A 'TARIFF'

Leaves for Washington.

Immediately after the speech, Governor Rivers boarded a train for Washington where Thursday morning he will be joined by a group of Georgia leaders to lay before the federal government a long line of requests for federal funds for the program of permanent development Georgia hopes to obtain from the new billions voted by congress.

The Governor has announced he will ask the federal government for $25,000,000 for improvements in his state.

Governor Rivers was the chief speaker at the planning conference and Henry T. McIntosh, of Albany, chairman of the Georgia planning board, was present.

Governor Rivers discussed the tax situation in several states and declared that now more than ever before there is a grave need for uniform taxation.

Archaic and Obsolete.

"Nearly every state in this Union now performs uniform services for its people but there is no semblance of uniformity in our tax structures," the chief executive said. "Most states are like Georgia in that they have an archaic and obsolete tax system, yet when anyone proposes a change for the better, those who are opposed to changes combat the proposal with the cry that the person seeking the change actually is seeking to raise taxes.

"In Georgia we have brought about something of a change through the levying of a reasonable tax on intangibles and while we have in effect lowered taxes through homestead exemptions, we are being accused of raising taxes."

Greatest Need of Planning.

The Governor declared that the freight rate situation disclosed the greatest need for future planning.

"Planning of transportation and distribution systems in this country is so imperative that the plight of our railroads serves as a glaring example of this need," he said. "There should be a planned coordination between air transportation, water transportation, railroad transportation and motor vehicle transportation, as well as between public and private transportation. This one field justifies a great planning effort. As taxation should be uniform among the states, so should rates of transportation be uniform between states.

"This uniformity of rates of transportation should call fundamentally for the same rate for hauling the same commodity the same distance under the same conditions.

Virtually a Tariff.

"At the present time artificial tariff barriers have been erected between various states and various sections of the country in varying degree. While the constitution prohibits the levying of the tariff between the different states, the differentials in transportation rates between different states and different regions have in practice set up such tariffs. This has caused a maladjustment in industry, a higher cost of commodities to the consumer, a neglect of development of great natural resources and the corresponding lessening of our national wealth, and sectional business bitterness that has retarded our progress.

"Spasmodically, despite these differentials, whole industrial villages and cities have become deserted and millions of dollars of investments lost as well as community culture and traditions.

Permanent, Progressive.

"No sound economy in this great country can be had until there is a free flow of commerce between every state and region of the country, unhampered by artificial tariff barriers in the form of transportation rate differentials. Every state and every region in this country has enough resources and natural advantages to develop uniformly an economy in the country that will be sound, permanent and progressive, if developed along the lines best suited to such state or region, to the end that the whole nation will be soundly and permanently and progressively developed.

"This development cannot take place under the hypodermic stimulation of artificial transportation rate differentials. Yes, one of the greatest opportunities and needs for planning is in the field of transportation."

Georgia voted local option while the period of decline in consumption was beginning, receipts from liquor have been encouraging from the standpoint of state revenue.

In addition to the amount the state has collected, cities, towns and counties where repeal has been voted have profited.

Atlanta has received $82,000 in license fees from a dozen wholesalers and more than 100 retailers.

Coluumbus, Albany and other cities have added to their revenue from liquor fees, while Savannah and Augusta, which taxed liquor dealers before the prohibition law was repealed, have increased their receipts.

In some counties, liquor fees have made up in part revenue lost by local governments on homestead and furniture exemptions.

Emile LaClaustia, a beauty shop operator in Atlanta for many years, died Monday morning at his home in Bisbee, Ariz., where he had lived since last March, according to word received by friends and relatives here.

Mr. LaClaustia lived here for 18 years before moving to Arizona. His last shop was at the corner of Peachtree street and Tenth street.

Surviving are his wife, the former Miss Allene Hodges, of Jacksonville, Fla., and several nieces in Atlanta. Funeral services will be held in Oakland, Cal.

Bread and Milk Diet Confronts Optimists Here

Optimists of Atlanta were optimistic as they looked over their weekly luncheon menu yesterday, but smiles froze on their faces when they saw a milk-and-bread diet before them.

Boosting "the perfect food," program sponsors of the Optimist Club decided to celebrate Milk Month in a big way—or in a hard way. Besides milk, the only choice of nourishment consisted of cornsticks and rolls.

Boxing and wrestling exhibitions by Atlanta youngsters were featured after the meal. Those taking part included Douglas Neal and Everett Carey, both Junior Optimists, and Buster Surratt, Jack Arnold, Ken Flagler, Charles Murdaugh, Hardwick Johnson, Herman Kemp, Roland Lee, Frank Gallagher, Jack Deacon and Mike Warr.

Turrou's Services Lost.

It was considered unlikely that they would appear at the arraignment, which may take place tomorrow, of the four defendants in custody. U. S. AVIATION SECRETS PLACED HIGH BY SPIES

NEW YORK, June 21.—(AP)—Foreign spies, trying to filch secrets from American warplane factories, want to know how this country proposes to operate planes of the future without propellers.

They would like to find out the extent of United States laboratory work in launching tomorrow's warplanes, weighing several hundred thousand pounds, by catapult.

They risk their lives to steal the designs for our aircraft bomb sights, which enable army and navy airmen to reach a target unerringly from an altitude of four miles.

Among the secret projects undergoing experiment is one whereby planes may be driven by jets of air or explosive gases, like rockets.

GERMANY DENIES ESPIONAGE CHARGE

BERLIN, June 21.—(AP)—The German official news bureau in a short communique tonight said "it is self evident there cannot be any question of espionage in the United States by active officers of Germany's armed forces."

The communique was issued in connection with the indictment of 18 persons, including officers in the German war ministry, by a special federal grand jury in New York which charged them with espionage in behalf of Germany.

ALIEN DEPORTATIONS URGED BY GRAND JURY

NEW YORK, June 21.—(AP)—A federal grand jury which convened here in March tonight said it had recommended to President Roosevelt the deportation of all aliens on relief who after three years' residence have not taken out first naturalization papers.

The recommendation, announced by Jury Foreman John V. D. Cornell, suggested that those who "seek American benefits in the form of relief should either indicate their allegiance to the United States or be deported."

ROOSEVELT SIGNS LEND-SPEND BILL

last congress as a $12,000,000,000 congress were ridiculous in view of the fact that a large portion of the money appropriated was for loans which the government would be repaid.

Moreover, he added, the sum under discussion represented in part authorizations for which no appropriations had been made.

Then, answering questions, the chief executive touched briefly on international affairs.

After asserting that he could say no more than that he had talks of general international affairs with Joseph P. Kennedy, ambassador to London who visited him today, Mr. Roosevelt was asked whether Kennedy's call made him cheerful.

Hope for the Best.

The President replied that it made him feel the same way he had felt for the last two or three years. The general international picture, he said, was not particularly a bright one, that all we could do is hope for the best.

The President added that Kennedy had told all that could be told to reporters when he docked yesterday, and directed attention to what Mr. Roosevelt said was the best part of that interview.

That was Kennedys' declaration to the ship newsmen that while people in England were complaining about business conditions they were not blaming their business troubles on the government.

Mr. Roosevelt's very busy day, which was topped off by his driving his car over country roads, included receipt of a $1,010,000 check for use of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

The President opened his news conference with his usual cheery "Hello!" Then as newsmen packed into the small study of his family home, he commenced quoting a recently issued Commerce Department statement.

National Income Higher.

Mr. Roosevelt said he wished to call attention to the report's disclosure that 1937 national income—the income of all the people who earn money in the United States—was slightly higher than had been estimated last fall.

He said the report showed this income actually was $69,800,000,000, compared with estimates before the year ended of between $68,000,000,000 and $69,000,000,000.

The document also reported, the President said, that while the average wage of the full-time employed person was down last year 9 per cent below the 1929 average, the cost of living index in 1937 was 15 per cent below 1929.

That, he declared, was another way of saying that it did not cost a wage earner as much of his income in 1937 as in 1929 and, therefore, the country was relatively better off in that respect.

Then, after quoting the new figure on national income, he said the figure for 1937 would have been $72,000,000,000 instead of $69,800,000,000 if it had not been for the slackening of business toward the end of the year.

Relief Statement.

From there he jumped to how many bills he had signed and had to sign and then began reading slowly to the perspiring newsmen a two-page statement on the freshly approved relief bill.

Mr. Roosevelt said it was generally recognized today that economic and social welfare ought to go hand in hand.

This relief and works bill covers both forms of welfare, he said, adding that it permits a great program to get under way immediately.

It permits, he continued, a large amount of money to be spent for many different forms of assistance, not only to the unemployed and in getting wages out but also to agriculture, industry and to business.

The program is carried out, the President declared, on the principle of federal participation in partnership with state and local agencies, almost wholly a partnership basis.

Practically all WPA work is that, all of PWA is that and so is the work of the National Youth Administration and others, he added.

Mr. Roosevelt said the $3,750,000,000 measure was a partnership bill.

On the public works end, he asserted, PWA was created as an experiment in 1933. He said the administration recognized PWA's power but had not measured it at that time. Since then, he asserted he and his aides had been metering its merits.

That is a new line, he added, declaring that in following it two things had been discovered—that cities and other public bodies still need a very large volume of permanent improvements and that these localities are glad to and able to assess themselves for more than half of the total cost of the improvements by going into partnership with the federal government.

PWA Breakdown.

The President added that it also had been determined that on PWA projects two and half workers are given employment in mines, mills, forests and on transportation for every worker on the project site. Another illustration, he said, was that 36 cents out of every dollar goes to the construction pay roll on the job and 64 cents for producing and fabricating materials, generally at distant points.

He disclosed that he had been approving PWA projects for three weeks, in every case subject to signing of the bill and that on almost every project so approved, actual dirt would begin to fly inside of 60 days. A total of $350,000,000 of projects have been signed by the President.

Sixty days, the President declared, would be the earliest, since the contracts for work must be advertised 30 days and certain other routine followed to insure that the work will be done properly.

He added that the remainder of PWA's $965,000,000 provided in the lending and spending bill—or a good deal of it—would be allocated within the next two weeks.

The President said that the same thing about federal-local partnership on PWA holds true for the Works Progress Administration's $1,425,000,000.

WPA is now in gear, he said, and ready to go ahead July 1.

President Permits Direct Quotation

HYDE PARK, N. Y., June 21. (AP)—President Roosevelt, who seldom permits reporters to quote him directly, allowed them today to put in quotation marks the following:

"As somebody remarked the other day there have been a few rain drops coming from the heavens and possibly they will be followed with a much-needed shower."

The remark was made in connection with his statement that business is not and has not been as bad as a lot of people believed it to be.

The quotation was a direct answer to a newsman's question at the President's press conference as to whether business had scraped bottom in its downward trend.

PWA TO RELEASE 6 MILLION IN STATE

67 Projects on List for Start Within Next Few Weeks.

Sixty-seven PWA projects, calling for an outlay of approximately $6,705,399, will be started in Georgia within the next few weeks, H. T. Cole, regional director, said last night following announcement that President Roosevelt had signed the $3,750,000,000 "lending and spending" bill.

Details on projects proposed for Georgia and the southeastern area, including amounts allocated to each state, will not be available for several days, Director Cole announced, specifications having to come from PWA headquarters at Washington.

University System.

It is understood, however, the regional director said, that all projects which were approved some time ago for the southeastern area will be included in the program. Among them are 16 projects of the University System of Georgia to be completed at an estimated cost of $1,321,191. Of this amount $594,535.95 will be provided by federal grant.

Subsidization by the government for state projects will total approximately $3,017,430.

Quick Allocation.

PWA authorities at Washington indicated it was only a matter of hours before the first allocations from the $350,000,000 placed at their disposal would be released, the entire sum being allocated before the expiration of 60 days.

All state projects will be inaugurated as soon as official confirmation is received from Washington, Cole said last night. These will in no way conflict with new projects, for which many applications are being received at headquarters here.

Works Progress Administration officials also are expected to prepare a new schedule shortly to absorb its share of the $1,425,000,000 which will be made available for the employment of 3,000,000 men by July 1.

Speedy Spending of New Billions Predicted as President Signs Bill

President Declares Dirt Will Be Flying on $350,000,000 of PWA Projects Within 60 Days; WPA Ready To Go Into Action.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—(AP)—President Roosevelt's signature to the $3,750,000,000 lending-spending bill set administrative machinery in motion tonight to carry out the huge, new "pump-priming" program.

The Public Works Administration indicated it would be only a matter of hours before it made its first allocations from the new funds. Other agencies announced they were set for action.

From the time the President announced the new lending-spending program effort to turn the recession tide, all agencies have been drafting plans and considering projects so as to be ready for a quick start.

Mr. Roosevelt predicted to reporters that dirt would begin to fly on $350,000,000 of PWA projects within 60 days.

PWA received $965,000,000 of the huge outlay. It also was given authority to lend up to $400,000,000 from its revolving fund.

WPA Gets $1,425,000,000.

Biggest item in the bill, however, is $1,425,000,000 for work relief jobs under Harry Hopkins' Works Progress Administration. Congress was told this would permit employment of up to 3,000,000 persons during the eight months starting July 1.

The administration's slum clearance and low-cost housing program received a $300,000,000 addition to its present $500,000,000.

Other items in the bill include:

The Rural Electrification Administration—$100,000,000 for loans and $700,000 for administrative costs to extend electric power to rural areas.

The National Youth Administration—$75,000,000 for its program of helping high school and college students on part-time jobs and youths of school age on special projects. It expects to aid 600,000.

Farm Security Administration—$175,000,000 for loans and grants in rural areas.

Federal Buildings.

Federal Buildings—$25,000,000 to start a three-year, $130,000,000 program. In addition, $200,000,000 may be spent by PWA for this purpose.

The Puerto Rico Reconstruction Administration—$6,000,000.

The administrative costs of writing the pay checks and keeping accounts on the program are expected to total $30,000,000.

In addition to these funds, congress included in the bill $212,000,000 for payments to wheat, cotton, corn, tobacco and rice farmers under the crop control program.

Gain in Health and Stop Getting Up Nights

When kidneys are clogged they become weak—the bladder is irritated—often passage is scanty and smarts and burns—sleep is restless and nightly visits to the bathroom are frequent.

The right safe harmless and inexpensive way to stop this trouble and restore healthy action to kidneys and bladder is to get from any druggist a 35-cent box of Gold Medal Haarlem Oil Capsules and take as directed—you won't be disappointed.

- Title-Hunting Again -

Schmeling Knocking at Championship Door Again Six Years After He Lost Crown to Jack Sharkey. Armstrong Influence May Decide It.

By Jack Troy

NEW YORK, June 21.—It was just six years ago to the day that Max Schmeling, who won the world's heavyweight boxing championship sitting down, stood up to Jack Sharkey through 15 grueling rounds and lost his title the hard way.

It was on June 12, 1930, here in little old New York, a couple of years after Gene Tunney had belted over Tom Heeney in the 11th round and then retired as the undefeated champion, that Sharkey and Schmeling fought for the title.

That fight, which attracted nearly three-fourths of a million dollars of the fans' money, ended abruptly in the fourth round with Schmeling sitting on the canvas clutching his abdomen.

Then, a couple of years later, they met on Long Island, and Sharkey won the official decision in 15 rounds. The date of that fight was June 21, 1932.

Now, six years after, the German is title-hunting again. By all odds he should stand a very good chance against the defending champion, Joe Louis.

He was the first who dared step in and really fight Louis. And the beating he gave him two years ago is not easy to discount. Using a trip-hammer right, he kayoed Louis in the 12th round.

But that, as you must agree, was two years ago. Louis, 24, has fought oftener in the past two years than has Schmeling, who is 33.

He went on after that brutal beating to win the heavyweight title from Jim Braddock last year. He later won a decision over Tommy Farr in 15 stanzas.

Schmeling had one fight of any consequence last year. He hammered over Harry Thomas in eight rounds, winning by a technical knockout.

DANIEL DEFEATS MRS. CRAWFORD IN STATE MEET

Dorothy Sanford Cards 39 in Downing Tumlin; Suggs Beaten.

By ROY WHITE.

Dorothy Sanford, young Atlanta star, led the favorites into the second round of the annual Georgia Women's Golf tournament Tuesday morning on the Druid Hills course. Dorothy, shooting a 39, only three strokes over men's par on the first nine, eliminated Mrs. W. D. Tumlin, Atlanta, 8 and 6.

The young Atlantan was six up at the turn and played only three holes on the back nine. It was the best scoring any woman has done on the Druid Hills course in many months.

OTHER WINNERS.

Other winners in the championship flight were Mrs. J. C. Wright, president of the Atlanta Woman's Golf Association; Mrs. Colleen Butler, Caroline Dykes, of Columbus; Loraine McLaughlin, also of Columbus, and Mrs. Dave Mitchell.

Dorothy Kirby, twice winner of the championship, and Buster Chatham, Atlanta shortstop who recently began playing golf, were spectators at the first round. Dorothy followed several of the matches at various intervals, while Chatham was one of the 18th hole spectators.

Although there were no upsets, the unusually good scoring of Dorothy Sanford, and Louise Cagle's 3-2 defeat of Loraine McLaughlin, of Columbus, were among the highlights of the first round.

Miss Cagle, had another round of putting jitters. She had a half dozen three-putt greens, which proved the turning point of the match.

Little Louise Suggs, daughter of Johnny and Mrs. Suggs and a granddaughter of Rell J. Spiller, playing in her first big tournament, ran into a tough opponent and was beaten, 2-1, by Caroline Dykes, of Columbus.

WAS FOUR DOWN.

Louise was four down at 11, but staged a sensational rally only to lose on the 17th green, to a more experienced player. Louise was well pleased and as she walked back to the clubhouse said: "Well I at least qualified in the championship flight in my first state tournament."

It's unusual for a youngster 14 years of age to qualify in the championship flight of a state tournament in her first try, but that is just what it takes to produce champions. Dorothy Kirby won her first state title at 13 and Charlie Yates won his first state crown at 17 and at 24 is the British amateur champion.

Margaret Maddox, a former southern champion, eliminated Mrs. Harry Vaughn, East Lake, 5-4. Margaret's short game was a bit erratic at times.

The quarter-finals will be played this morning, starting at 9 o'clock.

Martha Daniel plays Mrs. J. C. Wright and Sanford meets Maddox in the upper bracket. In the lower half Butler plays Dykes and McLaughlin meets Mrs. Mitchell, wife of Dave Mitchell, the former national public links' champion.

JACOBS WON'T BE IN MAX'S CORNER; NOT REINSTATED

By JACK TROY.

NEW YORK, June 21.—Yussel Jacobs, manager of Max Schmeling, felt "We wuz robbed" on one count today when the New York State Athletic Commission refused his application for reinstatement so he could act as second in the German's corner tomorrow night.

Jacobs battled .500 against the commission. He won his demand that the gloves used be padded with curled hair. Schmeling objected to the long-thumbed Chicago glove, which is padded with a felt that, once soaked by perspiration and, perhaps blood, give the same effect of being hit with a brick.

DOESN'T ADD UP.

Schmeling's insistence makes it somewhat obvious that he expects to be hit. Somehow it doesn't seem to add up—two athletes fighting for a world heavyweight championship wearing gloves stuffed with curled hair. Wonder how the old timers would like that?

Outside of that, there is nothing of a sissy nature about the title bout.

Out-of-towners have taken over Manhattan.

There is every reason to believe that the fight will gross a million. A week ago at a reception for Charlie Yates, New York, didn't impress one as being very enthusiastic about the trend of the times.

But a week later, it's a different story. Folks have come from Burlap, Okla., and Custer's Crossing, among other places, to see the big fight, and the atmosphere has changed.

A clear night is in prospect for the main battle, which goes on at 9 o'clock Atlanta time.

LOUIS FAVORED.

The concensus of opinion is Louis. Schmeling, the challenger and ex-champion, is feared. But the experts confidently believe he will face a different Louis.

They believe Louis will tear him apart, and yet they have a fear of Schmeling and his chopping right. Mainly they are banking on increased age getting the best of him.

If Louis fights a cautious fight—no one seems to have the slightest idea just what he intends to do—it may go 15 rounds and Louis will win by decision.

But a victory by decision would not be very satisfying to Louis or his backers in the light of Schmeling's knockout of him.

So it looks like a fight. Schmeling needs to win, they say, to save his face in the homeland.

Grant Winner As Parker Loses

CHICAGO, June 21.—(AP)—Frankie Parker, of Milwaukee and Los Angeles, ranked No. 3 nationally, was eliminated today in the second round of the national clay courts tennis tournament by George Pero, of Miami, Fla.

Parker, seeded No. 2 and a member of the 1937 Davis cup team, lost in three sets, 5-7, 6-1, 6-4, to the unseeded southerner.

Earlier, Parker had defeated Jack Krietenstein, of Chicago, in a first-round match, 6-3, 5-7, 6-2. Parker appeared tired and played top tennis only in spots.

Pero defeated Morris Drilling, of Grand Rapids, Mich., in another of the matches completing first-round play today.

Bryan M. (Bitsy) Grant Jr., of Atlanta, a Davis cup teammate of Parker's and three-time winner of the clay courts championship, advanced to the third round by beating Benneth Bartlett, of Los Angeles, 6-2, 6-4.

Bobby Riggs, of Chicago and Los Angeles, defending champion, had little trouble in his third-round match with John Krifka, of Chicago.

Parker was one of four seeded players to lose. Martin Buxby, of Miami, was the first, dropping his first-round match to Robert Peacock, San Francisco, 6-0, 6-2. Buxby was seeded No. 11. Peacock also defeated Howard York, of Philadelphia, in the second round, 10-8, 6-0.

SANDLOT GAME.

Rained out yesterday, the Cardinals and the Adair Tigers, two of the city's ace sandlot baseball teams, will meet this afternoon at 2:30 on the Northwest Piedmont diamond.

DETERMINED MAXIE READY FOR JOE LOUIS

Majority of Writers Pick Louis Tonight

NEW YORK, June 21.—(AP)—Thirty-five of 55 boxing writers, over 60 per cent, favor Joe Louis to beat Max Schmeling in the Yankee stadium tomorrow night.

MAXIE SEEKING RECORD AS FIRST TO REGAIN TITLE

By ALAN GOULD.

NEW YORK, June 21.—(AP)—The gabbiest, gaudiest and, all things considered, the greatest heavyweight boxing rivalry in a decade reaches its climax tomorrow night in what promises to be a balmy, million-dollar setting at the Yankee stadium.

The 15-round return match between Joe Louis, 24-year-old American negro holder of the world championship, and Max Schmeling, 32-year-old German challenger, may not crack any fistic records. Nevertheless, it has whipped the fight faithful to a high emotional pitch, created more international sporting excitement and proved the biggest box-office magnet of any title bout since Gene Tunney rode the famous "long count" to victory over Jack Dempsey at Chicago in 1927.

With the advance sale reported slightly more than $800,000 tonight, Promoter Mike Jacobs figured to have a reasonable chance of achieving his goal. Counting $75,000 already paid for radio and motion picture rights Jacobs expected the aggregate "take" to exceed $1,000,000.

MAY DRAW 80,000.

Due to the combined influence of the ballyhoo, the current heat wave, and the fascinating uncertainties of the fight itself, there is good reason to suspect 80,000 or more fans will crowd into the huge American league ball park, paying anywhere from $3.45 to $30 to see whether Schmeling can repeat his sensational 12-round knockout of two years ago or whether the Brown Bomber will turn the tables on the only man to lick him since he turned professional.

Louis was still a 2-to-1 shot to win, in the latest call-over of betting odds, with 10 to 17 quoted against the chances that Schmeling would make ring history by becoming the first ex-champion to regain the world heavyweight title.

The German was declared champion, by a 2-to-1 vote of the New York boxing commissioners, in 1930, after winning on a foul from Jack Sharkey at the Yankee stadium. Subsequently Schmeling became generally recognized as world champion but lost the crown to Sharkey in 1932 in the Madison Square Garden bowl.

Schmeling's return to pugilistic heights, after being rated a has-been, is one of the ring's most dramatic episodes, particularly as it was achieved at the expense of Louis. Two years ago the young negro, product of the Alabama cotton fields and the Golden Gloves amateur ranks, was the reigning sensation. Jim Braddock had captured the world championship with a surprise victory over Max Baer, but Louis was rated the "uncrowned king." Unbeaten, he was the beneficiary of an extravagant ballyhoo and build-up, in the course of which he was described as a composite of all the heavyweight greats of the past.

MAX EXPLODED MYTH.

Then along came Schmeling, the supposed set-up, with a lethal right hand that smashed the myth of the Bomber's invincibility, made the fight experts look very foolish indeed, and abruptly changed the heavyweight picture. Since

Fighters' Statements Just Before Battle

NEW YORK, June 21.—(AP)—Just-before-the-battle statements of Max Schmeling and Joe Louis:

SCHMELING . . . "I am, of course, confident. I know I have attained rare condition for this second meeting with Joe Louis. I believe I am at the peak of my career. The bouts at my camp showed me that all the power in both hands is still with me. Seventeen days of boxing for a total of 109 rounds effected just the proper training I needed. I should produce my greatest fight and reach my great incentive of becoming the first man to regain the heavyweight championship. I have planned no special style for Louis."

LOUIS . . . "I'll knock him out in two rounds, no less. I'm coming out fighting. Got to or else there'll be no fight. Last time I met him I was not an experienced fighter. I had been winning all my fights just with my strength. Since then I have learned to fight. They say I haven't looked good in training. Okay, but did anyone ever win a title against spar mates? I never underestimate any fighter and I don't Schmeling. But I've been waiting for this return match two whole years and I am ready."

ATLANTA LOSES CHANCE TO GAIN ON LITTLE ROCK

By ROY WHITE.

Three extra base hits in the pinches and air-tight pitching by Red Evans, gave New Orleans a 6-to-0 victory over Atlanta's Crackers last night. The victory enabled the Pelicans to even the series at one game each. However, they lost a golden opportunity to climb within one game of Little Rock. The Pebs lost twice to Knoxville.

Evans limited the Crackers to six singles and only in the ninth did any two of them come in the same inning. The Pelican Redhead aided his own game with a timely double in the second inning which sent the first two Pelican runners across the plate.

Luman Harris started for the Crackers and pitched good ball except for the two extra base hits when runners were in scoring positions. Ted Pritchett pitched the ninth inning after Harris was lifted for a pinch hitter.

Atlanta's new keystone combination of Lipscomb and Peters contributed two lightning double plays, which helped keep the Pelicans from adding insult to injury.

ONE SINGLE.

Evans held the Crackers to one single in the first five innings, but after he and his mates had piled up a four-run lead, he let up a bit during the remainder of the game.

Atlanta had only three runners left on the bases through six innings, and the five who got on base in the remaining three frames were left stranded so tight was Evans' hurling in the pinches.

A light rain just as Scalzi went to bat in the first inning held up the game for 30 minutes.

Hugh Holiday, secured today from Macon's Peaches, played an important part in the Pelican victory. He was scheduled to play outfield but Manager Gilbert used him at third base, a move which proved disastrous to the Crackers and victory for the visitors.

Holiday hit three singles, stole two bases, advanced a runner on a sacrifice and looked good at his position.

New Orleans started the scoring in the second. Michael singled and went to second on Harris' wild pitch. George was given an intentional walk and both runners scored on Evans' double.

Two more Pel runners scored in the seventh. Scalzi singled. Holiday sacrificed and when Harris threw wild, Scalzi went to third and Holiday to second. Carson scored both runners with a double to left.

FINAL RUNS.

The final two runs came in the ninth on Pritchett who had replaced Harris. Holiday singled and was sent to second on Carson's sacrifice. Carlyle tripled, scoring Holiday and then came home on Pritchett's wild pitch.

Atlanta's double plays in the sixth and eighth innings killed off New Orleans runners.

Evans struck out 10 Cracker batters and only in the fourth, sixth and eighth innings did he fail to fan at least one Cracker. Larry Miller and Tom Drake will be the rival hurlers for Wednesday's game which will start at 4 o'clock.

SMOKIES 9-10; PEBS 8-6.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., June 21.—The unpredictable Knoxville Smokies slapped down the league-leading Little Rock Travelers twice today, 9 to 8 and 10 to 6, with a barrage of 25 hits.

Doc Richmond, the Smoky handyman, stepped into the familiar role of hero in the first game when he hit a pinch double to the left-field fence with the bases loaded to put the Smokies out in front. Graham and Nagel hit home runs for Little Rock, Warren for Knoxville.

Old Cy Moore was nicked for 11 hits in the seven-inning nightcap, but kept them fairly well scattered while his teammates pounded out 12 hits.

It was the second consecutive double-header the Smokies have won. They defeated the second-place Atlanta Crackers in a twin bill last Saturday.

CHICKS 4; VOLS 2.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., June 21.—Led by Joe Grace, hard-hitting outfielder, the Memphis Chicks came through today to score a win over the Nashville Vols, 4 to 2.

Grace's homer today was his third in the last two games. He polled two over right-field fence last night.

Artie Parks, slugging Vol, knocked a circuit clout today to ring up his seventh of the season.

Only two of Memphis' runs were earned.

The four-game series will be concluded here tomorrow afternoon. Nashville has taken two out of three thus far.

KING CARL FAILS IN BID FOR 200TH MAJOR VICTORY

Cubs Top Phils, 4-3; Cincy Cuts Giant Lead to 1 1-2 Games

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Even King Carl Hubbell could not cool off those red-hot Reds from Cincinnati, and they trounced the Giants, 6 to 2, to climb within a game and a half of the National league leaders.

Given a one-run edge on Harry Danning's homer in the first inning, King Carl retired the first ten men in order, but then was knocked loose from the lead on homers by Ival Goodman and Ernie Lombardi in the fourth, and finally was clouted for another three-run rally in the seventh which put the game beyond recall.

It was the Reds' ninth win their last 11 starts, and marked the third time in a row Hubbell made a vain bid for his 200th major league pitching victory.

Boston took the first game of the series from St. Louis, 3 to 1, Turner holding the Cards to five hits.

Claude Passeau's error in a run-down play between third and home allowed Billy Herman to score with the winning run for Chicago in the sixth inning for a 4-3 victory over the Phillies.

Before a crowd of 25,527, the Pittsburgh Pirates defeated the Dodgers, 9 to 3, under the Ebbets Field arc lights last night. Todd and Young belted homers for the Pirates, while Cuyler hit a four-bagger for Brooklyn in the first inning.

Beats Speaker's Mark

Pinky Higgins, Red Sox Star, Gets Twelve Straight Hits

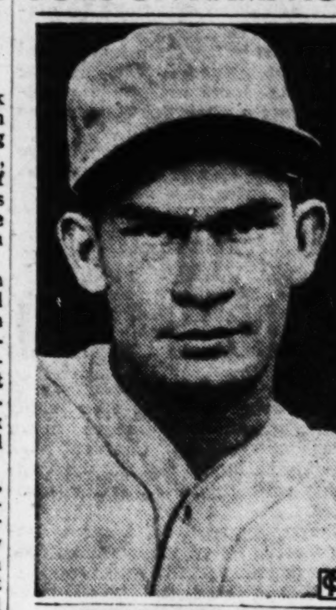

DETROIT, June 21.—(AP)—Frank (Pinky) Higgins, veteran Boston Red Sox third baseman enjoying a sensational hitting streak, marched into baseball's hall of fame today by cracking out his 12th consecutive safe hit while the Sox and Detroit Tigers split a double-header.

Even two home runs with which Rudy York, Tiger slugger, entered a tie with Jimmy Foxx of Boston for the American league leadership at 19 each fell into the background as Higgins, collecting eight hits, broke Tris Speaker's 18-year-old major league record. The Sox won the first game, 8 to 3, and Detroit the second, 5 to 4.

Before a tense crowd of 26,400, Higgins banged out the big hit—his seventh single of the day, over second base just out of Charley Gehringer's reach—in the eighth inning of the second game. It gave him a perfect day at bat and left him a chance to extend the streak tomorrow.

The Sox third sacker propelled three singles and a double in the first game and four singles in the second, tying Speaker's record of 11 straight hits made in 1920 with a sixth inning single in the nightcap. Higgins began his streak with a double, three singles and a walk in a doubleheader at Chicago Sunday. The Sox were idle yesterday. Higgins walked once in the first game today.

Lady wrestlers will also appear on the program. Miss Jean Larue, 122-pound girl star, tackles Miss Joan Rogers, of California, in the semi-final feature. There will be one other bout. The program will start at 8:30.

The Louis-Schmeling heavyweight title battle will be broadcast from the ringside by a loudspeaker system installed at the arena.

Indians Increase American Lead to Two and a Half Games.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

The league-leading Indians landed on Charley Ruffing for five hits and six runs in the seventh to rout the New York Yankees, 10 to 5, and boost their margin over the World Champions back to two and a half games.

Bobby Feller pitched for the Indians.

Harry Kelley, the righ-hander Washington purchased from the Philadelphia Athletics last month, scored his first 1938 victory by shutting out the Chicago White Sox 7 to 0. Kelley yielded five scattered hits.

Home runs by Billy Sullivan and Tommy Heath helped the St. Louis Browns defeat the Philadelphia Athletics, 5 to 2. Oral Hildebrand pitched 5-hit ball. Sam Chapman homered for the A's.

Frank Higgins, Boston third sacker, broke the American league record with his twelfth consecutive hit, and Rudy York, Detroit catcher, hit his eighteenth and nineteenth home runs to tie Jimmy Foxx for the league lead, as the teams divided a double-header at Detroit. HEAVY MATMEN NOT SCHEDULED HERE THIS WEEK

'Frank Speer Night' Set Next Wednesday at Warren Arena.

For the first time since it was opened nearly six months ago, there will be no sports program at the Warren arena this week.

The regular Wednesday night heavyweight mat program will not be held tonight, due to the fact that next Wednesday will be "Frank Speer night" and officials are putting forth every effort to make the program a success.

The wrestlers who will appear in tribute to Frank Speer, whom they admired and respected very highly, have not as yet been announced. Scores of matmen are seeking spots on the card despite the fact that they realize they will be donating their services. Also the pass list will be suspended 100 per cent that night. Even the promoter, newspapermen, ticket sellers and soft drink vendors will buy tickets.

Tickets for the show may be reserved by calling Warren arena (Jackson 1711).

Crackers Borrow Buford's Catcher

Al Kimbrell, Buford's catcher, has been "loaned" to the Crackers during the absence of Manager Paul Richards, Dewey Williams and Harry Appleby. Richards' hand is still in bandages from a split finger. Kimbrell caught last night.

And when Kimbrell took his place behind the bat, two catchers from Oglethorpe University were in the game.

Both George and Kimbrell went from Oglethorpe into professional baseball, Kimbrell later coming back to Buford, where he has been the ace catcher of the nation's outstanding semi-pro team for the past two years.

JACOBS WINNER IN FIRST MATCH DESPITE INJURY

Budge and Mako, Marble, Jedrzejowska, Bundy, Fabyan Win.

WIMBLEDON, England, June 21.—(AP)—United States Champion Anita Lizana, of Chile, weeping inconsolably, made her entrance and exit in the all-England tennis championships at Wimbledon today.

Unofficial world's No. 1 woman player last year, yet not even seeded by Wimbledon officials, the senorita lost for the second straight year to French Champion Mme. Rene Mathieu, 6-4, 6-4.

When the match was over Senorita Lizana shook hands with the veteran Frenchwoman, curtsied gracefully to the Duchess of Kent, who was seated in the royal box, then fled home weeping through the crowd.

This was the only match and incident of the entire day that was out of the ordinary, as every outstanding United States player advanced.

Three other incidents were worth mention—Don Budge still was well off his game as he and Gene Mako beat L. de Borman and Pierre Geehland, of Belgium, in doubles, 6-3, 6-4, 6-4; Jadwiga Jedrzejowska, of Poland, lost a set to steady Dorothy Stevenson, of Australia, whom she beat by 6-1, 3-6, 6-3, and Helen Jacobs appeared recovered from her arm injury in drubbing Whitmarsh, of England, 6-0, 6-1.

Gracyn Wheeler, of Santa Monica, Cal., a member of the United States Wightman Cup squad, also played in top form to defeat Miss C. M. Burrows, a really good English player, 6-3, 6-0.

Alice Marble, American champion in 1936, had fun beating Mary Cootes, of Alexandria, Va., 6-0, 6-2. The tall, pretty southern girl proudly announced after the match:

"Think of me taking two games from Alice."

Dorothy May Bundy, husky Wightman Cupper from Santa Monica, Cal., who holds the Australian title, and Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan, of Boston, her teammate, also came through the first round without undue difficulty. Miss Bundy eliminated Phyllis Morrison, of Britain, 6-2, 6-2, and Mrs. Fabyan whipped Miss E. Enger, of Germany, 6-1, 6-3.

MAXIE SEEKING RECORD AS FIRST TO REGAIN TITLE

that memorable night in the stadium, the return match has been slowly, almost painfully, in the making. In the interval, a year ago, Louis won the championship by knocking out Braddock, but the negro himself was among the first to admit he could not claim undisputed supremacy unless he turned the tables on his conqueror.

And so, to climax a few million words of argument and collect their share of nearly a million dollars, Max and Joe will climb into the ring around 9 p. m., Atlanta time, tomorrow night to resume their personal debate.

They're as fit and, from all last-minute broadcasts, as confident as two fighters can be under the strain of furor and fanfare. Schmeling left his Speculator, N. Y., camp this afternoon for an undisclosed retreat in or near the city. He will join Louis at noon tomorrow at Madison Square Garden for the official weighing-in. The champion will leave his training quarters at Pompton Lakes, N. J., just in time to make connections on the scales.

Few, if any signs of weakening were manifest among those who think that (a) Schmeling will repeat his knockout or (b) Louis will prove his first defeat was just a fistic accident. Three out of five newspaper experts, as well as betting men, prefer Louis, but offered no eleventh-hour argument calculated to change the minds of those who favor Schmeling.

STILL HAS WEAPONS.

Schmeling still has the weapons, as well as the poise, confidence and craftsmanship that carried him to stunning triumph in 1936. He's two years older, but no less impressive, physically, and no less fortified, mentally. Max is imbued with a burning ambition to do what no other ex-champion ever did, among them Jim Corbett, Bob Fitzsimmons, Jim Jeffries and Jack Dempsey.

There's no tendency now to underrate the German or his chances but the explanation for restored confidence in Louis is not difficult to find, either. The negro's backers feel that overconfidence, undertraining, and general inexperience contributed as much to his downfall two years ago as did Schmeling's right-hand punches. They insist he is a better fighter now, a more accurate puncher, and more resourceful. He proved the last time that he could "take it."

Undoubtedly Louis is a more dangerous two-handed hitter than Schmeling. It remains to be seen, however, whether his defensive equipment or his reaction, under heavy fire, will carry him over the danger spots. The psychological angle probably can be discarded. If Louis is beaten again it will not be because of fear but because he is hit so hard and effectively that he will have no alibi.

BIG BALLYHOO.

The widely ballyhooed idea, sponsored by Louis himself, that he will try to finish the challenger within two rounds, isn't taken too seriously by observers, for two reasons: The first is that the negro characteristically is cautious and a slow starter. The other is that if he starts out recklessly, seeking a quick knockout, the champion is quite likely to find himself on the floor first.

Both are sharpshooters. For that reason it is plausible to expect both to be wary at the outset, sparring for openings, but taking no undue chances. It is well within the bounds of possibility, in fact, that both will be so cautious that the fight will go 15 rounds and be the exact opposite of a knock-down-and-drag-out battle.

The state athletic commission today rejected the plea of Schmeling's American manager, Joe Jacobs, for reinstatement, and simultaneously turned down the application of Louis to use so-called "Chicago" gloves.

This means, first, that Jacobs will not be in the German's corner, and, second, that the rival gladiators will swing at each other with gloves stuffed with curled hair, instead of boiler felt. The main preference of the champion for the "Chicago" glove, however, was due to special construction designed to accomodate his oversized thumbs. The "New York" gloves, officially designated, probably will cover this contingency.

BAER BOUT.

The commission, with an eye to the best interests of the prize fight industry, announced a special meeting will be held Thursday to conclude contract arrangements for the Louis-Schmeling winner to fight Max Baer for the title here in September.

Judged by the demand for the top price seats, it will be like old times around the ringside section tomorrow night. Speculators were forced to trim their scales today, as some weakness developed in the market demand, but they have been getting as high as $100 for choice tickets of the $30 variety. There will be a host of notables and celebrities in the gathering.

Schmeling Flies To Newark.

Accompanying Schmeling were his manager, Joe Jacobs, Trainer Max Machon, several German newspapermen and a half-dozen reporters for American papers.

Schmeling, who arrived here by automobile from Speculator, N. Y., where he has been training for the championship bout, appeared in good spirits, but had no predictions to make regarding the fight.

He also declined comment on a wire he received yesterday from Promoter Mike Jalobs "positively forbidding" him to fly to New York.

Merrill flew the plane here from Newark earlier in the day and motored to Speculator for dinner with the challenger.

The fight that has them all guessing goes on under the stars (Mike Jacobs hopes) tomorrow night in Yankee stadium.

And regardless of what happens, barring rain, Mike Jacobs will be the bread-winner. The fight is almost certain to draw in excess of a million-dollar gate—boxing's first since the second Dempsey-Tunney fight in Philadelphia.

ARMSTRONG INFLUENCE.

Louis, with the advantage of youth on his side, plus the sad experience of the last Schmeling fight, may have learned a few things that will stand him in good stead against the German challenger.

He has had some coaching from Henry Armstrong, the welter and featherweight champion. Armstrong is a whirlwind type. He fills the air and his opponent's face with gloves.

And it is understood he has "sold" this style of fighting to Louis and that the dark avenger will come out swinging and bid for a quick knockout.

Louis is reasonably certain to have learned something to his advantage in the past two years. And if he has, as they say, finally perfected a defense for Schmeling's right hand, he ought to win. For Schmeling's left very likely is no more potent than it was the last time.

All the boxing experts have flocked back to the Louis banner. That is to say, for every one who likes Schmeling there are two who favor Louis.

That's the way it was before, although more so.

All well laid plans, however, can be knocked into a cocked hat by a well-directed punch to the chin. If Louis throws caution to the winds and Schmeling slips inside with a quick one, he may repeat his feat of two years ago and become the first boxer in history to regain his title.

SO MANY ANGLES.

There are so many angles to a prize fight. And especially this one. There is the question of Schmeling's age. It is very likely true he has trained hard and diligently all his life.

And yet the old legs begin to go and just when they'll fail to respond you never know. Dempsey didn't know until he tried to catch up with Tunney after the "long count" episode.

Dempsey couldn't catch up. His heart was willing but his legs wouldn't respond. So there is the question that if the title bout is drawn out tomorrow night how well Schmeling will be able to last.

He always had a world of stamina but, as said, he is a veteran of many ring battles and in a gruelling, drawn-out affair his underpinning might fade.

So it would seem perfectly logical that Schmeling will try to get it over in more or less of a hurry. The 80,000 fans may see a slashing toe-to-toe contest with both men trying for a quick knockout.

"QUICK-KILL" METHOD.

If Louis actually adopts the "quick-kill" method of attack and doesn't leave his chin a target for Schmeling's right, the advantage might be his even if he were not able to stop Schmeling early.

The longer the fight goes the more advantage he ought to have. Because 24-year-old legs can take it. Louis has proven before that he has the stamina.

And it's mighty hard to take a champion's title away on a decision, although Schmeling lost his that way six years ago to Sharkey.

Still and all, he had a sort of questionable title. You only win six-day bicycle races and regattas sitting down, not heavyweight championships, please.

Somehow, I feel it will be all over in somewhat less than 10 rounds. The fight may not go more than six. But I think you could safely bet your shirt that it won't, as Louis says, end in one.

If Louis doesn't win, he'll fool a lot of wise men again. All former champions, except one, think him capable of stopping Schmeling.

The lone dissenter is Jack Johnson. He picked Schmeling the last time. He says Louis has too many flaws in his boxing style.

You'd never find the answer to this fight in a million words, however. It necessarily will be written at the ringside tomorrow night when the referee lifts the hand of one or the other and bawls:

"The winnah and . . ."

As a prominent member of the Viking Club and as president of the Swedish-American Club, her selection is entirely appropriate, due to her Swedish descent and her unfailing interest in Swedish affairs.

On Monday, Mrs. Ohlhaver will attend the unveiling of the monument at "The Rocks," near Wilmington, which is a gift to the United States from the Swedish people. Funds for the monument were raised by public subscription and represent 225,000 donors who contributed the necessary $60,000. Crown Prince Gustaf Adolf of Sweden will unveil the monument which will be accepted by President Roosevelt for the United States.

On Tuesday Mrs. Ohlhaver will go to Philadelphia where the new Swedish museum will be dedicated and where a brilliant banquet will be tendered that evening to the Crown Prince Gustaf Adolf, the Crown Princess Louise and the minister of foreign affairs of Finland, Dr. E. Rudolf W. Holspi. The banquet will be held at the Benjamin Franklin hotel and it will be preceded by one of the largest outdoor festivals ever held in this country, the festival to feature Swedish folk songs, native dances, etc.

Other Georgians who will attend the tercentenary include Mrs. Regina Rambo Benson and her children, Regina Anne, Warren and Marcellus, of Marietta, who will leave today for Wilmington. Mrs. Benson, as you know, is president of the Georgia Democratic Woman's Club, and is one of the state's most popular figures. Her daughter, who attends Brenau College, inherits much of her mother's magnetic charm, and will attend the various social affairs given in connection with the unveiling.

This family group will be completed by Emma Mae Rambo, of Rockledge, Fla., sister of Mrs. Benson, who will accompany the quartet to Delaware. Miss Rambo goes to the unveiling as Florida's representative, having been appointed by the Governor of that state.

Mrs. Benson and her sister are direct descendants of Peter Gunson Rambo and Sven Fhute, who were among the group of pioneer Swedes coming to this country aboard the vessel Kahmar-Nyckel that landed at "The Rocks" on the banks of the Delaware river in 1638.

PUT on your thinking cap and fathom this one, if you can, for it gives clues to the identity of two prominent Atlantans whose marriage in September is to arouse much social interest.

He, it seems, is an attractive brunet and the second of four brothers. His education was obtained at eastern schools.

She is the second of three charming sisters and she attended school in Atlanta.

The romance of the young couple is of several years' standing, and it is with pleasure that Sally hears their names will soon be inscribed on the "Mr. and Mrs." register.

ATTRACTIVE young Elsa McCall, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard McCall Jr., proved that she believed in preparedness the other day. Elsa accompanied her father to Athens, where he attended alumni day at the University of Georgia, of which he is a prominent alumnus.

When the meeting was over and Mr. McCall prepared to return to Atlanta, Elsa said, "Oh, we must stay over and go to the dance this evening."

Her father answered, "Why, Elsa, you haven't any evening dress to wear, so how could we go?"

And Elsa proved that she does believe in preparedness when she answered: "It's funny, daddy, but in some mysterious manner an evening dress got into my suitcase!"

AT the family luncheon last Sunday following the christening of three-month-old Walter Sims Stearns, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford T. Stearns, representatives of four generations of this prominent family were present. The baby's maternal great-grandmother, Mrs. John Newton Sims, who will soon celebrate her 83d birthday, was the oldest member of the family present.

The second generation represented was the baby's maternal grandfather, Walter Sims, former mayor of Atlanta, for whom the little boy is named. The baby's mother is the former Evelyn Sims and only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sims. Incidentally, the little boy is the only grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Sims, who are the proud grandparents of three granddaughters.

Miss Lanier Weds Mr. Mills At Church Ceremony in Millen

MILLEN, Ga., June 21.—The marriage of Miss Rosabel Lanier, of Millen, and Harold Leroy Mills, of Worcester, Mass., was solemnized this afternoon at the Millen Baptist church before an assemblage of relatives and friends. The music was under the direction of Mrs. Murias Daniel. The soloists were Miss Martha Louise Daniel, Mrs. Dean Brinson and Miss Elizabeth Ellison.

On the church altar was the old Lanier family Bible. The satin cover was showered with valley lilies and on either side of the Bible were placed the old silver communion grails used in the church when it was first organized in 1885. These grails were filled with bride's roses.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Cleveland Thompson, the bride's only sister, wore aqua net dress and hat fashioned like that worn by the maid of honor. Each carried a bouquet of roses, gypsophila and fever-few, showered with ribbons matching colors with those worn on their hats.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Dr. Charles Lanier, of Macon. They were met at the chancel by the groom and his best man, Sydney Lanier, of Charleston, brother of the bride.

The bride wore white lace made over white taffeta. Her veil of illusion tulle was caught with a coronet of orange blossoms. Her bouquet of white altheas and snapdragons, showered with white crepe myrtle was a replica of the flowers carried by her paternal grandmother when she married in Quitman in 1864.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. T. R. Harvill, pastor of the church. After the ceremony Miss Elizabeth Ellison sang "Song of Ruth," by Gounod.

After the recessional, in the vestibule of the church, Mr. and Mrs. Mills stood with Mrs. W. V. Lanier, mother of the bride, to receive congratulations from the guests.

Mrs. Lanier wore black lace over white taffeta, and a large hat of black straw. Her shoulder bouquet was formed of white roses and valley lilies.

Mrs. J. G. Hadaway Jr., sister of the bride, was matron of honor and the bride's only attendant. She wore a modish costume of floral print with the yellow shades predominating, and a large hat of yellow straw. A shoulder bouquet of gladiolus blooms completed the costume.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, Jim Valeri. She wore a dress of blue crepe fashioned with fingertip cape embroidered in white, and offset with white hat and white accessories. Her flowers were a spray of orchids.

Henry Robertson, of LaGrange, served as the groom's best man.

MY DAY

By Eleanor Roosevelt

HYDE PARK, N. Y.—Eleanor, young Curtis and I drove home from the wedding on Saturday evening and arrived rather late, at least for them. When I telephoned over yesterday morning, Curtis asked to speak to me and told me his neck still felt very queer. I prophesied that it was the result of sleeping curled up in the car and, on inquiring today, found that the ill effects had pretty well worn off.

I was glad to find Mrs. Scheider really much better on Sunday morning, but the doctor is still keeping her in bed and she said that he gave her no encouragement this morning. His sole remark was to say rather haughtily that it was a strange thing that all his patients kept repeating, "When may I go home?" We are really most anxious to have her home, so I hope he will relent before long.

Word came last evening that the President was marooned in Buzzards Boy in the fog. I never like fog and I knew that for Elliott and Ruth it would really be serious if they were unable to catch their train last night, so I was much relieved when someone kindly telephoned me that they had seen them in the Pennsylvania station.

Instead of arriving at 8 or 9 this morning, the President, Anna and John reached the big house about 10:30. Franklin Jr. and Ethel were still eating a leisurely breakfast on the boat.

They explained to me that Elliott and Ruth had been put ashore yesterday morning and had taken a train home from Providence. This was an easy adjustment, and I was glad that they had not spent the day wondering whether they would make their train for Texas or not. The one thing Elliott really worried about was his crops! He kept telling me that he had left home in the middle of the harvest, and any farmer knows that's a bad time to leave home, even for a brother's wedding.

My mother-in-law greets these large family influxes with great joy, but if I were in her place there are some things that I should find rather trying. For instance, having to dig out of everybody who will be home for lunch and who has invited any outside guests. I finally wrote a list out for her before leaving for the hospital to see Mrs. Scheider this morning, but I had a feeling that before I got back it might have changed several times. Mr. and Mrs. Chester Arthur and Mr. and Mrs. Will Hays are coming to lunch, and someone remarked that we were going in for presidential names!

I had a glimpse of Mrs. Morgenthau this morning at the hospital when she brought in the most lovely box of sweet peas, pansies and roses for Mrs. Scheider. We have all enjoyed their fragrance.

HEALTH TALKS

By DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

CHILD PREFERS RAW VEGETABLES.

Mrs. P. K. complains that her 4 1-2-year-old daughter refuses to eat her vegetables in the civilized manner, that is, cooked. For the past few months the child has refused all cooked vegetables and eaten only raw potatoes, raw turnips, raw carrots, raw peas, raw string beans. Mother has been afraid to give the child all she wants of these raw vegetables, for she has Ben Told

On a few occasions the child has even asked for some raw ground beef when mother has been preparing it for dinner. Mother wonders whether this unusual appetite, which has been developing since the child was about two years old, is due to some lack of vitamins or minerals in the child's diet?

The child eats lettuce salad with gusto, loves apples and oranges, eats very little meat, drinks a glass of chocolate-flavored milk three times a day. She weighs 35 pounds.

When mother consulted a physician a year ago about the child's appetite, all the physician told her was that it wouldn't look nice if some day they were to go into a restaurant and the young lady asked for raw potatoes or raw string beans. Mother agreed that it would be unusual, and that's all the information she got. Now, please, what have I to say about it. (Mrs. P. K.)

I'd say simply oh—if I were allowed to do so.

Back in the days of Holt children under five years of age were not allowed to have any raw vegetables or even any raw fruit except in a few instances some raw orange juice.

In recent years, however, we have learned the value and importance of raw foods in the diet of the infant and young child. For example, thousands of puny, sickly, malnourished infants have thrived on liberal daily feeding with raw banana, and one of the most effective ways of treating acute gastro - intestinal upsets, vomiting and diarrhea, infants of any age is a diet of raw scraped apples and nothing else for a day or two.

For years I have been urging the practice of eating one or two raw vegetables daily as a protective habit. It increases the intake of vitamins and minerals which are more or less removed or destroyed in the cooking process.

If Mrs. P. K.'s daughter goes into a restaurant some day and orders raw potatoes, raw string beans, raw carrots, raw turnip, raw cabbage or what have you, it will be a good sign the girl knows her onions. If she hesitates to order such raw food it will probably be because the place is filthy and she is too wise to take a chance eating any food that has been handled by the uncleanly folk who work there. There are a good many such places, "inspected and passed" by the health department, where it is a grave risk to eat anything raw.

Cooking kills germs and makes food safe. Pasteurizing kills disease germs in milk, if the milk is of indifferent purity. Certified milk is pure and safe for drinking anywhere—provided it is served in the original container.

Raw beef or other meat is risky to eat—cooking destroys possible larvae of tapeworm in raw beef, of trichina in ham or pork.

AN ALL-DAY VERSION OF THE DIRNDL

The dirndl idea is so successful and popular that fashions for every hour of the day are now taking hints from its blithe charm. Here's one of them—a sleeveless dress with very full shirred skirt, very snug, built-up waistline and colorful rows of ribbon for trimming. With pumps and a broad-brimmed hat, it will fit perfectly into the picture on midsummer afternoons. The unusually wide V-neckline makes this design particularly youthful and cool.

This modified version of the dirndl will be lovely in sheer cottons—dimity, voile or handkerchief lawn—plain-colored, white or in delicate flower prints.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1552-B is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Corresponding bust measurements 30, 32, 34, 36 and 38. Size 14 (32) requires 4 1-2 yards of 35-inch material. Eight yards of ribbon or binding to trim.

Send fifteen cents for the Barbara Bell Spring and Summer Fashion Pattern Book. Make yourself attractive, practical and becoming clothes, selecting designs from the Barbara Bell well-planned, easy-to-make patterns.

PLEASANT HOMES

By ELIZABETH M'RAE BOYKIN.

News About Awnings.

Ho hum. These languid days make us appreciate the joys of home just because it's too much trouble to move. But in order to enjoy home, there are a few practical points to check up before we settle down for a long summer's loss.

Your Chance.

First, there is the question of awnings. They're essential at the windows or on the porches that get the brunt of the sun during the hot part of the day. And there you have a chance to do something very gay and charming. Yellow awnings on a white house always catch our eye; rust awnings, the color of Italian fisherman's sails, are delightful on white, too. Then there are all manner of stripes that have a jaunty air, especially the jade and white ones. The nicest part about awnings is the way they flutter in the summer breeze, whatever their pattern.

But there are new tricks in awnings you'll want to know about too. Metal blinds on the order of Venetian blinds are very adjustable, efficient and decorative on the outside of the house. A similar awning is made of metal visors that open and shut very slickly.

Ever So Cool.

Window shades are a part of the picture, too. A fresh white shade in the right room looks ever so cool. So do shades of those lovely new colors—larkspur blue and springleaf green. Don't forget chintz window shades, too—any window shade man will make them for 50 cents or under if you supply the roller and material. Bamboo shades, wooden slat shades and Venetian blinds are more ambitious but they pep up a weary room no end. Besides, they do double duty by keeping out the sun but not the air.

Fans belong to the summer-at-home picture, too. The new fans with tape or rubber blades are safe and don't need wire guards. The overlapping chromium blade fan is supposed to be the last word in silent effective breezes. A new fan on a floor pedestal is nice for the porch, and there's even a fan made to keep the attic decently fresh and cool on hot days. Most fans nowadays are draft-proof, too, another big and welcome improvement.

Complete-in-Itself.

Air conditioning need not involve fancy piping as you may have imagined. Often enough it may be achieved by the simple process of installing a complete-in-itself unit that cools and cleans the air in summer. The same affair can clean and humidify in winter. You can even get a unit that excludes outside noises if you're bothered by them.

All in all there's no excuse for crabbing about the weather this year, because there's lots to be done about it.

Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Miss Boykin, care The Constitution, for our bulletin, "Beauty and the Bath," for more tips on summer comfort.

GET READY FOR SUMMER FUN BY LEARNING NEW STEPS AT HOME

And how cleverly Jim leads! He never does one step too long but glides easily from one to another—makes dancing a joy!

You can dance as well by teaching yourself with diagrams which show you popular steps and ways to combine them.

Practice with long sweeping steps, swing legs from hips with little knee action. Knowing how to place your feet, how to keep time makes it easy to get the swing of it.

With diagrams for practice combinations you go with never a stumble from the square into an open two-step—on into a slick two-step turn.

Be admired for your mastery of all the popular steps. Our 40-page booklet, Teach Yourself the Latest Dance Steps, diagrams and explains rhumba, tango, waltz, fox-trot, shag. Also Suzy-Q, truckin', Big Apple. How to lead, follow—dance with grace and style.

Send 15c for our booklet, TEACH YOURSELF THE LATEST DANCE STEPS, to Home Institute, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

Beauty According To You

(Posed by Bette Davis)

By LILLIAN MAE.

There is a new skin normalizer which will interest men and women alike—for after all, the original skin oils of both sexes are approximately the same.

It's not a cosmetic, but an oil which is the result of five years of brilliant research on the part of a graduate registered pharmacist and chemist—an oil containing that very important vitamin F which analysis proves to be one of the most important lipids present in the make-up of the skin with which we are born, but which, through all the necessary cleansings, exposure and other wear and tear, are dissipated as we grow older.

By brilliant experiments, the pharmacist - chemist discovered that this so very important vitamin can be reintroduced into the system by absorption through the skin, thus effecting a normal balance of the necessary lipids.

A healthy woman with a dead-looking skin can reclaim it with freshness and youthful texture by regular use of this oil—and, a tip to men—you with rough skins may simplify the shaving problem by using a few drops of the oil.

This new discovery is highly concentrated so that only a bit of it is necessary, though it sinks in deeply. Used after cleansing, with a light upward and outward massage, it is most effective. Any excess—and there won't be excess unless you use it hurriedly—should be removed with tissues before applying make-up.

If you have rough, red hands or brittle nails, you'll be delighted with the change in their appearance after using the oil on them.

But its application to the hair problem is, perhaps, the most interesting of all. Use it to recondition hair that is soon to be put through the process of a new permanent—or hair that has been made brittle by too many and too frequent permanents.

Phone me today at the office of The Constitution for the name of this remarkable preparation and the Atlanta shops at which it may be purchased, for after all, at this time of year when the sun is taking its toll of oil from skin exposed to its rays, the wise woman will take extraordinary precautions toward preventing her skin from drying out.

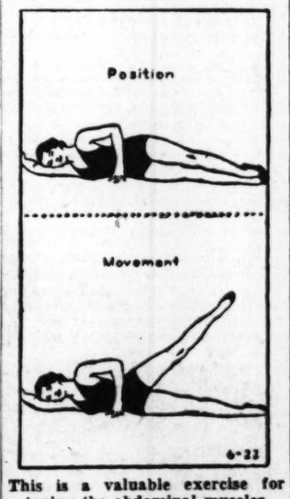

Use of the oil before exposure will prevent skin from burning, while its use after exposure will soothe and replace the oils essential to skin beauty.

Your Figure, Madame!

By IDA JEAN KAIN.

CORRECTIVE EXERCISE NECESSARY TO TONE STRETCHED MUSCLES.

The one time in your life when exercise is a downright necessity is after the baby arrives. Your figure is at a critical stage and a brief period of rest should be followed by an exercise program to tone stretched muscles. If you do nothing to strengthen these flabby muscles in the belief that nature will take care of everything in due time, you may never again have a lovely figure.

This is a valuable exercise for toning the abdominal muscles.

Just at first you may appear so delightfully flat that you think you do not need exercise. Those stretched muscles, however, must be brought back to tone. Otherwise, in a few weeks they will begin to accumulate fat and the figure will continue to spread.

It may come as a brand-new idea that you can exercise soon after the arrival of the baby, but with your doctor's permission you can begin mild exercise sometime during the first week. Some doctors believe that the sooner exercise is begun the better, and most obstetricians agree that you will be stronger at the end of the two weeks in bed if a few simple exercises are performed even during this recuperative period.

For the first week the exercises are very simple and consist mainly of raising the arms slowly overhead, bending the head forward on the chest, and raising the head and shoulders just enough to clear the bed. During the second week the exercise may be increased slightly and by the third week, if you are strong enough, your exercise may be fairly active. Begin very gradually, performing the movements slowly and rhythmically. It is important that you relax completely between each movement. Not a single exercise should be attempted until it has been approved by your doctor.

Following is the type of corrective exercise which, in normal cases, may be started during the third week:

Position: Lying on back in bed, knees flexed and feet flat on bed.

Movement: Resting weight on soles of feet and shoulders, raise the abdomen and hips from the bed, pushing upward as high as possible. Later, fling the arms back of the head as the hips are raised. Repeat not more than five times.

There have been so many requests for exercises of this type that I have compiled them into a leaflet, "After the Baby Comes," for which you may send. The exercises are for normal cases and are for the first through the fourth weeks.

FRIENDLY COUNSEL

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

Please tell me what you would do if you were in my place. I am terribly in love with my husband, to whom I have been married for almost a year. Several times recently I have found girls' telephone numbers in his pocket. He always gives me some reason for having the telephone number, never once telling me that it is some girl's number. Once, I called one of them and found that he had lied to me about it. I explained to her the seriousness of running around with a married man, and I don't think she has bothered him. Now, it has happened again. When I try to talk to my husband about it, he starts quarreling and we usually end by having a big fuss. I just can't seem to reason it out with him. If I say anything about it to him, he accuses me of nagging and criticizing.

Please don't tell me to go out and cultivate some "gentlemen" friends of my own. I just can't do it. My only interest in life is my husband, and I don't get any kick out of being around any other man. I am fairly independent, as I have a job. Sometimes I think about leaving him but then I decide that it is better to worry about him just at times than to have to worry all the time, like I would do if we were separated. He is good to me, provides a good living for me, but he just can't seem to get his mind off other women. What would you do?

WORRIED.

ANSWER:

If I had the good sense and the pluck and the self-control of a certain woman I know, I would try to take my husband's mind off other women by being so agreeable and attractive that he couldn't wait to get home in the evening. Instead of berating him for being a cad and destroying my confidence, I would compliment him on his generosity, tell him I loved him, believed in him, depended upon him and counted on him to come through.

But, curse the luck! We women can't keep our mouths shut when our minds are agitated and our hearts hurt and the more we love the more susceptible we are to agitations and hurts until our tongues go like bell clappers. All of which is very unfortunate since no husband will hear more than one protest on any subject without nailing the word nagger on his wife and when he's put this on her he believes he has the right to do anything short of cutting her throat.

It would never occur to me to advise a woman to try vindictive methods with her husband whatever the provocation; because spite seldom accomplishes anything but to breed more spite. Furthermore, a wife who goes out to cultivate "gentlemen friends" frequently gets more than she calls for and even if her spite policy should bring the husband back to the fold, her extra-mural experiences might conceivably spoil the homecoming.

Pick out the love tune on your piano, young wife, and unless your husband is a born philanderer he will hum it with you.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

"Holiday" Role Evens Old Score for Hepburn

By HAROLD HEFFERNAN.

(Copyright, 1938, for The Constitution and North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, June 21.—Behind the scenes with some of the new films:

"Holiday"—Philip Barry's heart-tugging comedy of sophisticates in its third interpretation. . . . First a hit play on Broadway. . . . Second, in 1930, it brought Ann Harding her greatest dramatic triumph on the screen. The third version is one with modern touches, but it retains most of the original dialogue, which will be remembered as plenty smart.

It marks the fulfillment of Katharine Hepburn's ambition to play the Linda role, which she lost by a narrow squeak to Harding when the first picture was in preparation. . . . Coming here from the New York stage as a lean, gawky girl in 1929, Hepburn made a screen test at R.-K.-O., using an excerpt from her favorite play, "Holiday," as material. . . . Executives applauded, gave her a contract and might have cast her as Linda, but the role had been awarded to Harding two weeks before.

Hepburn never got over her disappointment. It was she who induced Columbia to buy the movie rights from R.-K.-O. and make a modern version starring her. She helped pay the story cost and went on half salary to expedite the loaning deal. . . . Now she can figure it wise investment, because the critics generally appraise it as the greatest performance of her career, exceeding even "Morning Glory," academy award winner.

Story carries poor man-rich girl theme, with two central characters attempting to escape from repression. . . . Huge two-story Seton mansion set, through which Hero Cary Grant wanders almost lost for comical opening sequence, cost studio $80,000 to construct, occupying all of largest stage on lot. . . . Unusual, in that set was built like real house, so that much of the action supposed to take place on second floor really did that. . . . Steel girders supported the set and electric elevators (real ones) carried players up and down.

When George Cukor was announced as director of the picture, "Gone With the Wind," marked up its fourteenth postponement. Cukor is listed as head man on that production—if and when it gets under way.

"Gold Diggers in Paris"—Fifth in the musical series which had its start back in the earliest talkie days when Nick Lucas' banjo-crooning of "Tip Toe Through the Tulips" stole the show. . . They've held up pretty well, and Warner Brothers always pour large quantities of gorgeous sets and pretty girls into the backgrounds. . . . However, one set's costuming—that for the South Sea island, "I Wanna Go Back to Bali" number—was reasonably priced. . . . Outfits for girls cost 20 cents each.

On the other hand, the unit's business manager complained because 100 show girls wore out four pairs each of opera-length hose during the course of production—and they cost $5 a pair because they're woven of special refraction index thread to best reflect light and give off a glossy sheen for cameras.

Rudy Vallee, photographed advantageously for the first time, returned to New York a day after the film was completed. . . . Although he prefers to live in Hollywood, he thinks New York should be the center of his radio activities. . . . Six-piece band of "Schnickelfritzes" uses 78 different instruments to whip out corny swing music, including auto sirens, train whistles, old auto rims and conch shells. . . . The orchestra was discovered by Vallee while they were appearing in a small nigth club near Minneapolis.

Rosemary Lane, who is featured, is one of the few girls in Hollywood who can play polo. . . . She learned to oblige a boy friend she now dislikes. . . . Crystal torchiers used to illuminate set originally belonged to Louis XVI for his chateau at Perpignac. . . . They were purchased by Warners in Paris two years ago for $40,000 each.

Bridge Lite

FREE RAISES.

Except when made following a defensive takeout double, free raises, in addition to promising normal trump assistance, should guarantee at least four winning tricks in support to partner's opening one-suit bid.

Honor-trick requirements for a full raise depend upon the ruffing possibilities of responder's hand.

Lacking a satisfactory biddable suit, responder makes a free raise holding normal trump support . . . Q x x or x x x x . . . and;

(1) One honor-trick, with a void suit or singleton.

(2) One and one-half honor-tricks, with a doubleton.

(3) Two honor-tricks, with a 4-3-3-3 distribution.

The following hands are typical free single raises when partner opens the bidding with one heart:

		(Shortest Suit.)
(2. H. T.)	(4-3-3-3)
Spades—10 6 3 2;	Hearts—Q J 2;	Diamonds—A Q 4; Clubs—7 4 3
Spades—10 6 3;	Hearts—9 6 3 2;	Diamonds—A K 4; Clubs—7 4 3
Spades—10 6 3 2;	Hearts—K Q 2;	Diamonds—A 9 4; Clubs—7 4 3
(1½ H. T.)	(With Doubleton)	(Shortest Suit.)
Spades—9 6 3;	Hearts—K 9 5 2;	Diamonds—A 8 4 2; Clubs—7 4
Spades—9 6 3;	Hearts—9 6 5 3 2;	Diamonds—A 9 4; Clubs—Q 4
Spades—A J 3;	Hearts—Q J 2;	Diamonds—8 5 4 3 2; Clubs—7 4
(1 H. T.)	(With Singleton)	(Shortest Suit.)
Spades—K 9 6 4;	Hearts—J 8 6 3;	Diamonds—Q 10 4 2; Clubs—7
Spades—10 6 3 2;	Hearts—8 6 5 3 2;	Diamonds—A 9 4; Clubs—7
Spades—K 9 6 4;	Hearts—K 6 3;	Diamonds—9 5 4 3 2; Clubs—7
		(With a Void.)
Spades—K 6 3 2;	Hearts—9 6 5 3 2;	Diamonds—Q 9 4 2; Clubs—Void
Spades—K 6 3 2;	Hearts—Q 6 5 3;	Diamonds—8 5 4 3 2; Clubs—Void
Spades—9 6 5 3 2;	Hearts—A 6 3;	Diamonds—8 5 4 3 2; Clubs—Void

SHUT-OUT RAISE.

When an opponent doubles partner's opening one-suit bid for a takeout, responder, with a hand weak in honor-trick strength but fairly strong in distributional values, may make a shut-out raise. A single raise after a takeout double should not be considered to be any stronger than a shaded raise.

Partner's one heart opening is doubled for a takeout, third-hand raising to two hearts, holding:

Spades—9	Hearts—Q 6 5 2	Diamonds—8 6 5 4 3	Clubs—9 7 4
Spades 9 2	Hearts—J 6 5 4	Diamonds—K 6 5 4	Clubs—9 7 4
Spades—9 3 2	Hearts—Q 6 5 2	Diamonds—K 6 5	Clubs—9 7 4

INSTALLMENT XXXII.

"Why, of course . . . Mr. Yodel." Mrs. Layne plainly was taken back. "Won't you come right in the living room? I'll have to ask you to excuse its looks. I was reading. The paper is scattered everywhere. I really didn't expect . . ."

"I don't suppose you did," Clay agreed. "I didn't either. And, the more I think of it, the gladder I am that you happened to be here alone so I could tell you some things. I think it would be best if I laid my cards all on the table at once. I love Larry and I intend to marry her. With your approval, I hope, and Larry's."

"For pity's sake what are you talking about?" the mother demanded, her gray eyes wide with amazement. There also was something in her face akin to growing fear. As if it had occurred to her that this engaging young man had taken leave of his senses.

"Don't worry," he assured her. "That may sound crazy, but I never was more serious in my life. Larry knows I love her. I've known it from the first day I saw her, but I never told her until that day . . . when my uncle let her go. Of course she couldn't believe me, so I told her the next day, too. I intended to tell her as often as I could, until she would believe it. But she wrote me a note saying that she didn't care to see me again. Did she tell you?"

"Yes," Mrs. Layne admitted feebly. "I knew."

"And of course you're thinking I must be some sort of a . . . well, ill-bred to say the least, to be here now. The reason is that I have just found out why Larry wrote that note. It seems to me that all I've been doing is saying, 'I didn't know.' But I didn't discover that my uncle, Mr. Wardlaw, had come here to see Larry until this morning. You don't need to tell me, but I know what he wanted. That's why Larry wrote to me. She must have thought I was a beautiful cad! I'm right about that am I not?"

"Why, he didn't see Larry," her mother admitted reluctantly. "He talked to Muriel. But . . . you're right."

"I knew it," Clay admitted with a sigh. "Please let me tell you what happened . . . everything."

He gave the whole miserable account, omitting none of its details so far as he knew them.

"I'm not here to apologize for my uncle," he concluded, "much less to explain him. I don't think he had the slightest personal grievance against Larry or against your family. It must have been some sort of an obsession that he didn't want me to have any interests outside that mill . . . that and some crazy notion that he owned me because he had paid for my education. I don't know."

"It's quite clear to me," Mrs. Layne told him with unexpected astuteness. "Jealousy. That's all it is. I think Mrs. Kime was quite correct in what she told you. Mr. Wardlaw was very much in love with your mother. I can see how he thought you should have been his son. He's led a hard and bitter life. I think he always had been counting on you and, when you came, he couldn't bear the idea of sharing you with anyone."

"That may be it," Clay granted. "Just the same, I was a fool not to have had my eyes opened sooner and taken things into my own hands. I should have come here and made Larry hear the truth. . . . Maybe she'll listen to you."

"I don't know. Larry seems different from my other children. I've never found it easy to understand her."

Mrs. Layne, do you think that someone else has a claim on her affections? Young Grant, for instance?"

"I don't know. Wilbur is very fond of Larry, and he's a nice boy. I have rather hoped that Larry could like him. You see, I'm old-fashioned that way. I believe in girls marrying early and settling down. My Muriel had a very unhappy experience . . ."

"I understood so," Clay interposed.

"Well, that has been just one more reason that I have wanted to see Larry happy. I believe that she would have the same intense devotion to any man she loved."

"So do I," Clay agreed warmly. "And I've a notion that I'm the man who should have it, too. You wouldn't have any personal objection to me, would you, Mrs. Layne? Even if I do have to call Mr. Wardlaw a relative out of courtesy? It wasn't my fault, after all. So far as I know. I'm perfectly respectable."

"Why, yes . . . I'm sure you are," Mrs. Layne admitted in some confusion.

"All right. That's one thing out of the way. What's your guess, about my chances? Do you think Larry does or ever could care a little about me?"

"She's the only one who can tell you that, Mr. Yodel."

"No guesses?"

"Well . . . I'm not so sure she doesn't. Larry's been different since she knew you. My girls both tell me I'm too romantic for an old woman, but a mother can see some things. Larry has been pretty upset over losing her job at the mill. She's tried to make me think that was the only thing that worried her, but . . . she's been unhappy about something else. I can't explain it. But if you really do love her . . . I'd ask her about it. This may make a difference."

"You mean, then, that she did think I let Mr. Wardlaw come here?"

"Well, he let Muriel think so. I know that."

Clay beamed upon his hostess.

"You know, Mrs. Layne, one of the main reasons I want to marry Larry is so I can have you for a mother. I don't remember having one of my own. I'm counting on you to help me. Between us, we've got to see that Larry understands. If she throws me out, or tries to, I'm going to put up a fight. Will you help?"

"I might."

"Mrs. Layne, I'm scared. I've simply got to see Larry and do my best to make her understand, but I know that she isn't going to like the idea very well. I don't want to be rough. I wish you'd tell me how you think I ought to go about it. If I came here this evening, do you think you could arrange matters so I would be sure of a chance to talk to her? If I can only get a good start, I hope I can carry on. Would it do any good, do you think, if you were to tell her I was here? Tell her that I'm coming back later and that she owes it to me to listen to what I have to say?"

"I don't know. . . . She just might decide to leave the house. If she did, I wouldn't be able to stop her, you know."

"I couldn't very well hide in a closet, or anything like that, I suppose."

Mrs. Layne pursed her soft lips thoughtfully.

"I shouldn't really do it, I'm sure," was her conclusion. "But I think I will. The girls should be home before long. I'll ask you to stay to supper. Larry can't very well go out if we have a guest, I should think. After that, it will be up to you. I'll promise to keep Muriel out of the way; Griff is working."

"That's mighty sweet of you," Clay declared. "I'll do it. I suppose there isn't anything I could do to help while we're waiting . . . any errands or anything?"

"Oh, no. It will be a cold supper. But, if I were you, I think I would move my car away from out front."

"Lord!" I never thought of that. Thanks!"

Clayton Odell drew a long breath when Mrs. Layne, from her observation post at the window, announced that her two daughters had returned.

Larry and Muriel were laughing and talking as they came up the porch steps, Larry leading the way and tugging off her hat as she crossed the door.

"Back safe and sound?" was her mother's greeting, accompanied by a warning gesture of a finger laid to her lips. "We have company for supper," she cautioned in lowered tones. At the same time, she closed the front door quickly behind Muriel and paused with her ample back against it, as if to make sure that her younger daughter would not attempt to stage a flight. She listened somewhat fearfully.

"Oh . . ." It had an almost strangled sound. Then Clay's bland tones.

"How do you do, Larry? Good afternoon, Miss Muriel."

The responses were subdued, but polite. Then Larry was in the hall, calling back a gracious, "Excuse me a minute, please" over her shoulder. She caught her mother by the arm and fairly dragged her to the kitchen, thrust her within and closed the door before she burst out wildly:

"Mums! How could you! How could you! You know . . ." A sob caught her throat. Tears of helpless anger filled her eyes."

Mrs. Layne met the charge with unlooked-for composure. A resentful attitude, she decided instinctively, would be best in this situation.

"See here, young lady," she countered, "I don't know of any good reason why I can't entertain guests here without asking your leave . . . even if you do seem to think you're grown up. I couldn't very well do anything but ask Mr. Yodel to stay until you girls came home."

"Oh, but Mums!" Larry groaned.

"But nothing! He's our guest and you're going to treat him that way. I know what I'm talking about. Now you walk right in and entertain him. Tell Muriel I want her to help me with supper."

STORIES OF COMMON THINGS.
II—Spoons.

If you had lived near the Euphrates river 5,000 years ago, it is fairly certain you would have known about the city of Kish. It was a large and famous place, with many temples and towers.

Far back in history, Kish was deserted and fell into ruins. We do not know just why the city's life came to an end, but we do know that the Euphrates river changed its course, leaving only a dry bed beside the city.

English worker putting bowls in spoons.

Today there are mounds which cover the remains of the olden city. Scientists of Oxford University and of Chicago's Field Museum have gone there to dig into the mounds. Walls of homes and temples have been located, also a tower 75 feet high.

Among the small objects found in the mounds are shell lamps, copper hand-mirrors and copper bowls. Another object obtained is a copper spoon with a long, straight handle and a small bowl. This spoon is believed to be at least 5,000 years old.

That, indeed, is a very old spoon, but it was not the first used by men. People of the Stone Age had spoons made from shells. The Swiss Lake Dwellers made spoons or ladles from horns of animals, also from wood.

Our word "spoon" came from an old Norse word meaning "chip," and it points back to the time when Norsemen used wooden spoons. Even if people of ancient times didn't have good table manners, they needed spoons when eating soup or broth. Fingers took the place of forks, but who would want to use the palm of the hand for hot soup!

Now and then we may hear the old saying, "He was born with a golden spoon in his mouth." This really means that a certain person had the fortune (good or bad) to be born in a rich family, but it reminds us of the time when rich families used spoons made of pure gold. That may happen even today when a feast is held for a king, but most people, even the very rich, think sterling silver is good enough for any feast.

Sterling silver tableware is owned nowadays by many families which are far from being rich. We also have silver-plated tableware which, in some cases, will keep its silver coating for 20 years or more.

When Christopher Columbus was a boy, some persons in Europe had folding spoons. These could be folded up so they would fit easily into a pocket. Later there came a novelty in the shape of an eating utensil with fork prongs at one end and a spoon bowl at the other end.

NEW YORK, June 21.—(AP)—Stocks bounded over profit selling barriers in today's market and posted further recoveries running to 3 points generally and from 5 to 9 in a few instances.

The list apparently enjoyed the continued stimulation of signs the legthy recession in business and industry may be nearing an end. Prompted by the outlook for huge government pump-priming and a better brand of speculative psychology, bidding for favored issues was spirited throughout the session.

Strength was well diversified in the curb market. On a turnover of 191,000 shares against 141,000 yesterday, outstanding gains were posted for Aluminum of America at 89 1-2, Sherwin-Williams 88 1-4, Pittsburgh Plate Glass 79 1-2, Humble Oil 64, Jones & Laughlin 29 3-4, Pepperell 63 and N. J. Zinc 55 1-2.

NEW YORK, June 21.—(AP)—Spurred by encouraging news of an increase in carloadings and renewed reports of impending government financial aid for needy carriers, rail liens generally showed substantial strength in the bond market today.

Gains of two points or more were fairly common, especially in the medium and lower priced groups. The Associated Press rail bond index was up 1.4 points.

Some industrials also showed strength although the industrial bond average held unchanged.

Utilities moved upward as a group. The low yield bond average was about the same.

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, June 21.—The latest crop of devaluation rumors was plowed under in today's foreign exchange dealings and major European currencies weakened in terms of the dollar.

Hardest hit was the pound sterling, which closed 1 3-16 of a cent below yesterday's finish. The decline in sterling was associated in international circles with a further recession in demand for gold in London.

In a wide swing the French franc lost .00 9-16 of a cent. Holland guilders lost .04 of a cent and the belga .03 of a cent.

The Federal Reserve Bank reported the engagement of $4,930,000 in gold in Japan for shipment here.

AVERAGE PRICE.

NEW ORLEANS, June 21.—(AP)—The average price of middling cotton today at 10 southern spot markets was 8.69 cents a pound; average for the past 30 market days 8.29 cents a pound.

NEW YORK, June 21.—(AP)—Cotton continued its advance today on unfavorable weather in the south, activity in the cotton goods market and strength of stocks. October sold up from 8.58 to 8.65 and closed at 8.63, with final prices 8 to 10 points net higher.

The market opened 6 to 9 points higher in response to firm Liverpool and Bombay cables and on buying from that market. Offers were not aggressive and prices responded to a moderate demand. Mill buying was more active as Worth Street reported buyers of cotton goods were paying 1-8 cent per yard advances following large sales yesterday. Other buying was based on expectations tomorrow's weekly weather report would reflect unfavorable crop progress. Final prices showed partial reactions from the best, when the market was 10 to 12 points net higher and almost 1 cent a pound above the recent lows.

Firmness at Liverpool was attributed to a bullish view of the unfavorable weather in the American cotton belt and owing to the brighter European atmosphere. Bombay and Liverpool houses, as well as brokers with Japanese connections, were early buyers here.

The showery weather attracted further unfavorable comment but the forecasts pointed to fair to partly cloudy conditions.

Exports 3,848, making 5,670,341 so for this season. Port receipts 4,691; United States port stocks 2,536,925.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON CLOSES 7 POINTS UP

NEW ORLEANS, June 21.—(AP)—Strong outside markets, increased textile activity and indications of an upturn in general business bolstered cotton prices here today, but after advancing 50 cents to 55 cents a bale the market reacted. The close was steady, 4 to 7 points net higher.

Overseas markets were much better than expected and together with early reports of continued rains in the belt attracted considerable foreign and local buying in early dealings.

NEW YORK, June 21.—After as vigorous a rally as the stock market has experienced this week, it would be natural to expect realizing to bring about a partial reaction.

That certainly was the rule in the days of unrestricted speculation. But it is not so sure that the same sequence will be followed now. Since the SEC took charge, the market has been more of a one-way affair, a movement either way continuing much longer than formerly.

However, a setback would not be significant of a resumption of the major decline. The important fact is that volume increased so greatly on the recovery. The market's action clearly indicates that the buying is better than the selling.

Business indexes have turned upward, it is granted, but the gain has been very slight and the major trend may still be regarded as downward.

The answer is that all precedent is for stocks to recover before business does. It may also be argued that, if industrial improvement is small, there is no deterioration, either. Meanwhile, commodity prices are hardening.

While not so sharp as in the preceding session, Tuesday's advance in the stock market carried the industrial averages above the April high.

Curiously enough, the rails did better relatively in May than the industrials. The reason probably was expectation of constructive legislation by congress which was, however, not fulfilled. The only hope for the rails now appears to be larger traffic which they will undoubtedly get if and when business comes back. They have still a heavy burden of costs to carry and their outlook is still dubious. All of which makes their ability to stage a market rally the more significant.

CHICAGO, June 21.—Forced down by selling pressure attributed in part to increase of arrivals from the new winter crop, Chicago wheat values tumbled 2 cents late today. The net result was to transform about one cent temporary gain into an equal loss.

Reports indicated that domestic harvest operations would proceed more rapidly from now on, and that the United States visible supply having probably reached the low point for the season would show an increase on Monday next. Just at this time last year, the 1937 low was recorded, and then an increase of more than 121 million bushels from the low to the peak inside of 90 days.

Dry weather complaints from spring crop areas both sides of the Canadian line, together with fresh jumps of securities, were largely responsible for transient price bulges here. One Canadian report called attention to 7,000,000 acres needing rain.

Corn, rye and oats chiefly took their cue from wheat market action. Afloat supplies of corn appeared sufficient for immedite European needs. Corn belt weather was improved.

Weather Outlook For Cotton States

South Carolina—Partly cloudy Wednesday and Thursday, possibly scattered showers in south portion Wednesday; slightly warmer extreme north portion Wednesday.

Florida—Partly cloudy, scattered showers in south and east portions Wednesday and possibly in south portion Thursday.

Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and Extreme Northwest Florida—Generally fair Wednesday and Thursday.

Arkansas — Fair Wednesday; Thursday partly cloudy.

Oklahoma—Partly cloudy Wednesday; Thursday mostly cloudy.

Texas—Partly cloudy Wednesday and Thursday, scattered showers near the coast.

Peaches.

MACON, Ga., June 21.—Practically all peach markets of the country were stronger today, with New York taking the lead, according to the marketing news service and private wires to growers. The peak paid for half-bushels of Hileys, two inches, in New York this morning was $1.35, the best price that has been obtained in the movement of this variety.

Consumers of peaches are just beginning to realize that Georgia has the best fruit ever shipped from this state, according to Wilmer Dickey, president of the Georgia Association of Peach Growers. Dickey is the man who sponsored "Beautirized" peaches, which means that only United States inspected No. 1 stock is shipped under that label. Prices have been advancing all week, ever since the "junk" of the early varieties was cleaned up.

Locally the trading was light yesterday afternoon because of the rains throughout the belt. It improved today. Hileys 1⅞-inch brought 70 to 80 cents per half-bushel, while 2-inch size brought 90 cents. Bushels of Hileys brought $1.10 to $1.25 here.

There were 59 cars of Hiley shipped out of the state yesterday, 40 going east. There were 100 cars held over in orchards and growers obtained 96 additional cars for today. In New York there were 31 cars, five parts of cars and 11 truckloads unloaded this morning.

The market was described as stronger, weather clear and temperature up to 74 degrees. Two-inch Hileys, half-bushels, brought $1.12½ to $1.25; high as $1.30 to $1.35; others 90 cents to $1; 1⅞-inch $1 to $1.12½. There was some small and poor fruit sold for 65 cents a half-bushel.

So Says

Mr. McCollum—

"A man without money is a bow without an arrow."

TO say the least, it's inconvenient to have no cash at all on hand. So remember it isn't necessary to use your last spare dollar for emergencies, for tax payments, or for unusual, large purchases where you can save by paying cash. Under my plan you can divide $60 to $1,000 over one or two years at low interest. See me at the Seaboard Loan Corp., 12 Pryor St., S. W.

TARZAN AND THE FORBIDDEN CITY No. 33

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Crouching, scowling, the savage warrior crept toward Helen to plunge his long spear into her heart. High in the tree above, Tarzan rose to his full height. Then, lifting his face to Goro, the moon, he voiced the terrible battle-cry of the bull ape.

As the blood-curdling cry crashed the silence of the night, the creeping warrior halted. The others, terror-stricken, shrank from the menace of that fearsome sound. Then Tarzan spoke. "The demon of the forest comes for the white men, sahib!"

The ape-man dropped to the ground, trusting to the very boldness of his move to overawe the blacks for the few seconds it would require to free Helen. But he had reckoned without the courage of Chemungo, son of Mpingu, who stood ready with his big spear.

"Chemungo is not afraid!" the black shouted, and sprang forward with upraised spear. Then Tarzan did a strange thing. He had finished severing Helen's bonds; and now he returned his knife to its sheath, ready to meet Chemungo's charge with bare hands.

SALESMAN'S DEATH HELD ACCIDENTAL

Milton Hollowell Was Found Dead Monday; Had Been Shooting Rats.

A verdict of accidental death was returned by a jury under Coroner Paul Donehoo yesterday in the case of Milton L. Hollowell, 66, who was found dead of a rifle wound of the heart Monday afternon at his home, 609 Cumberland road, N. E. The body was discovered by his wife.

Mr. Hollowell had been shooting at rats in his two-car garage, using three types of guns. He had been struck by a bullet from a repeating rifle, police said.

His wife said he had undergone two major operations within eight weeks, but was in good spirits Sunday and Monday. A millinery salesman, he had resided in Atlanta 25 years. The body was taken by Harry G. Poole last night to New Bern, N. C., for last rites and burial.

Roosevelt's Control of Congress No Index of Popularity, Poll Finds

Standing During Closing Weeks of Session, When He Was Winning Spectacular Victories, Was Lowest in Two Years.

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP, Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

NEW YORK, June 21.—The fact that President Roosevelt regained his political control over congress in the closing weeks of the session has been construed by some political observers to mean that the President has enjoyed a similar gain in popularity throughout the country.

Surveys by the American Institute of Public Opinion show, however, that Roosevelt's popularity with voters bears no close relationship to the actions of congress.

Actually his popularity during the closing weeks of the session, when he was winning spectacular victories in congress, was the lowest in two years. It was considerably lower than it had been earlier in the session, when the President was suffering major defeats on Capitol Hill.

At the time of the victorious passage of the wage-hour bill, for example, the Institute found his popularity index at 54.4 per cent. This was nearly three points below the figure reported during the fight over the reorganization bill. Thus, although the defeat of the bill was hailed as a body blow to his prestige, a substantial majority of voters throughout the country were still for Roosevelt.

Court Fight an Example.

The fight over the supreme court bill last year also illustrates that the fate of a specific measure is not an index of the President's popularity. The court plan was shelved by the senate and was opposed by nearly 60 per cent of the voters. Yet, a majority of these same voters indicated, in an Institute survey, that they were still for Roosevelt.

A year ago congress voted the President down on the wage-hour bill. At that time his popularity was nearly six points higher than it is today. Not until the Lister Hill election in Alabama, and the recent Florida primary, did congress change its views on wage-hour legislation. Yet, Institute studies have shown that the public has favored such legislation for almost two years.

Decline in October.

The Institute has found that the President's popularity began to decline last October, coincident with the beginning of the business slump. It fell from 63.4 per cent in that month to the present figurge of 54.4 per cent. The decline continued steadily, regardless of the administration's good luck or bad luck in congress. With the President preparing to take a swing across the continent early next month, it is possible that his popularity will rise again. The next Institute report, scheduled for mid-July, will show the trend.

REGISTRATION FRAUD AFFIDAVITS CLAIMED

Anti-Crump Lawyer Tells Inquiry of Securing Vote Evidence.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 21.—(AP) An anti-Crump lawyer told Abe Waldauer's registration purge inquiry today he had sent to Nashville "about 15 affidavits" from persons who said they were furnished registration certificates in Shelby county without registering.

This testimony, from Ben Kohn, a supporter of Governor Gordon Browning's campaign for renomination in the August 4 primary, was a high point in the one-day hearing ordered by Daldauer, anti-Browning member of the state elections board, into charges that the Shelby county, August, 1937, registration of nearly 100,000 names, involved wholesale frauds.

As Waldauer recessed the inquiry, subject to further call, he received word that State Attorney General Roy Beeler had ruled that his inquiry was legal and that his recent taking of access to the registration records did not render the registration void.

Beeler ruled at the same time that Pro-Browning County Commissioners T. Galen Tate, Samuel Johnson and Dave Hanover were entitled to custody of the records with the right to move them so long as they did not take them from the courthouse.

Kohn said that in addition to the persons who made the affidavits forwarded to Nashville he had talked to "10 or 12 other persons" who made similar statements but who would not sign affidavits.

JAPAN RESHAPING HANKOW CAMPAIGN

Flood-Blocked Activities Are Being Transferred at Heavy Cost.

TOKYO, June 22.—(Wednesday)—(AP)—Tokyo newspapers today reported Japan's foreign minister, General Kazushige Ugaki, was considering a formal declaration of war against China after almost a year of undeclared conflict in the far east.

His purpose was said to be an attempt to block foreign aid to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's government.

SHANGHAI, June 22.—(Wednesday)—(AP)—Japan's flood-ruined campaign for quick conquest of central China is being reshaped at heavy cost to challenge steadily-growing Chinese strength.

Blocked by Yellow river inundation along the Lunghai railroad, the Japanese army has been forced to put most of its strength into a cross-country drive against Hankow, China's provisional capital.

Troops and equipment are being shifted at great expense from the Lunghai zone, where only two weeks ago Japanese were on the verge of capturing Chengchow, which they had planned to use as a base for a drive 300 miles south along the Peiping-Hankow railway against Hankow.

Chinese reports said four Japanese divisions were being concentrated in the vicinity of Anking, in Anhwei province, for a push due west against the provisional capital. An additional 20,000 men and 200 tanks were said to be on their way to Anking from the Lunghai area.

Hankow reports said Japanese troops had reached a point 130 miles east of Hankow, around which 60 new Chinese divisions numbering 500,000 men were reported taking up positions for the coming battle for the city. Chinese also said they were receiving new shipments of planes from Soviet Russia and elsewhere, 1,200 Russian tanks, 380 Russian guns and 300 other guns.

BRIDGE PLANS STAND.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—(AP) The board of army engineers said today original plans for a bascule type bridge across the Darien river at Darien, Ga., would stand. Application for a fixed type bridge, the board said, had been rejected because of protests from Darien that the fixed structure would block navigation.

DISTRICT IS CREATED BY LUTHERAN SYNOD

New Territory Stretches From Augusta, Ga., to New Jersey.

ST. LOUIS, June 21.—(AP)—Authorization of a new southeastern district representing a laymen membership of several thousand highlighted today's session of the Evangelical Lutheran synod of Missouri (United States and Canada) in convention here.

The synod granted a request for the new district to comprise the following area:

North and South Carolina, including Augusta, Ga.; north along the Shenandoah valley to Harrisburg, Pa., including Cumberland, Md.; east to and including Trenton, N. J., and south along the Delaware river to include Camden, New Jersey.

The proposal met with considerable opposition, especially from leaders of the powerful eastern states district, which stands to lose several of its large congregations to the new body. Speakers contended the new geographical arrangement "was not properly made and may prove unworkable." Proponents of the measure, passed after a two-hour debate, said the new district would "unify and strengthen mission work in that territory."

The Rev. G. C. Barth, Cincinnati, Ohio; the Rev. Paul Schulz, Springfield, Ill.; A. H. Albrand, Seymour, Ind.; E. J. Gallmeyer, Fort Wayne, Ind.; Henry W. Horst, Rock Island, Ill., and W. H. Schlueter, St. Louis.
